Surviving are her husband, two sons, James and William of Erin; and two daughters, Mrs. Thos. Gibson, Terra Costa; and Mrs. Clifford Burt, Erin.

MANITOBA BECOMING PRODUCER OF CORN

Manitoba is rapidly becoming a corn growing province. In 1937 more than 60,000 acres were devoted to growing corn in southern Manitoba, of which about 30 per cent. was for hucking corn, mainly of the early Dent variety, Minnesota No. 18. The selection a few years ago of early strains of this variety at the Dominion Experimental Farms at Modern and Brandon is largely responsible for the development of corn growing in the province. Yields ranging from 35 to 40 bushels per acre of good quality corn are obtained from this variety. Expert observers are of the opinion that corn growing is bound to increase as a profitable cash crop in Manitoba.

The LETTER BOX

March 18th, 1938

To the Editor: The proposed legislation by the Government of Ontario in favor of compulsory pasteurization of milk supplies is a matter of such outstanding importance that the facts, in my opinion, about this subject should be placed before the public.

Milk all competent authorities are agreed, is our best and cheapest food. It is in universal use in all households; it is essential for the food of children. In view of this, milk should be made safe. It is not safe in all communities. There is overwhelming evidence that many diseases, including tuberculosis both bovine and human, undulant fever, septic sore throat, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, and diphtheria are carried by raw milk. Since milk can be made safe, it is the obvious duty of governments to provide for such safety. This can only be done under present circumstances by universal pasteurization of all milk supplies.

The opponents of pasteurization usually confine their arguments to saying that the process of pasteurization destroys certain qualities in the milk so that it allows of the use of dirty milk; that children and calves fed on pasteurized milk fail to thrive as well as those fed on the raw article and that the cost of milk to the consumer would, in the event of pasteurization be increased. They do not deny, because they cannot, in the face of the evidence, that raw milk is productive of repeated epidemics of disease, but they say that tuberculosis from milk may be prevented by the use of milk from accredited herds. They conveniently forget that the accredited herds will fail to protect children and others against, for example, typhoid and scarlet fever, undulant fever, septic sore throat and a host of other infections carried by raw milk. They forget, too, that milk from accredited herds has been known to spread tuberculosis and besides it will take some years to complete the establishment of such herds in Ontario.

Let us examine the various objections to pasteurization. The pasteurized milk loses none of its value in the process as proven by investigations carried on in Great Britain, in the United States and elsewhere, which show that school children fed on pasteurized milk, not only thrive on this milk but thrive rather better than children fed on the raw article. The same results were observed in calves. Calves fed on pasteurized milk gained slightly over those fed on raw milk.

One cannot deny that in some cases, rather rare ones, indeed, dirty milk may be pasteurized and offered for sale. But is not the same true of the raw article? The water of our cities is sometimes taken from sources subject to pollution. People would hesitate to drink unpurified water from questionable sources but if such water is purified by appropriate measures does anyone hesitate to drink it? Similarly pasteurization of milk makes it safe for use.

The cost of pasteurization depends upon the quantities handled. In small plants the cost may reach to one-half cent a quart. In large plants the cost is infinitesimal. This cost should be assumed, not by the farmer, but by those benefiting thereby, namely the consumer. Heretofore, protection against contaminated milk has been given to the people of the large cities and towns while rural communities have suffered from the epidemics carried by raw milk. It is time that the children of our villages and country-side should have similar protection.

There are, as one clinician suggests, three things to think of in relation to the proposed measure of pasteurization. Raw Milk is often dangerous. Certified Milk even if entirely safe which it is not, is under present conditions impracticable! Pasteurized Milk is the only safe milk! Why not have it? Yours very truly, MANNING W. DOHERTY.

EXPRESS MEN FIND PIGEONS ARE PARTICULAR CUSTOMERS

As racing pigeon clubs all over the country prepare for their spring marathons Canadian National Express employees are busy brushing up on their bird lore. Homing pigeons are among the most exacting customers they have, and require—and get—the most scrupulous attention.

The express man has to know just how the birds are to be liberated, which door in the basket to open so that the pigeons get out quickly and all together and, what is quite as important when pigeons will not fly through heavy rain, fog or thick smoke and they will not fly in the dark. The express man has to be up to the minute in his weather reports regarding the route of flight. He has to bear in mind the fact that the birds fly about 30 miles an hour.

Feed is usually forwarded with the birds and it is up to the express man to see that his customers eat and drink. If the supply runs short, he buys peas and corn and he knows just what kind.

He has to be careful that his charges are not exposed to the summer sun but he has to bring them to the light at least 15 minutes before they are released, so that their eyes will have a chance to become accustomed to the change. Dogs and cats and the curious public have to be kept away from them.

And when the precious shipments have all flown home, the express man has to gather up the baskets and return them by train.

THE RHYME OVER WHICH TO PUZZLE THIS WEEK

The first of my spelling you get in your school, And the next always comes with a clown or a fool; The third in a color but not in a tink, The fourth not in cotton, yet always in link. For the fifth, take a trip to a nice country inn, Then the sixth is in-needle, but not in a pin; The last always happens in every disaster, And you'll find it in servant, and in every master. The whole is a worker, somewhat of a digger, At the end of a day it resembles a nigger.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Brazil nuts and walnuts should be placed in a warm oven for a few minutes. They will then leave the shells quite easily when cracked.

A grease spot on the page of a valued book can be removed by placing several sheets of white paper under the offending spot and sprinkling burnt magnesia on top. A few hours later wipe the spot gently with a cloth moistened with benzine and your page will be spotlessly clean.

Idea also useful for magazines which you may want bound. Make a calico bag with three large pockets. One for string one for brown paper and one for paper bags. Hang inside the larger door and the contents will always be clean and handy.

$3,000,000 Bridge Being Built

Late this year a new $3,000,000 international bridge, costing $3,000,000, will link Canada and United States. The new structure is the "Blue Water" bridge, stretching from Sarnia, Ontario, on the Canadian side, to Port Huron Michigan, on the American side. It will tower 152 feet above the St. Clair River, giving ample clearance for all boats navigating the Great Lakes. The picture was taken from the Port Huron end of the new span.
