Odds and Ends

- Nomination Day is just three weeks from to-morrow. -The 1941 auto markers go on sale in Acton on Tuesday. -Saturday is Poppy Day. Be sure to wear the little red emblem. -Foundations are well advanced for the new Bank of Nova Scotia building, on Mill Street. -Installation of the steam boiler and equipment at the Baxter Laboratories is getting along well. -Remember the Remembrance Day services, next Monday, commencing at 10.50, at the Soldiers' Monument. -The work of the road maintainer on the streets about town put the dirt roadways in splendid condition again. -Services in connection with Remembrance Day will be held in Acton, Rockwood and Nassagaweya, next Monday. -Acton stores are now open on Wednesday afternoon. The half holiday will not be observed again until after Christmas. -Saturday's thunderstorm was a bit unseasonable, and, according to weather prophets, a sign of more warm fall weather. -Acton has two local products in Senior O.H.A. this season. Allan Marshall is with the Hamilton team, and Ilio Marzo is with the London team. -A crew of fourteen men are stationed in Acton, doing work on the C.N.R. Telegraph lines. Work in this district will require about five weeks, it is estimated. -Bill Marshall, son of Mr. Earl Marshall, had the misfortune to fracture his right wrist while at play in the gymnasium at the Y. on Monday evening. All hope he will soon be around again. -More and more carloads of machinery are arriving and being installed at the Wool Combing plant. One scouring machine, is 225 feet in length. New machines from England are now arriving regularly. -The annual selection of books for Acton Public Library has been purchased, catalogued and put on the library shelves. Readers will have these new books available on Saturday night for the first time. -Acton Volunteer Civil Guard will join with other patriotic bodies in Remembrance Day services. They will take part in the service at Georgetown on Sunday morning, and the services at Acton, Rockwood and Nassagaweya, on Monday. -The young men, who were old enough to be out after midnight on Halloween, were surely of sufficient years of wisdom to know better than destroy the high board fence surrounding the garden of Mrs. George Havill, on Frederick Street. -A rose bush at the farm home of Mr. George Nellis has been in bloom for a second time this season. New leaves and a second flowering followed this past week. Apparently here's one shrub that is not aware of the brevity of the summer season.

REMEMBRANCE DAY THIS YEAR Monday is November 11th, a day which for twenty-two years has needed no further description for the people of the Empire. "We also knew what it signified and we observed it with perhaps diminished enthusiasm. It was a feathering of war veterans, remembering their old companions and citizens, their sons and brothers, dead, in the service of our country."

Weekly War Commentary

Churchill Confident Prime Minister Winston Churchill told a clearing House of Commons on November 5th that Britain had established air and naval bases on the Greek island of Crete and that systematic bombing attacks on southern Italian military objectives would be instituted. Reviewing the war position, Mr. Churchill declared that Britain was far stronger on the home front in the Mediterranean and in Egypt than when France fell. He reported that 14,000 civilians had been killed and 20,000 seriously wounded in German air raids on the United Kingdom. From a military point of view, he said, the rise in U-boat sinkings was more serious than the air raids and the inability to use E-boats constituted a "heavy and grievous burden" upon the navy.

Greek Army Invaders The little Greek army is more than holding its own against Italy's attempted invasion. On the northern end of the front, where Hellenic forces pushed the Italians back into Albania, it was reported on November 5th that the civilian population of Koritza was withdrawing with the town under fire of Greek artillery.

Losses at Sea The Admiralty announced, November 4th, that the armed merchant cruiser, Laureate and the sloop, Paros, had been torpedoed and sunk by enemy submarines. On the other side of the ledger the sinking of two Italian submarines was reported and followed up the next day by an announcement of the sinking of two German submarines.

Back for Third Term United States electors recorded a smashing endorsement of Frank Delano Roosevelt's foreign and domestic policies. November 5th, by re-electing him for a third term as President, Canadian Government, during maintained their usual impartial attitude towards the affairs of a friendly nation. The British press rejoiced, while observers in Washington regarded the renewed mandate as ensuring the continuance of all possible material aid, short of war, to Britain.

Review Your Will

From time to time the results of the failure to make a Will or to revise an existing Will come very forcibly to our attention. Changing conditions can materially alter circumstances, and while a Will made years ago was satisfactory then, it may be an entirely different matter now. We strongly recommend that you review your Will at intervals. It is a practice which many follow and the soundness is beyond question. We would be glad to have you consult us in confidence with regard to your Will or your Estate.
