The Georgetown Herald Increases Size

The Georgetown Herald was last week issued in greatly improved form. Our neighbor is now an eight page six column newspaper. The front page is devoted entirely to news and the advertisements all placed on the remaining seven pages. The Herald, in its new form, is similar to the present make-up adopted by THE FREE PRESS seven years ago, but of fewer columns and size. We congratulate Editor J M. Moore and his staff on the very marked improvement in The Herald and the greater service that the newer form will render to Georgetown and the territory surrounding. It is keeping well abreast of the of 13 per cent. compared with the preceding year. times and no doubt readers will appreiate the new and more convenient form.

You Can Help

Faced with rising costs at every turn advances in newspaper subscriptions are being announced frequently now. On November 1st the price of The Globe and Mail was increased to $6.00 per year. Newsprint, inks, rollers, type metal and in fact everything that enters into newspaper costs has risen during the year. They all have to be paid for.

As yet we have made no increase in the subscription rate of THE FREE PRESS. We hope to be able to retain the present rate and we can with the cooperation of our subscribers. We have at present a circulation of 1,250. If all these subscribers pay their subscriptions promptly as they become due, and we can save the expense of collection, we will not have to increase the subscription price. Bu, we must have the fullest co-operation of all in maintaining the present rate. Postage, mailing of accounts, all cost money. You can save and help wonderfully if you will just watch the label on your paper and pay promptly when it is due. Arrears must be cleared away and collected in order to meet the rising cost. May we have your co-operation?

News?

-A-tragedy-in-Oakville-has-had-such-undesirable publicity in a Toronto afternoon paper that a meeting of business men passed a resolution condemning the portrayal of the news. Streetsville folks are no overjoyed over the type of publicity that community was given when a body was taken from a grave. And then the spotlight was turned on Woodbridge, with the same type:

It almost came to Acton. Half a dozen telephone 22: 1-4. -enquiries were made on Monday night about the grave that was robbed in Pairview Cometery. The news hounds on the city press were sure such an act had been committed here. But, strange as it may seem, the Chief of Police or none of the cemetery officials know anything about the matter, and no graves in Pairview Cemetery have been disturbed. We don't say that boastingly, because "ghouls" are very popular just now, especially in cometeries in the rural districts not too far removed from Toronto.

It's queer that headlines have to be made from the nasty things of life. Is it because the public like that sort of sensationalism?

But to the benefits and blessings of the spiritual exercise of a truly Christian life (cf. 1 Cor. 13) there are no limits, both in this life and in the life to come (2 Peter 1: 5-8) Unfortunately many Christians, while they realize that holiness is a good thing to die by, do not seem so sure that it is a good thing to live by. But wherever tried, it is a self-evident fact that "it pays to be good." All things being equal a good man is healthler and happier than a bad man. His mind is clearer, his is the man who is "formed, reformed, and informed" by the exercise of true conscience, he is at peace with himself All these blessings, attendant on "the practice of the presence of God," me but a shadow of "that which is to come" I
