> However, the problem of the oyster is one that cannot easily be solved so it is to the pearl that attention should be temporarily turned. Expecially important right now is the interest in pearls, the gem which is the birthstone for

Since the earliest days of history the pearl has been worshipped for its rare beauty. In the Book of Job and in the Talmud pearls are mentioned, and at the height of Rome's power the exquisite gems were in great demand by the loveliest women of the Empire. While records concerning the pearl date back for more than 3,000 years, and it is quite certain that the pearl was known before then, the first authentic record of any gem is that of the pearl.

Various legends surround the story of the pearl and one of the oldest is the Pair of Marketable Wether-Lambs - beltef that the gem originates when drop of dew falls into the shell. Other stories say that the tears of the gods lad, due to his American birth and the fall toward the earth. LEGENDS OF LONGEVITY

Some extraordinary misconceptions exist as to longevity of both ancients and moderns according to Dr. C. E. Martin, in an interesting article in the current number of "Health." Writing on "This Business of Growing Old," Dr. Martin says: "There is in our annals, a long list of men whose age allegedly far exceeded put their grimy hands side by side on 100 years. Let me cite but one and a the tablecloth. famous one at that:

"Thos. Parr was born in 1483 and died at the age of 152 years in 1635. It is recorded of him that he was married at 68 and had two children but apparently the true course of love did not run smooth: He did penace at the age o 105 and married again-a widow, age 122. Being a pathological curtosity, he was brought from his English countryside to London to meet Charles I-had a wonderful reception and for the first time in his life, tasted wine-shortly after which he died!

"William Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, performed a post-mortem on Thos. Parr, but tells us that he failed to find anything wrong with his organs.

"Of this and so many other legendary cases of longevity, one can say with assurance that the records were inaccurate. In the last 100 years, when our and of angels change into pearls as they fear that he would become a public deaths have been proved, we find no means of registration of births and

> "As a matter of fact, only about one person in 75,000 reaches the age of 00. "The answer to all this can best be found in the Province of Quebec. Here the census of births, marriages and deaths among French Canadians is practically complete for more than 300 years. A remarkable study of Charles

Tache and Abbe Tanguay of the period

1608-1876 reveals the truth. "Up to 1876-421 reputed centenarians had died in Canada. Many of these had been immigrants or Indians, the date of whose birth could not be certified. Further accurate study reduced the list to 82 names of individuals, whose ages could be absolutely proved by authentic documents- and of these 80 were French Canadians - 73 wre positively shown to They are gamblers when they step be less than 100 years old-and only 9
