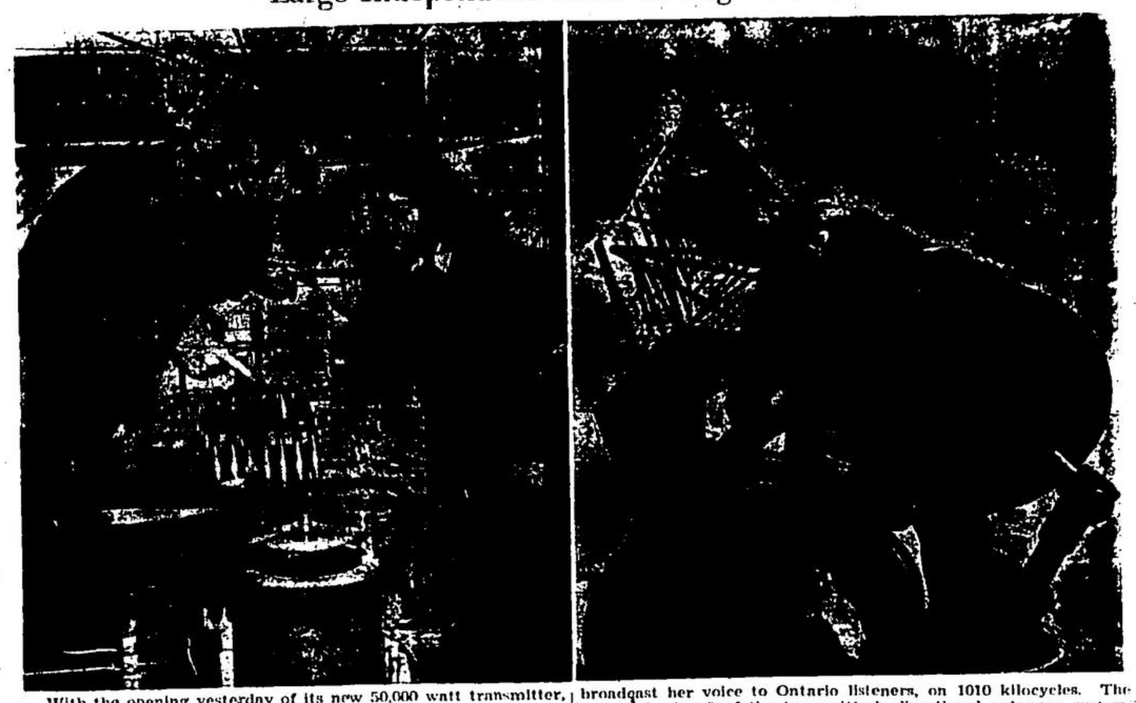
Large Independent Broadcasting Station



With the opening yesterday of its new 50,000 watt transmitter, CFRB, Toronto, becomes the British Commonwealth's most powerful independent radio station. Here Clive Eastwood, CFRB engineer shows singing star Beth Corrigan part of the $500,000 installation which will broadcast her voice to Ontario listeners, on 1010 kilocycles. The big coil is the heart of the transmitter's directional antennae system. At right he makes a last minute inspection of one of the four, 250 feet-high, steel transmitting towers.

Odds and Ends

—Several loads of gravel have greatly improved the roads about town.

—Many went from here yesterday to see the train wreck in Georgetown.

—The Ex is quite the attraction for many these days and all say it's a great show.

—A drop of 40 degrees from Saturday until Monday was a pretty quick weather change.

—Small quantities of brick are being delivered and some progress made on the new addition at the High School here.

—Watch for story and pictures next week of a new installation in an Acton industry. The only one of its kind in Canada.

—Fire in the town dump on the third line gave the Fire Brigade a run on Sunday afternoon, although little could be done except let the rubbish burn itself away.

$80,000 FOR INVENTORS OF FLAIL TANKS

Ten men — five of them South Africans—will receive a total of £20,000 ($80,000) free of tax for the invention of the flail tank which was used during the war for clearing minefields. Granting of this sum has just been recommended by the Royal Commission on Awards.

