By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Royal Canadian Navy disclosed details of action in the North Atlantic more than a year ago by Canadian craft which resulted in the sinking of a German U-boat.

The corvettes Chilliwack and Fenel and the frigate St. Catharines and the destroyer Galtineau figured in the engagement. Action started when the Galtineau detected a submarine and shortly afterwards observed a torpedo wake.

Depth charges from the Galtineau, the Fenel, the St. Catharines and the Chilliwack caused the U-boat to surface shortly afterwards.

A Canadian seaman, Lieut. Tim Dunn of Quebec, of the Chilliwack, manning an Oerlikon gun for the first time, scored hits on the raider's conning tower and led a boarding party to the U-boat.

After overturning their whaler in an effort to board the German ship, the Canadians managed to get to the conning tower and examine the U-boat.

The men from the Chilliwack were brought back after the sinking of the raider in a motor launch by the Chaudiere, another member of the convoy, after three whalers from the various escort ships had floundered in the heavy sea.

Result of the operation was that not a Canadian life was lost, 39 Nazi crew members were captured, and six medals and 18 mentions in dispatches were awarded for destruction of the sub.

(Case in Japan)

The past week-end brought the first attack on the Japanese home islands by a force other than aerial, when Admiral Halsey's 3rd Fleet shelled the steel city of Kamashi, only 275 miles north of Tokyo. The significant aspect of the shelling is that neither the ships nor the planes that attacked the northern home islands at the same time were opposed to any great extent.

It seems likely that the school of thought which advocates bombing alone to bring Japan to her knees may not win out, for the naval action might be a prelude to an invasion, indicated clearly by the complete reorganization of the home front.

In East Indies

British East Indies fleet ships have been bombarding the Nicobar Islands northwest of Sumatra without any opposition and indications point to an immediate invasion of the 240-mile long island chain that formerly belonged to Britain.

Chinese forces have been pushing ahead rapidly and up to Saturday had recaptured five former U.S. air bases and were within seven miles of a sixth. Authoritative sources were under the impression that the Japanese might be abandoning the whole south China coast between Indo-China and Hong Kong.

Back home Air Minister Gibson announced arrangements for the "early dispatch" of two heavy bomber and three long-range transport squadrons to the Pacific to be followed at a later date by six additional bomber squadrons as the military situation warrants.

Indian Deadlock

On the political front, London reports that the Simla conference in India, the second attempt to untie India's clashing factions, has failed. Viceroy Lord Wavell told Indian leaders he wished to make it clear "that the responsibility for the failure is mine."

Discussions deadlocked when the Moslem League insisted that all Moslems in the proposed executive council be drawn from among its members. Congress Party delegates pointed out that this would ignore its own Moslem representation and refused to go along with the Moslem League's demands.

The historic meeting of the Big Three opened this week at Potsdam, a Berlin suburb, following the arrival of Premier Stalin. Upon reaching the conference spot, Stalin conferred with President Truman in company with their ranking foreign affairs officials.

Informal talks between Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman began on Monday, when both of them arrived at Potsdam. Mr. Truman and Mr. Churchill, accompanied by advisers and high military chiefs, drove through the wreckage of Berlin, following their first meeting with the conference grounds.

The war with Japan is believed to be high on the agenda and the peace of Europe will form a large part of talks among the Big Three and their advisers and experts. There is considerable speculation regarding the role Russia will play in the Japanese war.

The British Foreign Office has denied the statement of Marshall Petain that he had a secret agreement with Prime Minister Churchill which would save him from the treason charge on which he is awaiting trial in France.

For the first time, British and American Fleet units worked together under a single command. The attack was joined by a huge B-29 fleet from the Marianas Islands.

The naval formations steamed into Tokyo waters at dawn Tuesday, Japanese time, and for hours the carrier planes blasted industrial targets and the remains of the Japanese air force.

The united attack bears out Admiral Nimitz' warning that the stage is being set for the Allied invasion.

By August 17 it is expected that the 70,000 Canadians who have volunteered for service in the Pacific theatre will be in various stages of training. Most of the volunteers will have completed their home leaves by that date.

Some Canadians already are in service in the Pacific including 900 men on the cruiser Uganda, a number with R.A.F. formations in India and Burma and another 900 army technicians and observers on various fronts in the Far East.

By the end of this month troops who will fight under Maj. Gen. H. M. Hoffmeister will be gathered for regrouping and training at Isbert, N.S., Harrietfield, Ont., and Shilo, Man.

Eastern Air Command bases in Nova Scotia have been selected as training bases for the initial eight R.C.A.F. bomber squadrons ticketed for the Pacific. The first three transport squadrons will train elsewhere.

In a recent letter to his mother, Gunner Tuck enclosed a couple of souvenirs, a German's arm-band and a byer's badge, also a complete parachute.

D. A. Roger, who was employed in the Canadian Cannery office here for some time before enlisting for overseas, was in town on Tuesday, having returned home after spending five years overseas.

Want of Water Means Less Eggs

Water for hens is an important item in egg production, particularly during hot weather. Hens require an abundance of clean, fresh water before them at all times, and especially at laying time. The early morning and afternoon. Hens have no sweat glands. They depend on their lungs to throw off body moisture. Prolonged lack of water entails parched lungs and suffering.

Lack of sufficient fresh water results in lowered egg production, and egg quality is lowered when hens are forced to drink dirty stagnant water. A hen seeks a drink of water the first thing after leaving a nest and she will drink more water when it is kept fresh than when it is changed only once a day. Every egg is wanted to meet the demand.
