Milton Agricultural Society Announces Awards Field Crop Competition in Oats

Secretary Chas. Laundon of the Milton Agricultural Society announces the awards in the Field Crop Competition in oats, which plots were recently judged by Alex Davidson of York County. Some fifty farmers of the district entered in the competition with registered Beaver Oats. Then ten top scoring fields are as follows: 1st W. E. Ford, Trafalgar Twp. 2nd J. E. Boyd, Trafalgar Twp. 3rd J. E. Boyd, Trafalgar Twp. 4th J. E. Boyd, Trafalgar Twp. 5th A. M. Smith, Nelson Twp. 6th J. H. Wilson, Trafalgar Twp. 7th D. W. Jones, Trafalgar Twp. 8th J. E. Boyd, Trafalgar Twp. 9th J. E. Boyd, Trafalgar Twp. 10th G. S. Atkins, Trafalgar Twp.

Grain Sprouting in Fields

Notice is given that sprouting of the wheat in many fields of standing grain left for the combine is being reported in the heads. It is some years since the later condition of oats in the stock are also sprouting. It is reported that considerable of the wheat will be unfit for milling, however, with milling wheat at present prices it is worth more for feed in any event. While farmers generally would welcome clear dry weather for the next two or three weeks the rains to date have been far from an unmitigated evil. Pastures and second crop hay have benefited immensely—in addition, land which has been plowed for wheat now has adequate moisture.

Some Wheat Bad with Smut

We are rather surprised to find that quite a number of Halton wheat growers have wheat which is unfit for milling purposes due to ball or stinking smut. Apparently there is quite a percentage who do not think it is necessary to treat their grain for smut. Frankly we do not think there is much excuse in this day and age of having any smut. The ethyl mercuric dusts such as Ceresan or Ceresan M will control this at little cost for either material or labour. The fact that you have no smut in your fields this year does not give you any assurance that it isn't necessary to bother this fall. True weather conditions are a factor and no one can forecast weather conditions very far in advance consequently it is well to remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Highlights Here and There

Vern McArthur, President of the Halton Crop Improvement Association has one of the best fields of oats we have seen in the southern half of Halton County for some years. Good drainage coupled with good soil preparation and plenty of commercial fertilizer has paid off according to Vern.

J. Allen Dixon, President of the Halton Agricultural Society, co-operated with the Halton Crop Improvement Association by laying down one of their fertilizer demonstrations this past spring. While Allen is a strong believer in commercial fertilizer particularly on his fall wheat and pastures, he did not think that the fields he was putting into spring grain required any commercial fertilizer. However, on one acre he applied 50 lbs. of ammonium Nitrate plus 100 lbs. of 45 per cent Superphosphate. After seeing the results Allen states: "I guess I should have applied commercial fertilizer over the whole field."

Allen Bush, also of Trafalgar, is more than satisfied with the results he got from his commercial fertilizer. He has 70 acres of Montcalm barley in one block and last spring applied 75 lbs. per acre of 45 per cent Superphosphate. In brief, he has one of the most promising crops of barley we have seen in Halton in some years. Montcalm variety of barley by the way, is the one and only smooth awned variety suitable for malting.

Wheat fields here and there reveal the following: (1) Wheat after wheat doesn't pay in a year such as 1930. (2) Late seeding does not pay in a year such as we have experienced this past 12 months. (3) That maximum results from commercial fertilizer can only be secured by drilling it in with the grain. (4) It doesn't pay to slip up when it comes to treating grain for smut.

OAKVILLE

Floodlight Ball For Oakville Fans

With arrangements completed for the playing of the second game of the Halton County Intermediate A semi-final series here Friday night, August 11, plans are now well under way for the long awaited official Wallace park opening of the Oakville Baseball Association's new floodlight system on that date.

Arnold Hanfield, presently holidaying with his family at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, hit the placard jackpot on Monday, his first day out for deep sea fishing. Arnold's boat came in with five living to herald his catching a 574 pound tuna.

New surgical instruments for the Oakville-Trafalgar Memorial Hospital will be purchased with proceeds from the garden tour conducted by the hospital Ladies Auxiliary in June. Awards for the garden tour costing $500 and a drain air pump will also be bought.

