POPULATION TRENDS

The population of England and Wales, says the monthly commentary of the United Kingdom Information Office, has increased from 16,000,000 to 43,000,000 in the last hundred years. One of the main reasons for this increase has been the remarkable decline in infant mortality. A century ago, for every 1,000 babies born, 153 failed to survive the first year. Last year, the infant mortality rate reached the all-time low record of 41 per 1,000. Another reason for the increase in population has been the steadily improving rate of survival. Today, the expectation of life for men is 59 and for women 63 years. A hundred years ago, it was 40 and 42 respectively.

In 1836, a national system of registration of births, marriages and deaths was introduced in Britain shortly afterwards the first nationwide census of population was taken. From that date until today, the General Register Office has kept records which give an accurate picture of the state of Britain's population throughout the years.

Information published in the Registrar General's quarterly returns throws light on many aspects of life and health of the people. It shows they can expect to live longer, marry later and enjoy better health than their ancestors. Statistics also reveal considerable changes in the frequency of deaths due to certain diseases.

An outstanding example of what can be achieved when sustained effort is made to eradicate a particular disease is reflected in the mortality figures for diphtheria. At the beginning of this century, some 65 out of every 100,000 children under 15 were dying out of this scourge. Between the two world wars the rate was still as high as 29. But, as the direct result of the large-scale immunization campaign launched by the Ministry of Health during the recent war, the rate was down to four in 1946. Last year only 2 in every 100,000 died from diphtheria.

There are 3,000,000 radios in Canada, about one for every four persons.

KNOX CHURCH CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS STARTS NEW SEASON

The So-Ed Club of Knox Church resumed its activities on Wednesday evening of last week, with the former president, Miss Isabel Anderson, presiding and the last season's executive in charge.

Mr. Bill Malnprize and Capt. Anderson led in the devotions. The president read a letter of appreciation from Mrs. (Dr.) C. H. McDonald of Lucknow, regarding the kindness shown to her late sister, Miss Marion McDougall, who last season was secretary of the club. Rev. J. M. Anderson entertained the audience with letters received by him from pupils of Gorgie School, Edinburgh, Scotland, in answer to the parcel which the church had sent. These letters were of special interest because of Mr. Anderson's personal connection with the school in his youth.

Mr. Crawford Douglas rendered a fine piano solo and Rev. Anderson and Mr. Ted Hansen conducted a period of song. Mrs. Wm. Hall demonstrated the fact that a duet does not always require two performers by playing a duet on the piano and harmonica. She further proved her unusual versatility by drawing the strains of an Irish air from an Irish jig. A "Sliken Route Through the East" was enjoyed and the following executive were elected for the coming season: Honorary President, Rev. Capt. J. M. Anderson; President, Miss Isabel Anderson; Vice-President, Miss Bella Rozzell; Secretary, Mr. Bill Malnprize; Treasurer, Miss Inez McCallan; Pianist, Mr. Ted Hansen; Group Leaders, Mrs. Wm. Hall, Mr. Russell Patterson, Miss Marguerite Rozzell and Mr. Clarence Coles.

A generous lunch brought the happy evening to a close.
