The Italian garrison, numbering about 8000, clung tenaclously to the Island and ignored two demands of the Allies that it capitulate. Finally when it did give in, the Italian Admiral Paresseni, in command of the Island, messaged: "Beg surrender Mrs. Near was a member of Knox to Sell by Public Auction at the farm, through lack of water," Indicating that the aerial pounding had demol-

A sidelight of the surrender was tled for. No reserve as the farm is the attack by between 50 and 60 rented and the proprietor is giving Nazi aircraft on the British landing parties after the Italians had surrendered. It indicated one of two things, a break-down of intelligence between the garrison and the Gotman air force or complete disregard for the Italians who might justifiably have been re-attacked by the Allles on the grounds that their Axis partners had nullified the effect of their surrender. There is every reason to believe that the campaign against Italy will be pushed with increased vigor. Indeed, President Roosevelt brought up the matter by asking the press and radio to communicate to the Italian people an appeal that they revolt the 7th line, adjoining Everton.
