There can be no doubt that butter was churned and used some thousands of years before the birth of Christ. Historians and researchers have found many references to butter in records originating earher than 2000 B.C. These have been traced to the early Indians of Asin. the Hebrews, Greeks, Arabs, the Egyptians, Persians, Romans and Teutons. These records also indcate that the churning of butter duty of all the apostles in each was done, principally in the cooler

. That more uses were found for butter long before the Christian Production of filmed elevision era than are common today, is one of the oddities of the history of production

Many properties were attributed to butter by the world's early prople. The Hindus accounted it a sacred food and it was used extensively in the greatest and holiest sacrifices of their worship. Butter was the essential to the wedding feast of a Hindu maiden. Macedonians used it as a healing ointment and as an internal 'medicine in addition to its natural use as a food. The Romans used butter to anoint bodies afflicted with pain All used it as food. Among the 'A preliminary-group of pictures, early, high people, butter was melted and stored and used to enrich other foods prepared for important feasts. These people regarded it as a rich delicacy.

That milk or cream would churn into butter was probably discovered through the early practice of transpersing milk in animal skin pouches. There is record of milk souring, fermenting and curdling in such containers, and, in all probability, the swaying, bumpy motion of this method of transport produced butter. It is known that early Arabians used animal skin pouches for the churning of butter

Obviously there is a vast difference between the butter of those early days and the 300 or more miltion pounds now produced every cear in Canada Their pitifully crude methods of production are supplanted now by streamlined sanitary methods Today, in the making of this premier food, we have the scientific feeding of the cattle, advanced barn and milking equipment to insure sanitary handling, clean modern' transportation methods; modern churning and One evening when my husband processing equipment to gain the and I were playing miniature golf, utinost in quality and flavour, rewe got behind a young couple with frigeration to preserve these qualismall baby.
