Another Small Town Advantage

From time to time we have put forth the many advantages to be found by distribution of industries in the smaller communities rather than concentration dangerously close to the brink of an era in which of industry in cities in large groups. They are the cities large enough to be prime targets if another war comes. They are communities which, to date, have grown up with no thought whatever of possible attack from the air. As a result, most of them are extraordinarily vulnerable—especially to atomic destruction."

The Milk Shortage

- The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates that milk production in Canada will-be-16.6 billion-pounds in 1946, or one billion pounds less than in 1945. That simply means that there will be an increasing shortage of butter for domestic use and of cheese for export.

A gloomy outlook is relieved by one bright spot. ville Banner. The output of flour in Canada reached a new high record in October.

The connection between flour and milk is quite an important one, The only alternative supplies of grain feed for livestock, if oats and barley are going to be scarce are the by-products of flour millingbrankshorts and the like. As the milling of wheat grows in Canada, so does the supply of feeds. On the other hand, the more wheat we export as grain and not as flour, the shorter we are of mill feeds.

Battleline

A resolute campaign is being fought to sever the group to Milton High School. Jinks which bind Britain and the United States. The main inspirers of this campaign, determined at any cost to split Britain and America apart, are those who are also trying to fasten a materialistic ideology on the carth.

But the real threat to democracy, comes from over the week-end. within, not without. For democracy is not a mere system of votes; economics or politics. It is a way of life." Freedom is possible only when millions of people think and tive selflessly for their community rather than selfishly for themselves. And nowadays. we, the democratic peoples do not always live in the way which makes the birth and survival of freedom possible.

. The urgent need is for the peoples of the demporacies to accept and live their own inspired ideology. They will not then need to fear the materialistic ideologies of race or class rule. For the ideology of democracy is bigger than any sectional power bid: It belongs to all classes and races. It belongs to all free people everywhere.

It alone can bridge the gulfs which to-day appear to be widening between the nations. It is as universal as human nature and it means changes in all human nature: It is the one idea big enough to unite all the peoples of the world.

"Thrift" On Way Out

An important and widely-quoted editorial on the subject of Thrift vs. Paternalism comes from the pen; of W. L. Clark, editorial writer for the Windsor Daily Star. We are glad to pass it on to our readers:

"There was a day when thrift was the motivating force of most human beings. It was so because it would and did pay big returns. There was an incentive for the average man or woman to work hard; to use initiative and inventive genius to save money. That quality, however, has become almost a drug on the market to-day. It is difficult to convince anyone that it is worth the effort.

"There is a certain responsibility on the state to provide security for its citizens. Certainly, they should receive some of the benefit from the taxes they pay. But there is danger of going to senseless extremes, to the lasting detriment of our national

"This country was not built up under a regime of paternalism." It was made great by people who had to depend on their own unaided efforts, who could attain security only by the lifelong practice of industry, initiative and thrift. We are coming

Punctuality-It's a Virtue

The inherent human failing of "always being late" Is one which individuals might do well to "You are lucky because you live in the country or correct at this the beginning of a new year. How in one of the smaller towns or cities where fear of often one hears or himself makes the remark, "Oh," a direct hit by an atomic bomb doesn't bother you nobody will be there on time, anyway, so we don't too greatly. But four million Canadians aren't so need-to-fush." Too long has it been fashionable to

Whether it's a hockey game, concert, or a meeting-

The same rules should apply for work or play. The habit of being "late for work" is a practice altogether too common and results in the loss of hundreds of thousands of "man hours" throughout the year, a trade journal points out. "Ten or fifteen minutes a day doesn't seem like much time, but in a week it may amount to an hour and a half or more per individual, and, with the already short working week the efficiency of any industrial plant or any business supplying goods or services is adversely affected. The employee who is on time all the time does better for himself and better for his employer." -
