A LITTLE TOWN IS BEST

Life is thrilling in a city-So much to hear and wee: Fine churches, plays and operas, Bright lights, and galety. But passing faces all are strange, You feel an allen guest, if you're and and lonely, then A little town is best.

For in the little country towns Your friends are everywhere, And high and low, and young and The common interests share.

And if you are in trouble, they . Come flocking to your door, Kind hands outstretched to bring you

Their kind hearts, too, are sore.

In little towns the people say "Good morning," when you meet, And smiling children stop their play To greet you in the street. It may be little towns are slow, But they are quick to see That what is needed most in life Are friends and sympathy.