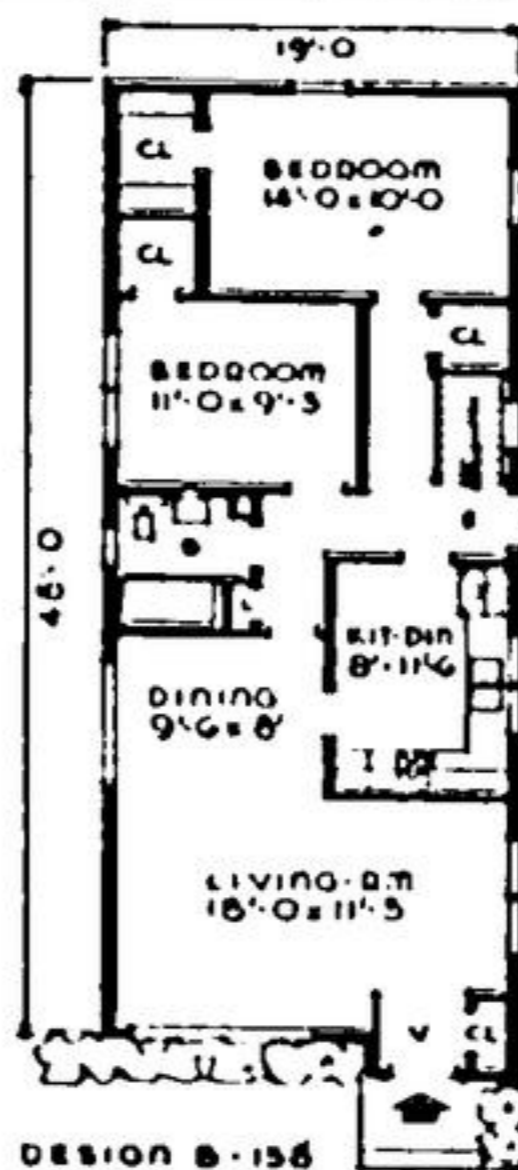

WHO'S THE FUNNIEST?

Arriving at the Washington Zoo one afternoon just as the monkey house was being closed for the day, we were startled by the wailing and shrieks coming from the building. When we questioned a keeper, he grinned and explained, "The monkeys always act like that when we shut out visitors—they get so much fun out of watching all the people."

THE BAKER

is only 19 feet wide and in most cases can be built on a lot as narrow as 25 feet. The plan consists of an L-shaped combination living dining room, kitchen with dining space, two bedrooms and full basement. If no basement is used, the spare room used by the stairs can be converted into a utility room.

Kitchen cabinets line two walls with the sink under the window. The refrigerator is on the left and the range on the right which still leaves ample space for a breakfast table.

Bedroom closets are large and walk-in closets. There are two closets in the vestibule and the rear entry. A linen closet is placed conveniently in the bedroom hall.

Plans call for a bunch of either cedar shake or wide siding. The roof with wide eaves is a "plunged."

The overall dimensions of the Baker are 19 feet by 48 feet. Floor area totals 912 square feet while the cubage of this house amounts to 17,328 cubic feet.

THE PETERS AND THE PAULS

By Joseph Luter Rutledge

If an expert cat-burglar some night climbs our back verandah, enters our home and leaves, sometime later, with a portion of our worldly goods, we grow stormily indignant. We demand to know what the police intend to do about it.

But why should the police or the city fathers disturb themselves? Quite obviously we have more goods than the cat-burglar. If he had as much as we, it is said to be assumed, he would be satisfied and leave ours alone. That at least would be the burglar's argument. But we argue in rebuttal that we worked and earned to provide these things, and the thief didn't. It seems to us an unreasonable argument. What is ours is ours. It is the basis on which our civilization rests. So to jail with the burglar, and good enough for him too.

But sometimes in our corporate capacity, we think differently. It is not a new idea to short-cut our way to comfort and modest affluence by taking from those who have it as much. This even while we cling to the remnants of our ethical beliefs that if the individual tries it, it is robbery and the fair and proper answer is to hurry the miscreant off to jail. We might continue so to think but for the fact that the "haves," being always in the minority, are drowned out by the applauding voices of the "have-nots."

Of course we "have-nots" don't move as individuals, for then we would be burglars. We move as government. Governments, supposedly being disinterested, can do what individuals would blush to do themselves. No one would think of calling a government a burglar even though, without our consent, it may take from us what, until that moment, had been our rightful property defensible at law—the very laws the government had had provided for its protection.

Cloak it as we may, this is the philosophy of Robin Hood and his Sherwood-Forest Merry Men who robbed Peter to pay Paul, and so gained the approval of all the Pauls. When we come to this philosophy a dictated economy is inevitable. It skirts lightly over matters of ability or extra diligence or added devotion and assumed responsibility and makes a broad pool of people who are all equal and so are equal recipients of the general bounty.

The one flaw is that there is still no protection against another of the breed of cat-burglars. If our private gains are subject to systematic theft, what is the incentive to acquire? Therefore we are all down to the burglar's level, because no one now has what is worth stealing.

HOW'S BUSINESS

Canadian business continues in fine fettle, according to the Financial Post. Here are a couple of bright items from a recent issue.

Carloadings in week ended June 10 set new high for this year, of 80,017 cars, a rise of 936 cars over previous weeks of 72,531 over same week a year ago.

Prosperous Farms Mean a Prosperous Canada

Power Farming is the Modern Way of Prosperous Farming

The last five years have been the most prosperous in Canada's history. Good markets and good prices for farm products have given great agricultural prosperity.

Farmers have had the incentive and means to buy goods and services in large volume and this has helped to create more jobs at better wages in industrial areas.

New and better machines have made it possible for fewer farmers to produce more in less time with less work and at less cost than ever before.

Massey-Harris tractors and power farming machines offer the latest developments in equipment designed and built for modern farming.
