Obituary

DIED
HOLMES—At her residence, Bower Avenue, Acton, Ont., Monday, September 15, 1941, Lenora Storey, widow of the late Harry S. Holmes.

IN MEMORIAM
MOORE—In loving memory of Agnes Lane, beloved wife of Nelson F. Moore, who died September 23rd, 1938.

There is a link death cannot sever Love and remembrance last forever Ever remembered by HUSBAND.

This and that

Mr. G. W. Maxales was a C.N.E. prize winner this year with a two-year-old colt.

A very fine short-horn bull, prize winner at Fairs in both Canada and the United States was among the beef cattle exhibited at Acton this year.

The showing of motorized farm equipment was more extensive and drew more attention than the showing of new automobiles displayed at Acton Fair.

The showing of horses at Acton Fair this year was one of the finest in the Fair's history. Many of the horses entered were prize winners at the exhibition this year.

It was quite appropriate that a veteran of two wars, W. J. Gould, was in service again at the booth of the War Savings Committee handing out literature to visitors in the hall.

If we have made any omission of news items from this issue of 'The Fair Pass' please pardon them. Fair days interfere seriously with our publication arrangements of the week.

It might be said "There'll always be an Acton Band." At any rate when the occasion arises Acton gets a band and the Fair Day band under Mr. C. W. Mason filled in splendidly and gave the fair a real musical boost.

On Friday evening a number of families from S.S. No. 8, Nassagaweya Township, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Norton, Miss E. Pridham, the former teacher for several years of that school and who is now a member of the staff of Acton School.

The Red Cross Rooms will be open on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons from three until five o'clock. If you have any aluminum for the Red Cross, please send it to these rooms on the afternoons stated and it will be put to work for victory.

From Seaman Herbert Dron we have received this week two more copies of papers from Iceland. The one is the "Sunday Post" published at Austurstræti and costs 25 aurar. The other is "The Midnight Sun," published at Laugardalinn and the price is 25 aurar. They are most interesting four page tabloids.

GARAGE OPERATORS FIRST MEETING FOR THE SEASON

Following a brief holiday period the Halton branch of the Ontario Garage Operators' Association held their first meeting for the 1941-42 season in Milton, Thursday evening, September 11th, with the president, Mr. J. L. McKinley, in the chair.

A large number of business items came before the meeting for discussion and in particular the many new regulations affecting the garage business provided the members with much food for thought.

The members were greatly favored with a visitor in the person of Mr. F. J. Wadhams, editor of "The Garage Operator" who is always a welcome guest at Halton county. Mr. Wadhams spoke briefly and introduced Mr. J. A. Reid, the new field man for the association who gave the members a very interesting and instructive address based on the principal of doing and carrying on a clean business, and stressed the necessity of maintaining honorable practices.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members enjoyed a social half hour which brought another successful meeting to a close.

GEORGETOWN

It was with deep regret that the town community learned of the death on Thursday evening, Sept. 10th, of Annie Elizabeth Brennan, dearly beloved wife of William James Hill.

Mr. Harvey Wilson, 31 Toronto, Mrs. R. W. McCloy, and children, Glen Campbell and Joan Ann, of Murray Street, and Mrs. J. A. Hill, with their parents, at being the sixtieth birthday of their father.

Elizabeth Anne (Betty) Smethurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smethurst, of Lambhouse and Charles Aubrey Grant son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Grant of Toronto, were united in marriage on Saturday, Sept. 6th, in St. Anne's Anglican Church, Gladstone Avenue, Toronto Herald.

Weekly War Commentary

with the scorched-earth policy that leaves little or nothing in the land that it may grab. It is not probable that any detailed figures will be issued for months if not years on what help Russia has given. But enough information has been released to indicate the scale. At least three tankers with high-test gasoline have arrived in Vladivostok from the United States. Ship after ship has tied up at Busan and other Middle East ports with goods which can be sent to the Russians through Iran.

Back to Smolensk For the first time since hostilities broke out in September, 1939, German troops have heard the order to retreat. The long, narrow spearhead, driven into Russian defences before Moscow was made the target for a vicious counter-offensive by Marshal Timoshenko's army in the centre of the long front. At the week-end the Nazis were reported making a rapid withdrawal in the area about Smolensk.

Russian army leaders hoped that the Germans would be forced to withdraw troops from the drive on Leningrad to stem the Red Army's advance. Their strategy may turn out to be correct as reports on Sept. 13 indicated the Nazis appeared to be hesitating as to the advisability of storming the former Russian capital or subjecting it to a siege.

