BUGS ARE BUGS

The popular conception that human beings are of primary importance gets many sad shocks. One of these occurred in the dying days of the last session of the United States Congress. Two appropriations were passed. One provided $492,000 to fight the Long Island potato bug. The other provided $500,000 for the fight against heart disease. Just how much trouble and loss the potato bug occasions we do not know. We know the record of heart disease better. It affects one in every sixteen persons in the population, causes one out of every three deaths and the loss of ten or twelve million work days a year. Of course bugs are bugs and, according to some scientists, are one day to inherit the earth. But it does seem that we who provide the money might give ourselves a break. - J.L.R.
