CARDS OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. T. McCutcheon and family would like to thank their friends and neighbors for their acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy and floral tributes at the time of their recent bereavement.

--And this is May, the fifth month of 1946. --May came in yesterday with some beautiful early summer weather. --Change of mail time makes a rather late morning start for the average business.

NEW IDEAS

Towns should not remain too well satisfied with their present achievements. Some people may say that existing conditions were good enough in former years and hence are good enough now.

CULTIVATING TALENTS

It is a fine thing for a young person to develop some talent so well as to attract attention and win admiration. If a boy is not specially good at athletics, he may have an aptitude for music, and be able to play some instrument well.

Solves Mystery of "Sewry" Letters

Fate Aids Edmontonian in Tracing Incorrect Addresses

EDMONTON (CP) Frank Stone of Edmonton's postal staff now has good reason to believe in fate. He's been dubbed the "sewry" letter sleuth by his fellow workers because, for the second time in four months, he's found two addresses and both in unexpected places.

For some time Mr. Stone had been dealing with incorrectly-addressed letters intended for a returned Edmonton soldier and mailed from the Netherlands. He made every effort to find the addressee, but one day, when another wrongly-addressed letter was added to the growing pile, the harassed tracer threw up his hands in despair and decided to go out for coffee.

While sitting at the counter, Mr. Stone fell into conversation with a man beside him. The man threw his discharge papers on the counter, remarking, "There, I'm out." In the ensuing conversation, Mr. Stone was asked where he worked, and replied he was a post office employee.

"That's where my brother works," said the man. Mr. Stone investigated and found a co-worker was the very man for whom he had been looking.

A similar letter mystery was solved in December, when Mr. Stone discovered the man assigned to help him during the Christmas rush turned out to be one for whom he had been looking for more than 3 months.

IDEAL MAPLE GROVE

The ideal maple grove should fulfill the following seven requirements: The area should be completely filled with sugar maple trees with fully developed crowns. The canopy of leafy crowns should allow little sunshine to fall upon the ground, thereby discouraging the growth of grass and weeds.

Maple trees of all ages should cover the area. The old mature trees are the mainstay. The younger ones take their places. Roadways through the grove help in the collection of the sap and reduce the usual difficulties with underbrush. Live stock should be rigidly excluded from the sugar bush. The bush should be thinned to allow only the trees necessary for replacement to remain. An unthinned border at least 25 feet wide on all sides should be left as a windbreak, which serves as a safeguard against storms.

PRISONERS STRAY FARMER CAUTIONED

ST. JOHN'S, Que. (CP) - Residents of this town some 20 miles south-east of Montreal were more than surprised recently to see two fully uniformed German soldiers strolling unaccompanied through the streets.

It turned out, however, that the two men, prisoners of war, had been employed by a Ste. Blaise, Que., farmer a short time previously. The farmer, who brought the prisoners to town and left them to their own devices, was cautioned to stick more closely to conditions under which the two men were placed under his care.

RUGGED BUSHMAN BAGS 400 BEARS

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) - If that rug on your living room floor resembles a bear, it might be one that was shot by 74-year-old Tom Roberts of Haliburton.

Mr. Roberts, who says deer is not "in my line", has over 400 bear hides, most of them now floor rugs in various parts of the world, to his credit. He thinks it great sport trapping and hunting bear.

"I'll never forget when a big 200-pound bear got tangled in one of my traps," he said. "It lugged that heavy 20-pound trap on one leg and a heavy piece of log on another through bush and swale for half a mile. You would think the bush had been struck by an atomic bomb."

His keen eyesight is evidenced by the fact that he shot, he said, three 200-pound bears last spring, some 200 yards from a farmer's fence, three others on a public highway, 100 feet distant, and three others in a small bush.

ENGLISH PUB LAUNDED

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) - Women workers in women's beverage rooms were advocated by Chief Constable C. E. Bagnal who declared that if the beer parlors are to prevail they should be operated on a same basis similar to the English pub.

CRANBROOK, B. C. (CP) - A 99 per cent. increase in live stock shipments from West Kootenay has been reported here for the year 1945. Live stock shipments throughout the province showed a 22 per cent. increase.

DIAMOND AUGURS BRIGHT FUTURE

Diamond, the symbol of light, is the most important of the precious stones. The standard of perfection in color for this gem is pure white, but extremely minute quantities of iron oxide present will alter the color to a more common variety of pale yellow. Several crystals, both cut or in their natural state can be seen in the gem cases at the Royal Ontario Museum.

The Diamond, the April birthstone, is believed to bring good fortune to the wearer, but only when received as a gift pledging love or friendship.

OBSERVING THE NEIGHBORS

Some people used in former times to complain about life in rural neighborhoods and country towns, that some of their neighbors used to be too keenly interested in their little doings. They said that their movements were constantly noted and speculated about, and they did not care to live under this close observation.

It could be said for these neighbors that this observation was in most cases very friendly. They were quick to offer sympathy if one was in trouble, or practical aid if needed. In countless cases they would go to some sick man's house and do needed chores. Country people are still as friendly and helpful as ever in such ways, but modern life has brought them in close touch with the world, and most of them are too busy to spend time watching their neighbors.

BEE SWARM ATTACKS ELDERLY SCHOOLMARM

JOHANNESBURG (CP) - An elderly school teacher, alone in her classroom in an East Rand school, saw a large swarm of bees fly through the doorway. She fled from the room, pursued by the bees and in her haste fell and injured her hip. She lay on the path, unable to move, while the bees settled on her in hundreds.

Four young men went to the rescue and managed to move the teacher a few yards, but were driven back by the bees. They made a fresh attempt, picked up the woman and carried her to safety.

The teacher was rushed to hospital where she now is recovering from her damaged hip and more than 200 bee stings on her face and neck. One of her rescuers had 50 stings on his hands and face.

STREAMLINED HEATING IN ANCIENT ROME

Some of our more enterprising architects have begun to heat houses by warming floors and walls, thus producing a very uniform effect with a minimum of dirt and draught in the rooms. Two hot air flues from a similar system are on exhibition in the Royal Ontario Museum; they come from a Roman villa in Britain and date from the second century A.D. The principle was invented by a noted epicure, Sergius Orata, who lived about 100 B.C. In the system as employed by the Romans, the floor was supported on a forest of small pillars about two feet high. The hot air from the furnace circulated among the pillars and then rose through terracotta flues set in the thickness of the walls. The floor was extremely thick, consisting of as much as a foot of concrete resting on large tiles and surfaced with mosaic, so that it maintained a very even temperature.

This system of heating was used chiefly for bath rooms both private houses and public bathing establishments and was carried by the Romans to every part of the Empire, from Syria to Britain.