Further south the situation was not encouraging. As the 12th week of the campaign closed, Russians admitted that Chernigov, 80 miles north of Kiev had been evacuated. This meant the Nazi move to encircle the Ukraine capital was continuing. But the Russians, Fall rains have already started and these will be followed in November by severe winter weather which should favour the defence. The defence of Moscow falling in the immediate future and marshy lands should impede German movements around Kiev. The defence of Leningrad will probably be Russia's hardest task.

Roosevelt Hits Out President Roosevelt's "sink or swim" order to the United States fighting services has been greeted with a chorus of approval in democratic countries. It had been predicted that president would not make words in his radio broadcast on Sept. 11 and the forecast proved correct. The president declared the Navy and Army had been instructed to destroy on sight any German or Italian submarines or surface raiders appearing in United States defence waters. He said it was the Nazi design to abolish the freedom of the seas and normal practices of diplomacy were of no use in dealing with international outlaws "who sink our ships and kill our citizens."

Activities of German submarines last week in the Atlantic and word of the sinking of an American-owned freighter off the east coast of Greenland on the same day that the president spoke, indicated no disposition on the part of the Nazis to withdraw their undersea craft from the vicinity of Iceland and Greenland. It is thought the administration may propose the arming of United States merchantmen. This would require congressional revision of the Neutrality Act.

Tension in Norway Of all the countries under German domination Norway is proving most troublesome for the Nazi overlords. Last week the Germans resorted to mass arrests in an attempt to stifle the spirit of revolt that has led to strikes and widespread sabotage. News of the Canadian raid on Spitzbergen undoubtedly did much to encourage the Norwegians who are taking a determined stand against quibbling delay. A nation-wide uprising may develop, but to be most effective it should be timed to take place when Britain and Russia can supply assistance sufficient to make it a marked setback for Germany.

Get Plastics Out of Wheat Western Man Has Suggestion for Use of Surplus Grain

REGINA, SASK.—A new use for Canada's surplus wheat crop is being proposed by Dr. A. O. Stone of Regina, who claims he has discovered a formula to produce plastics from wheat. Advancing a well-equipped laboratory in Western Canada to promote research work on the possibility of utilizing surplus wheat, Dr. Stone says that it is possible to produce a plastic material from wheat flour and water. The United States is the largest producer of plastic materials in the world.

Dr. Stone says that the plastic material he has developed is a translucent, tough material that can be used in a wide variety of applications. He says that the material is made by combining wheat flour with water and a small amount of a chemical called formaldehyde. The mixture is then heated and pressed into sheets or molded into various shapes.

The material is said to be stronger than paper and more resistant to fire and chemicals. It is also said to be biodegradable, meaning that it will break down naturally over time. Dr. Stone says that he has already filed a patent application for his invention and is looking for investors to help him develop the technology further.

Britain's Bombers Grew Tomatoes Between Flights

Between spells of strafing Nazi bases in Europe, Britain's army air growing vegetables for their own messes. And they are using American seeds for a quarter of the consignment of vegetable seeds sent to Britain under the "Lend-Lease" program which was allocated to the R.A.F.

One Fighter Command station near London, west of Stafford, and Hurricane fighters, has ten acres of "waste" land under cultivation and another three or four acres are being sown with winter vegetables. The men there have planted 10,000 lettuce, 25,000 tomato plants, 5,000 cabbages, 2,000 brussels sprouts, as well as acres of beans, leeks and potatoes. This station is meeting Britain's onion shortage with half an acre of onions. The potatoes are part of a plan by which R.A.F. Stations throughout Britain will have fresh vegetables for their messes from spare stores of their airfields. The Air Council have appointed a gardening expert, Mr. A. H. Whyte, Head of the Horticultural Section of the Air Ministry, to see that the work is done in the most efficient manner.

The question of manure, seeds, and fertilizers are given active consideration in relation to different conditions of soil and climate. The general work carried out by the army air force is a keenly pursued one. The statistics of growing the vegetables grown are normally sold to stations' messes at current prices.

MILTON On Thursday of last week William and James Hamilton, the famous twins of Milton Heights, will be 88 years of age. Both are still in excellent health in spite of the passing years. William resides with Mrs. Arthur Thompson and James with Mrs. Robert McMullen, both in the Milton Heights area.

The strike which started Saturday morning at the local plant of the Model Knitting Mills and involving the employees of the drawing, spinning and twisting departments, was ended Monday when Sam Smith, the owner of the plant, agreed to pay the living bonus which they had requested. Champion.
