MILTON

The June Issue of "News Bulletin" of the Canadian Red Cross contains a very complete story of the Milton Branch of the Red Cross, along with a photograph of the executive and members attending a regular session at the Red Cross Rooms. Organized in 1939 immediately at the outbreak of war, Mrs. F. Dewar has been president ever since. One of the first mobile Blood Donor Clinics was held in Milton in 1942.

There are many activities, according to the report that helped the Branch raise a total last year of over $13,000 and supply nearly 30,000 articles to headquarters. The story in the "News Bulletin" is one that may well bring pride to Miltonians in the work accomplished by the Red Cross here.

On Monday, June 25th, the teachers of the Lakeview School visited at "Craglea." They enjoyed games of croquet and horse-shoes on the lawn. After a very delicious chicken dinner, presentations were made to four teachers who were leaving the staff: Mrs. Walker, Miss Walte, Mrs. Summers and Miss Daniels.

The Chisholm re-union was held on Saturday at the Arawan Farm, the home of Mr. L. W. Chisholm and son, Lloyd. Over sixty guests were present and a very enjoyable time was spent on the spacious lawn.—Canadian Champion.

JULY MEETING OF ROCKALONG INSTITUTE AT MRS. HENRY MAUDE'S

Mrs. Henry Maude was hostess to the Rock-along Women's Institute when they met for the July meeting. The president, Mrs. Douglas McNabb, occupied the chair. The roll call was answered by a "Time Saving Hint."

Mrs. H. Bridgeman presented the Institute with a gift of a pair of pillows and pillow cases to be used in our Red Cross work. A letter was read from the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto and it was decided to send a donation of $25.00 to this fund. A letter from the Navy League was also read and the members have agreed to fill sixteen ditty bags. Mrs. D. McNabb and Mrs. W. Dunbar were chosen to attend the lecture on Health Education to be held in Everton on November 8. We have invited two Institutes to be our guests at a picnic during the month of August.

The meeting was then turned over to Doris Watson who presented the following program: A community sing-song followed by a talk on musical appreciation was conducted by Mrs. Wm. Gave. Mrs. Edward Pasmore gave a talk on the motto "Mend and Make Do." Mrs. Edgar Johnston gave a demonstration on "How to Set a Table." Doris Watson read a story and a poem entitled "Kitchen." Following the closing the hostesses and committee served lunch and a social half hour was spent.

Chronicles of...

Ginger Farm

Written Specially for The Acton Free Press by GWENDOLINE P. CLARKE

It is said that we should count the day lost on which we learn nothing new.

Well, last Wednesday I learnt plenty but to say I was purred in the process is to put it mildly. You see I set out to do another big washing with my electric washer, you understand. The first time I used it I thought it was helping me but Wednesday I went at it alone. Everything went fine at first. I started the motor and left the gyator to do the work while I fed the chickens. Thinking how marvellous it was to be able to do two jobs at one time and with such ease. On my return there were the towels and things all ready to rinse. But then my troubles began.

No, I didn't get my fingers in the wringer. I had had enough warnings about that, but no one had warned me how a loose thread or a fringed edge can result in towels twisting themselves around the wringer worse than anything I ever saw. In my ignorance I saw no reason why the cotton bags I was wringing shouldn't drop down on the other side of the wringer unassisted. So I went merrily on, feeding bags and towels to the wringer without paying much attention to what they were doing. I was too busy diving for the next one to put through. Suddenly I noticed the rollers well padded with cotton bags and I mean padded. I knew very well what I was supposed to do, release the rollers, but before I could do it something happened and the wringer stopped working. I think my heart stopped too or if it didn't it was somewhere up in my mouth. "What have you done?" what kind of a stupid fool are you?" I asked myself. You see I really thought I had broken something. However, I sprung the release and then I suddenly realised that not only the wringer, but the motor had stopped. I tried to remember all the things I had ever heard about what to do when a fuse blows out because by this time it had dawned on me that that was what had really happened.

I didn't want to bother the men because they were still at the barn milking. So I went down cellar and tried to figure things out for myself. "Shut off the power," I experimented with that idea until I was certain I had it right. And glad it was it was daylight so that what I was doing didn't make itself felt at the barn!

"Remove burnt out fuse—replace with a new one."

