TO CURE HICCUPS

Hiccups can be stopped by inhaling amyl nitrite—even the alcoholic kind of hiccups. Amyl nitrite is a heart medicine. Dr. R. C. Nairn, while a lieutenant surgeon in the British Navy, demonstrated the drug's effectiveness when standard methods failed to relieve hiccups in a stoker. In a desperate search for some remedy, Dr. Nairn examined his stock of medicines for an anti-spasmodic that had not been tried. His eye fell on amyl nitrite. He gave it to his patient. It worked. When he landed in Great Britain, Nairn searched the literature and found that others before him had found that the inhalation of amyl nitrite works like a charm in cases of hiccups.

Presumably, it will not be long until the remedy will be on the shelves of every doctor and druggist and those who suffer habitually from hiccups will be having in a supply for their medicine chest.

Mainly, hiccups are a source of entertainment in the family circle, for the attack does not last long and the victim is the butt of merriment as he or she attempts to control the spasm. But they can be serious. In the only case of its kind of which we learned, a man was in the hospital for several days before they were able to cure him of an attack of hiccups.

The discovery of an instant cure will make it harder than ever for movie comedians to be funny. One of their last stock-in-trades was hiccups and it was always good for a laugh when a comedian staged an imaginary attack of hiccups on the stage. Now, if this were attempted, our bright youngsters are apt to cry out "Give him a dose of amyl nitrite" as they look with disgust and disdain on a hiccup scene which they know is forged because they possibly have learned at home that it can be overcome simply and effectively.

July Traffic Deaths Show Sharp Decrease From '46

Are Mr. and Mrs. Ontario finally learning that care, courtesy and common sense while driving and walking saves lives and injuries? Perhaps it is too early to judge; but reports from the Ontario press show that 22 fewer persons were killed in traffic accidents last month than in July, 1946 when 64 lost their lives. Of those killed last month, 14 were pedestrians, five of these being children under twelve. Four of the victims were cyclists.

Vacation ended tragically for tourists from Ohio when their car went out of control and turned over 30 miles south of North Bay, killing the driver, John Merkle and his 11-year-old son.

A Toronto minister's son was hurled 21 feet by a car and instantly killed. The victim, Stanley Greenslade, was struck as he was walking back to his own car parked on the side of the highway.

The life of 13-year-old Leonard Rummery ran out its course when he was struck by a car near Collingwood. Leonard had recently been awarded a scholarship, as the best student in his class.

Oshawa had its first traffic fatality of the year last month when 72-year-old Herbert Mathews was struck down near the C.P.R. depot.

Dorcen Thompson will never go to high school. Last June, the 14-year-old girl graduated from a Toronto public school. She was killed as she fell from her bicycle into the path of an ice truck.

Tragedy marked the fourth of July holiday for a Buffalo woman and the 4-year-old lad she ran over at Victoria Harbour, Little William Arthur died on his way to hospital.

Another 4-year-old, Roger Heaney, was instantly killed at Aurora when struck down by a car near his home. Dora Stover, 14, riding on the back of her brother's motorcycle, was killed near Beachville when the vehicle skidded beneath the wheels of a truck.

Riding his bicycle on No. 11 Highway near Fennell's Corners, Charles McKenzie, 19, was fatally injured by collision with a car.

Jack Whyte, 31, drove his motorcycle into a radial switch on North Yonge Street and died of a fractured skull.

Mrs. Marie Schuler of Toronto and her son, Ronald, were instantly killed when the car in which they were passengers smashed into a freight train.

But 22 fewer people were killed last month than in July 1946.

Plan September Meeting for Acton Swimming Pool

heartily in accord. It was planned to call the meeting in September. Repairs to the municipal truck were considered and it was deemed advisable to install a new motor. Other repairs were required and an overall repair was advisable.

Commissioner MacArthur and Superintendents Wilson and Laubert of the Public Utilities Commission were present to discuss material problems. The installation of an underground service in the park for Fall Fair and other events was discussed. Mr. Wilson said this could not be done this year as delivery on materials was six months. Three or four electrical openings would be needed. The Commission agreed to furnish a price on this work. The Commission agreed to install the poles this year provided they were given immediate decision on where the installation was required. The clerk was to notify the Fall Fair secretary to write the Commission giving their requirements.

The Commission also desired to know the requirements for Wartime Housing. The contract with Wartime Housing was reviewed and a map was to be supplied the Commission of the street lines. Details in connection with hydro and water installations were discussed by Council and Commission.

The Council by resolution instructed the Commission to bond the treasurer for the municipality. A delegation representing ratepayers on North Main Street presented a petition requesting a sidewalk on the west side of Main Street. This sidewalk would run from River St. to the boundary. Council pointed out the difficulties of securing cement. The Cameron Street sidewalk was to have first consideration and the delegation were willing to wait their turn.

The delegation requested that speed limit signs be erected on Main Street North and that police protection be given in speeding in this section. Council agreed to write the Railway Board to see if the Main Street railway crossing could be improved.

SUMMER OF 1947 HAS HAD PLENTY OF HOT WEATHER

The weather this past week hasn't been unusually hot, it's been just as hot as usual. For the last two weeks, ninety has been a fairly reasonable point for the mercury to stop at. But it hasn't been stoppy at ninety very often. It seems as though we can't even have a nice dry heat. Along with the soaring temperatures has come humidity which has climbed along with the mercury.

Thunder storms and heavy rains did their best to break the heat, but failed miserably in lowering the temperature in any noticeable degree.
