It should be news to no one that 1950 puts competition back into business, that salesmen who, for a decade, haven't had to do much more than go through the motions, now have to get their socks pulled up tight and high.

But a great deal has happened since sales manship was last in flower.

"There has never been so 'fast' a market in all history," Advertising Age wisely observes "Today's darling-product can become tomorrow's dog almost in the twinkling of an eye."

Synthetic detergents, which have raised unmerry revolution in the whole scaps field are just one example. Says Advertising Age:

"Packaged vitamins moved into a commanding position overnight and then moved out again so quickly that a score of manufacturers who one day thought they had a handsome new profit maker, woke up the very next day to discover they had a very large, and very costly white elephant on their hands. Antihistamines and ammoniated dentifrices, within recent months, have gone a long way to create chaos in the coldremedy and dentifrice fields, with long-term results which cannot yet be assessed. Toni almost singlehandedly has changed the whole complex ion of the beauty shop business, and even now there are vague indications that changes in women's hair styling may have a serious effect upon the growth potentials of the home permanent wave, including Toni "The fact is and it is a most significant fact -that in the consumer goods field particularly, competition between brands and products has never been so savage and so swift in its effects "

But this selling by hysteria is panicking many into very unsound policies

Have a good product, keep it up to date, sell it soundly and thoroughly, build enduring loyalty for the brand name. Don't be panicked by up start competitors whose products may have a sudden rocketlike rise, ending as rockets do in the equally swift descent of a useless, worn out

There is too much high-pressure selling for the permanent good of business. Dealers are being blitzed into overstocking products by full page ads in the daily papers, that cease as soon at the merchants are loaded up.

Salesmanship calls for aggressiveness, color ful appeals, and awareness of immediate trends But in the long run what counts is sound mer chandising and a solid base of consumer confidence, built on a good product and a public's continuing awareness of its merits.

Washday Miracle

We have a radio in the car because we thought it would be nice to listen to the programs. between four and six o'clock on our trips between Acton and Milton. We soon fired, however, of listening to the soap programs that fill the air at this hour and the radio wasn't any particular use.

The past week we've been doing a bit of the housekeeping duties and recalled the washday miracles we used to hear about from the afternoon radio. It was the first opportunity we had to try them and we found several boxes and brands in the section of the basement called the laundry. So many kinds were there it was a bit puzzling to know which and how much to use. So we consulted with family friends who do family washings each week. Some used one kind, some another and some measured it by the cup or a certain small can or just so many handfuls. So the confusion grew. What a bunch of washing compounds we have these; days. No wonder the air is full of them every day. .

We found a small can. There were four kinds of soap powders or flakes but we thought three ought to be sufficient for a start and if the water wasn't soapier and the clothes brighter and more radiant, we still had an ace to play in the fourth kind in making them sparkle: How those radio programs seemed to come into reality as we threw in the mixture-every one a sure fire ingredient for a brighter, lovelier wash.

Well, we didn't need to play our ace but we know that the clothes weren't as white as our wife hangs on the clothes-line each week. Washdays have their miracles but we are more inclined (from one experience) to think that it's the hand that does the washing that performs the miracle.

Will It Take a Bomb?

In the days of Free Trade between city and country, the country was a reasonably prosperous place in which to live and raise a family.

In the country, folks were content to work a bit harder and a bit longer to take care of the extra cost of delivering their produce to the city manager at the bank in Hamilton

In the city, manufacturers and merchants knew that rural business was important and their costs would have to be controlled so that country folk could afford to buy in sufficient volume to Feep urban commerce profitable

That was in the days of free trade

Before the government bureaucrats and the unions stepped in.

Now manufacturers in unionized industries, have to pay about the same rate of wages and work the same hours whether their plants are located in the remote village or in a large metro politan centre. As a result, with the economic advantages of the smaller community gone, in austry has centralized to protect itself.

We have through our government condoned this trend. We have, in fact, encouraged it by of Mr Peter Gibbons, Esquesing giving the force of law to such industry-wide bargaining agreements. Government-approved transportation rate schedules have similarly reduced the competitive advantage of certain comniunities. Municipalities have been restricted by Milton will secure an Important Inprovincial legislation in attempts to encourage dustry industry to locate outside the major cities.

While Great Britain has, in face of an atomic age, given legislative encouragement to decentralization, Canada's metropolitan areas continue to expand.

Will a bomb be necessary to awaken our ecnomoic and social common sense?

The Lenten Season

Last Wednesday was Ash Wednesday, and the beginning of the Lenten season which continues until Easter Sunday, April 9th It is the time when the church calls for a self discipline and self denial in order to produce the highest | control and ennobling ideals in people If one stops to consider the philosophy of the church trachings, it will be recognized that this is one of the best practices that any individual can follow It requires a careful examination of the individual's habits, desires and appetites. It gives the individual an opportunity to look into himself with a view of finding his inefficiencies. It is a discussed with council the adviseason that calls not only for self examination and self disciplining, but it is inspiring and does | develop the physical, mental and spiritual Physically, the person is better who does control his appetite, the health of the people would be much better if plain foods were partaken. It is a period when individuals are asked to read the better literature and those things which are inspiring to the intellect. As we feed the body for the physical development, so the round must necessarily be fed, and when we feed the mind on the higher idealism of life, there is bound to be a better citizenship and intellect. But above all, man does not live on bread and intel lect alone he is a spiritual being which cannot be divorced from the physial, therefore, he must feed the spiritual as well as the physical and

EDITORIAL NOTES

About the only thing, apparently, that will put John L. Lewis' miners back to work will be the good old summer time.

An increase in Hydro rates is announced was about the only item that hadn't had an increase, so the small one put into effect was bound to come because Hydro costs must have increased like other costs in the past few years.

Best announcement of the week we noted Was a furnace that could be converted in a few minutes to burn oil, coal or gas. That's the only type of equipment that will meet all strikes, shortages and emergencies and in this section some heating equipment is compulsory from September to June.

-------The Ontario Provincial Government is reported to be developing a plan to standardize assessment' procedures in our municipalities. Queen's Park officials would have been wiser to have faced the fact that the Ontario Asssessment Act is completely outmoded and that patching up a faw holes here and there will never solve the basic problem, comments the Midland Free Press. What is needed is not a patch on the rear tire, but a whole new car. There must be a much closer relationship and a much clearer one between municipal taxes and municipal services. For far too long we have paid taxes on the basis of: "Put something in the pot, brother."
