Letters to the Editor

Mr. A. Dills, Editor and Publisher, The Acton Free Press, Four 202.

"After spending three weeks in Ireland, the land of the midnight sun," also the land of cold and rainy weather, we are once again at sea. We left last Monday August 1st, and we still have at least a couple of weeks at sea yet before reaching our destination in the West-Indies. Our trip has been uneventful so far, but we have had a bit of fog, and yesterday and night before we ran into a gale, and very heavy seas, which was not so good for some of the ships in company, most of the ships have very little, if any cargo, and when they hit head winds and seas they cannot make much headway. In fact several ships dropped back completely—out of sight, but the all-Link, also the land of cold and rainy weather, we are once again at sea. Our trip has been uneventful so far, but we have had a bit of fog, and yesterday and night before we ran into a gale, and very heavy seas, which was not so good for some of the ships in company, most of the ships have very little, if any cargo, and when they hit head winds and seas they cannot make much headway. In fact several ships dropped back completely—out of sight, but the all-Link, also the land of cold and rainy weather, we are once again at sea. We left last Monday August 1st, and we still have at least a couple of weeks at sea yet before reaching our destination in the West-Indies.
