The LETTER BOX

88 Anderson Ave., London, September 2nd, 1938.

Acton Free Press

Dear Mr. Dills:

My wife (nee Edna Coon) and I have been away from Acton for possibly 27 of the 30 years of our married life. During all that time, and in a number of cities, we always look forward to the weekly visit of THE FREE PRESS. It had nearly all the merits of a weekly letter from home, with the additional virtue of its coming not being dependent on the mood or caprice of a family correspondent; always on time, always newsworthy, always clean and edifying.

You mention in your latest editorial that some unspecified Judge had given it as his opinion that the Sunday School Lesson could be deleted from your issues and not be greatly missed. I am thankful to find that our friend was a poor guesser and that the deletion was freely commented on and the article again restored to its honored place. I think it speaks volumes for the respect in which many of us still hold God's Word. May I be allowed to say, sir, that I can hardly imagine your venerable predecessor, H. P. Moore, countenancing for one moment the ignoring of an article that seeks to honor God's Word, if it were humanly possible to include it. News! Yes! News ever old and ever new. News that God Himself thought it worth-while to publish, "having spoken to us in these last days by Jesus Christ," Heb. 1: 2.

Personally, I conduct two Bible Classes—one in the city, and the other in the adjacent township of Westminster—and I find the weekly articles a great help to supplement my other studies on the S. S. lessons. Entirely free from any trace of modernism, or any attempt to dilute God's message to man, concise, scriptural with no uncertain emphasis on the primary inspiration of God's Word, I find it possibly my best commentary on the lessons.

This, sir, is to congratulate you on your decision to retain the S. S. lesson helps and to wish more power to the editorial elbow in all connections.

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES N. TAYLOR.

SOME EXCUSE NECESSARY

"Why did you tell Joe you married me because I'm a wonderful cook? I can't hold a potato!"

"But I had to give some excuse."

A record crowd of baseball fans witnessed the Little World Series at the Park here last Saturday afternoon, when Copper Cliff Americans defeated the Georgetown Nationals 14-13 for the Ontario Midget "Pro" Championship.
