COLOR TELEVISION NOW PRACTICABLE

Colour television was publicly shown for the first time in Britain recently at London's Radiolympia. The new device, made by the Eya-organization in Cambridge, England, depends on three colour-mechanical scanning. It was developed after years of experiments and employs, both in the camera and the receiver, rapidly rotating coloured discs. These superimpose the colours which in the viewer's eye is a full variegated picture. Colours of fibres and fabrics, texture of skin, the various parts of the human body come through true to life. The system works at present on a closed circuit principle. That is, colour vision is transmitted from a special camera by wires to receiving sets.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

by Don Graham

Everyone should bluff sometimes!
Of course I do not approve of the kind of bluffing which conceals unworthy motives. But, in certain situations, I think it is desirable and even necessary to hide our real feelings from others.
For example, a doctor of my acquaintance always appeared to be in good spirits. Highly successful and widely beloved in his community, he radiated cheerfulness and goodwill to all. And his conversation was invariably spiced with humorous comments and stories.
Yet for the last ten years of his life this man was suffering from an incurable and painful disease! No one except his wife knew his fatal secret, a secret he kept to the very end.
What a magnificent bluff! What an inspiring example for all of us to follow when we are ill, out of fortune, worried or depressed!
By the same token, surely it is also a good policy to conceal most of our minor disappointments, annoyances, and dislikes.
If you are at all concerned about your own or your family's financial security, do not conceal that fact from anyone. Confide in your life insurance agent. He's a trained and willing advisor who can help you build a sound financial plan for the future.