Yes, but which fuse? There were six of them. I studied the direction of the wires and in my mind's eye I connected them with the fuse to which I thought they belonged. Decided which was which, put in new fuse, turned on the power, came upstairs, plugged in the washer and presto! away she went. The towels and bags were finally untangled and in about twenty minutes my heart beat had returned to normal. But what a lot I learnt in half an hour! Experience is a good teacher. Incidentally, had I examined the fuses more closely I would have seen that the burnt out one had turned black in the centre so I need not have worried about which was the one to replace. But that, of course, was something else I didn't know.

Of course we are right into the haying and it was such good, drying weather most of last week. Towards the end of the week we had more hay ready for the barn than Partner and young John could handle alone. That is if they were to get it in before rain came again. So we asked our local "Rep" for a Farm Commando. The one who came was strong, willing and knew what he was doing, so the men got along fine that is, until five o'clock when rain put an end to haying for that day.

Before he went our Commando remarked: "You don't know what those two home-cooked meals have meant to me, Mrs. Clarke. I live in restaurants all the time and I'm telling you, you people in the country have no idea what that really means and how sick and tired we get of it all."

I thought it was very nice of the fellow to voice his appreciation that way. He could easily have taken it all for granted.

Japan's crumbling empire in the Southwest Pacific suffered another major blow last week when Australian troops went ashore in the Balikpapan area of southeast Borneo, to win control of one of the major oil centres on the island.

Aldershot Disorders
Canadians in England had the headlines when disorders caused damage unofficially estimated at $45,000 in Aldershot's shopping district, scene of a window-smashing outbreak by Canadian repatriation troops Wednesday and Thursday nights. The city was clear of troops by the week-end and military police in the area were reinforced. Protest against repatriation delays caused by shipping shortages was blamed for the demonstrations.

British Election Held
The fate of Prime Minister Churchill's government was decided by the British electorate Tuesday, but the result of the voting will not be known until July 26—three weeks after the election. Pending news of the success or failure of the Labor Party's bid for power, Mr. Churchill left Britain for a short vacation abroad before going to the Big Three conference in Potsdam.

France was preparing to hold a national election next October, to choose a national assembly which would consider a new constitution for the French people. The new constitution would be presented to the people for approval at a national referendum at a later date.

THIS WEEK

TORONTO, July 11 (CP)—It is clear that Uncle Sam's touring nephews are coming back to Ontario in strength, driven out only by the urge to visit their neighbors to the north, but also by the dearth of consumer commodities at home which make Canadian market pastures look that much greener.

In the first few days of July American tourists crossed the border in almost pre-war strength. The advent of the first holidays following the cessation of war in Europe, the improved gasoline situation and wartime dollars burning holes in American pockets, all contributed to the 1945 boom at tourist resorts.

Estate gorpments from across the line sat down to Canadian steaks and at least one hungry Yankee produced a camera to take back a record of his July 4 dinner for the "folks back home." Next to steak dinners, woolen clothing and shoes were the most popular buys.

But the boom on the whole was confined to communities readily accessible from the border, both in Southern Ontario and in the Lakehead area. More northerly and inland points noted a definite increase in the number of American license plates along the roads, but nothing to date to compare with pre-war years.

On the provincial political scene, Farquhar Oliver, member of the Ontario legislature for Grey South, was elected Liberal House Leader at a caucus of 11 Liberal members of the legislature. Mr. Oliver, 41-year-old Priceville farmer, succeeds Mitchell Hepburn, former premier who was defeated in Elgin riding in the June 4 election.

The veteran member was first elected in Grey South in 1926 as a United Farmer member. He has represented his riding ever since, serving in the last Liberal cabinet as minister of public works and welfare. He resigned his position in the cabinet in 1942 in protest over the manner in which the premiership changed hands at the time from Mr. Hepburn to Gordon Conant.

Adverse weather conditions in the province during June have resulted in a considerable decrease in the fruit and vegetable crop in Ontario. The agricultural department reported the prolonged period of excessive moisture with general abnormal temperatures and cold winds were blamed for the drop in production. The apple crop showed a general decrease of about 65 per cent from previous years. The pear and cherry crops are down about 80 per cent and plum crops show a drop of 60 per cent.

Householders who have been experiencing heating problems since the war began will face difficulties of even greater proportions next winter when substitute fuels will have to be pressed into use to help alleviate the most acute coal shortage in the history of the province.

N. R. Zenneville, alternate director for the coal controller, says there will be no importation of Welsh coal due to shipping and employment difficulties. G. W. Craig, manager of the Toronto Coal Exchange, warns that strikes in the United States have made it impossible for American anthracite fields to produce more than 75 per cent of Ontario's annual anthracite requirements.
