O Lord, my rock and my redeemer. Lesson Text .- Jas. 3: 16; 4: 4-10. Exposition. - I. "Be not many teachers," 3: 1-5. James does not say that no Christian shall be a teacher, but that the body of believers should not be a multitude of teachers, every one desiring to teach others and none willing to learn from others. Every man should be swift to hear, slow to speak (ch. 1: 19). The position of the tencher is one no man has a right to take upon himself (1 Cor. 12: 28; Eph. 4: 11; 1 Cor. 12: 8-11). The true church of Christ will be a multitude reultitude of teachers. James, according to tradition, was a man who spent so much time in prayer that his knees were found to be calloused like those yet this holy man puts himself right and passions. From suggestive literathings we all stumble" (v. 2 R.V.).

he contrary to the will of God (1 Jno. 3: 9). The tongue is the hardest member of the body to bring under control, and the last to yield to the constraining grace of God. How many saintly people there are who have not yet learned the complete mastery of the tongue. As a big horse is managed by a small bit, and a big vessel is minnaged by a small rudder, so a big man is managed by a small

The fires of hell are kindled by the idle words that set men thinking wrong about God and sin and Christ and the Bible. The destructive critics to-day by their profound scholarly but really perverse and subversive words are kindling fires of unbelief of learners (disciples) rather than a and sin. Men are usually enreful how they handle fire but most of us are careless about how we use our tongues. The tongue itself "is set on fire by helf."
