To the Electors of Halton

Burlington, April 20th, 1942

On April 27th, you will be voting on the Plebiscite. By this means, the Government is asking you to relieve it of the pledge given you at the last general election that no one would be conscripted for overseas service during this war.

The entire course of the war has so changed since the pledge was given that the Government feels that it should now have a free hand.

On this occasion, the Conservative and Liberal parties are joining, requesting everyone who wants to win the war to vote "Yes" on the Plebiscite.

The Government has announced that the Plebiscite is not a vote of confidence, but is simply a vote to give the Government a free hand to prosecute your war effort, as it may seem wise no matter what emergencies may happen.

Yours sincerely,
HUGHES CLEAVER
GEORGE ATKINS
