The Scarrow-MacDonald Wedding on Saturday

A pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church Manse, Acton, on Saturday afternoon when Jean Elizabeth MacDonald, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacDonald, became the bride of Norman Scarrow, son of Mr. J. P. and the late Mrs. Scarrow. Rev. Dr. Morrow officiated. The bride looked charming in a gown of pink net over tulle and carried pink carnations with heather from Scotland in her hair.

The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Irwin, of Durham, wore blue tulle and had a corsage of blue carnations. The best man was Mr. Jack Smallman. Following a reception at the bride's home, the couple left on a motor trip, the bride travelling in an autumn velvet ensemble with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Scarrow will live in Toronto.

A LITTLE ONE

Diner—Waiter, look at the ends of this sausage.
Waiter—What's wrong with them sir?
Diner—They're very close together, aren't they?

TOO BASHFUL

He was very shy, although, Don presented him with unimpeachable opportunities for declaring his love in practical fashion he could never summon up sufficient courage to take advantage of them. They were sitting in the garden one evening, with the usual half hour interval between remarks, when the climax was reached.

"Isn't it funny," she said, "that the length of a man's arm is the same as the circumference of a girl's waist?"

"Is that so?" said he, mildly interested.

"What do you say if we get a piece of string and see if it's right?"

HIS ANSWERS

"Johnny Smith, what do you mean by coming to school with your hair in that disgraceful condition?" said the teacher.

"No comb, sir."

"Well, why couldn't you use your father's comb?"

"No hair, sir."

My sixth in a bench, yet not in a pew;
My seventh, eighth and ninth in the branch of a tree,
My tenth and eleventh in the name of McCreo,
My whole is the name of a day when we meet
To remember the dead; at the church and the street.

Annual Social Night of Acton Women's Institute

The November meeting of Acton Women's Institute was the annual social night held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon's. In keeping with the occasion the response to the roll call was a humorous joke or a riddle which started the evening with mirth. During the business discussion it was decided to send a donation to the Northern Ontario fire sufferers. A donation also to the poppy fund to give school children a poppy, with literature to explain what Armistice meant. Mrs. J. Wilderspin, the President, was in charge and was also appointed to attend the Convention in Toronto this month.

Following the business session, the amusement program began. Euchre, Bingo and crokinole were all very much enjoyed. The lady winners in euchre were Mrs. G. W. Maasles, Mrs. W. McCutcheon. There being more women playing than men, the gents' prizes went to Mrs. Earl Lambert and Mrs. J. Wilderspin.

The meeting closed by singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." On this annual occasion the gentlemen are guests of the ladies.
