Chronicles of... Ginger Farm

Written Specially for The Acton Free Press OWENDOLINE P. CLARKE

Nice weather is with us yet—a little showery maybe, but not too cold, in fact it is just grand for fall wheat, which we notice is growing greener and sturdier every day. There is nothing like a well started field of fall wheat to relieve the drabness of the dying year. The wheat's fresh green-ness has a way of fostering new hope and enthusiasm for the year to come. No matter what the harvest of the present year has been, whatever the setbacks of the past, a farmer is conscious of an uplift of spirit when he looks around his fields and finds promise there for the year to come.

And how greatly we need a little assurance these days. The world is in such a turmoil no matter in what direction we turn—and why? Always we are appalled when we hear of some terrible disaster, or the devastation left by flood waters. Yet these tragedies, entirely beyond our power to prevent, are not as far-reaching, nor as great, as the suffering and unrest caused by conditions created by man—conditions which are seldom based on the laws laid down for our guidance in the Ten Commandments.

It is such a beautiful world we live in—with everything in it necessary to sustain life for everyone; and yet because we do not make proper use of it's bounty half of the world suffers. Maybe too many of us want to be "lilies of the field". You know, there was a time when, to describe a person as being independent we used to say "Oh, he likes to paddle his own canoe". Now people still like their own canoe but these days the paddles must be mechanized—and that takes away part of the independence; other people enter into the picture in the manufacture of the motor, repairs, and replacements. Not much independence for the man with the canoe if he must or spatters out and dries, and he doesn't know how to fix it!

Independence is such a relative term. No one is really independent these days. You can't read or hear the news and think to yourself—"oh well, that doesn't concern me". World conditions have become so involved that everything that happens now concerns everyone, everywhere. The devaluation of the pound—think what that means to English people who have come to Canada during the last few years and who can only bring their money from England over a period of years. The new rate of exchange hits them badly—depending upon how much money they have. Of course it works just the other way for the person who wants to buy an English car. But then, not everyone wants to buy a car.

The change in the dollar valuation also affects our mail, but in ways that may not be apparent right at first—except when we fill up at the gas station! And how the steel strike takes the spotlight, and unless it is settled quite soon, it won't be long before we realize how that, too, ties in with our everyday problems. Pretty soon, when we need something for the house or farm, we shall hear that old familiar cry, heard so often during the war—"Sorry, ma'am, we just can't promise you anything—manufacturers can only get steel for the most essential goods. The strike, you know."

And then there is this business of daylight and standard time. We did not worry much about it—Toronto and Hamilton both being on fast time, with our district sort of wedged in between, and also on fast time, we did not foresee any inconvenience. But the other day we did not get our mail until dinner. We just thought the mailman had probably had car trouble. But the next day the mail was late again so I started making inquiries. Yes, it was all on account of the time mix-up. The train schedules change with the time but other years we have not noticed the difference because we have all made the change together. So that's that—we don't really mind staying on fast time if it is necessary, but we do dislike getting our mail so late. Some people like pickles with their meals—Partner likes his paper. And so does Rob for that matter. In fact Partner takes one section of the morning paper and Rob the other. I take anything else that happens to come along—sometimes a magazine, sometimes a letter or two and occasionally only advertising—that way I read a lot of advertising that I otherwise would not bother with at all. Of course, in between times we do manage to eat our dinner. But now it is different... I can't depend on the paper to occupy my menfolk's attention while I dish up the dinner, which is an awful nuisance because now I must have dinner right on the dot—or else... I shall be glad to go back to standard time.

And before I close—congratulations. Acton on your splendid fair. We none of us were able to get there but I hear you had a wonderful fair. And such a beautiful day! I was thinking about you, and was so glad the weather was warm and fine.

MILTON

Prominent in musical circles and well-known in Milton for his work with the Milton Male Choir, Alex. Fudwell of Trinity College, was ordained last Sunday to the Order of Deacon in the Church of England in Canada at St. James' Church, Chatham (Port aux Basques), Newfoundland.

Happiness and excitement of Fair day were soon shattered when parents were notified of an unfortunate accident that happened to their son, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krantz of Milton, Heilinger won their young daughter, the highest honors in the three to six months class of the Baby Show, were enjoying the events of the day when they were told their fine-and-half year old son, Bobby had been struck on the head by a car on the Airplane ride operating on the midway.

AN OLD FLOWER

Chrysanthemums were probably first cultivated in China and introduced from there into Japan in the eighth century. It was not until the end of the seventeenth century that they seem to have been grown in Europe.

In 1890 six varieties were grown in Holland but they appear to have been allowed to die out, for they were not heard of in Europe until about one hundred years later. In 1780 three varieties were introduced into France, and one of these found its way to England. During the next twenty years a number of the varieties came to England direct from China and Japan, and in 1830 the first all-chrysanthemum flower show was held in that country. Varieties now available are numbered in the thousands and new ones are added to the list every year.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS by Don Graham. Why is it that some people accomplish big things and get what they want out of life, while others just drift and wait for things? The trouble is, most of us are too easily discouraged. But if we accept difficulties as challenges to our ability and determination we will develop new powers. So add "the will to win" to your technical knowledge, skill and hard work. You'll triple your chances of success! Life insurance agents know we all tend to put off doing things—even when we realize that we ought to do them. Today thousands of families enjoy security because agents continued to remind them of their need for life insurance.