"NEW LOOK" IN COSMETICS

Was the much-publicized "pink look" for summer cosmetics a success or a failure?

The answer is yes and no, depending on how you look at it, according to Drug Merchandising, the druggists' business newspaper. As an interesting new theme in cosmetics and fitting complement to the new fashions, it has been a success. As an entirely new trend, supplanting the demand for darker and more vivid make-up, it has been a failure.

This conclusion is based upon a careful survey, during which Drug Merchandising interviewed businesswomen, homemakers, teenagers, cosmetic salesgirls and an outstanding make-up expert.

"I find it hard to believe that women are going to go 'pink' just because someone tells them to do so," said the expert, adding that "women will still wear red if it is their best color."

"THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING" IN SOCIALIST AUSTRALIA

(The Canadian Statesman)

An Australian woman went from Brisbaine to Melbourne to visit her son. She took with her, and banked in Melbourne, £1,000 — roughly $4,000.

Then the State reached in and took all but four dollars of it. To be exact, the Commonwealth rifled her bank account of nine hundred and ninety nine pounds and four shillings—leaving her exactly 16 shillings!

It happened — in socialist Australia—a couple of years or so ago.

Newspaper clippings say the woman "was flabbergasted." We'll bet she was—for nobody on behalf of the State had said a word to her. There was no process of law—no court action, no judgment, no garnishee.

It happened she hadn't made an income tax return—maybe she hadn't income enough to require a return. There was no proof she owed a shilling. She said she had saved the money over a period of years. But snooper-state officials learned she had a thousand pounds in the bank and a Socialist tax department under Premier Chifley simply took it nearly all.

Nobody has any use for a tax-dodger, but you must prove him a tax-dodger first. As the Sydney Daily Telegraph said, the Socialist government's attitude was:

"Just grab what she's got. No —not all of it—leave her sixteen bob. Then if she wants to set up a squeal, she can."

Now if a Socialist government will do that kind of snooping and grabbing while banks are in private hands and snooping can only be done the hard way—what on earth will it not do if the banks are nationalized and every bank employee — from junior clerk to manager — becomes a State official?

Of course, the money may have been in the Commonwealth Bank —which is government owned—since the Commonwealth Bank is the only savings bank operating in the States of New South Wales and Queensland. If so, then the object-lesson takes an even sharper point.

Premier Chifley is now trying to nationalize all the trading banks in Australia; his legislation is before the High Court of the Commonwealth and will likely go to Privy Council in a test of its validity. Australians are showing great hostility because they feel that with one nationalized bank accounts of individual customers would be under control of the government of the day—with all sorts of abuses possible.

When we wrote our recent editorial saying we didn't want our bank manager to be a government officer, we had no idea that within a couple of weeks we'd get such clinching "proof of the pudding," nor did we expect the C.C.F. to stick its neck out the way they have. A friend in Australia sent it to us in a letter with clippings of the row it raised.—The Canadian Statesman.

SILO COVER

Mat made of Vinylite sheeting is placed on top of silage while curing in silo, reports The Financial Post. Maker says mat, by conserving the natural heat of fermentation and preventing evaporation, reduces the danger of frost to a minimum and preserves freshness of the silage.

STILL WRITING

A doctor had an urgent phone call from a gentleman saying his small son had swallowed his fountain pen.

"All right! I'll come at once," replied the doctor. "What are you doing in the meantime?"

Whereto came the unexpected answer, "Using a pencil".

The Main Street of Acton has taken on a new look with the addition of two new stores in the old theatre building. This week the new look travelled up the street to a new store being opened by Mahers.

We are replacing an old for a new truck to improve our service. If you notice it running around minus a platform you will see that our customers' work comes before our own.

Are you planning to lay linoleum or tile. We have an ample supply of untempered masonite or plywood suitable for underlay.

See you midnite Sunday at the Acton Park Pavilion.
