BERRY PICKERS IN FORMER TIMES

Some of the older people get to talking about the youthful occupations by which they first began earning money. Some of them tell about picking berries in those days, and of the pleasure it gave them to be out where the birds were singing and the bees humming, and perhaps a woodchuck emerged from his hole and observed them. Nature charmed them in these scenes, and the picture still lingers in their minds.

The youngsters to concentrate on their work. Some of them would put so many berries in their mouths, that the product collected in their pails was not as large as could have been hoped. The berry pickers observed the ways birds and vegetation as they picked, and they learned something about Nature. The work of picking trained their eyes to see and fingers to pick the berries quickly.

COMMUNITY BUILDERS

A town owes a great debt to all who have built it up in past and recent years. There is an enormous debt to those who have created industries and employed labour, and their splendid enterprise and ambition have made the town development possible, and their service can not be too highly praised. Then all who have erected home and business buildings, or who have worked for any form of development, are community builders to whom high praise is due. There is also a type of community builders to whom the town is deeply indebted, consisting of all who have organized and maintained churches, fraternal societies, and clubs and associations of many types. They have provided the town with essential features, and have added immeasurably to the life of the community.
