Give fools their gold and knaves their power.

Or plants a tree is more than all.
For God and man shall own his worth
Who tills to leave as his bequest.

Sunday School Lesson

SUNDAY, APRIL 8th, 1951
SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.
Golden Text.—For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord. Rom. 6:23.
Lesson Text.—Gen. 3:1-6, 9-15.
EXPOSITION.—I. The Temptation, 1-5.

The serpent was the prime mover in the entrance of sin into human history. This old serpent was the devil (Rev. 12:9; 20:3; Rom. 16:20). The devil paved the way for the Fall by suggesting first a doubt of God's love (v. 1), and afterwards a doubt of God's veracity (v. 4). The doorway to disobedience to God's will, Satan began with a truth and turned it into a lie. God had forbidden to eat of one tree in the garden (2:17), but the serpent turned this into "ye shall not eat of any tree" (v. 3). He delights to exaggerate God's prohibitions. Eve saw through the misrepresentation, but made a fatal mistake in parleying with one who whispered insinuations against God's goodness. She that begins with parleying with the tempter will end with yielding to him. The serpent approached the woman first because she was the weaker (1 Pet. 3:7; 1 Tim. 2:14). He approached her when she was alone. The moments when we are alone often afford the devil his best opportunity. The woman, having met him with God's word, should have listened no longer to him. The woman did not quote God's commandment exactly; she added to it (cf. ch. 2:17). However, when God has commanded us not to eat it, it is well to keep from touching (2 Cor. 6:17).

The result of disobedience was to be death. This was primarily physical death (v. 19; Rom. 5:12-14). But physical death is not all the death that results from disobedience to God (Eph. 2:1; Col. 2:13; 1 Tim. 5:6; Rev. 21:8). Death, in all its senses, is the result of sin (Rom. 6:23). Death came upon the whole race in consequence of this first sin (Rom. 5:12; R. V.). No one ever injures himself alone when he sins. But Christ, the second Adam, brought back life to all who lost it in the first Adam (1 Cor. 15:22). Whether or not this resurrection life that the second Adam has brought to all proves a blessing, depends upon our action (Jno. 5:28, 29; Rom. 6:23). When the devil has been foiled in his attempt to misquote God's word, his next move was to deny it. This illustrates how the devil is the father of lies. We see here how the devil was the first infidel and the first universalist. The doctrine of judgment for sin is one that he delights to deny (Jer. 14:13, 14; Ezek. 13:22).

The serpent imputed to God a selfish unwillingness that men should become like himself. God's highest desire for us is that we become like Himself (ch. 1:26, 27; Col. 3:10; Rom. 8:29). The devil himself fell through the desire to take God's place (Ezek. 28:2, 9; 2 Thos. 2:4; cf. Dan. 4:30; Ac. 12:22, 23). He tempted where he himself went down. There was an element of truth in the devil's lie (vs. 7, 22). When their eyes were opened the first thing they discovered was that they were naked (v. 7), and the effect of the knowledge was to fill them with fear (v. 10). When a man gets a knowledge of good and evil, a conscience, his first discovery is that he is a sinner (Rom.

7:9; 3:20), and he wishes to hide from God (v. 8).
If, The Fall, 6.
Eve listened to Satan's subtle insinuation regarding God's hardness. She quickly followed this wrong step by another. She looked at that which God had forbidden, then she lusted for it, then she took, then she ate, then she gave to her husband, to eat also. How rapidly sin grows. The forbidden fruit appealed to three lusts, "the lust of the flesh" ("good for food"), "the lust of the eyes" ("a delight to the eyes"), and "the vain glory of life" ("to be desired to make one wise") (cf. 1 Jno. 2:16). The temptation came first through her eyes (ch. 6:2; Josh. 7:21; 2 Sam. 11:2; Matt. 5:28). Adam was not to blame for listening to her (v. 17). They strove to cover their newly discovered nakedness. Man is ever trying to cover his own shame, but never succeeds (Rom. 10:3; Isa. 64:6). God Himself had to clothe them at the last, and so He must us (Isa. 6:10; Phil. 3:9).

III. The Punishment, 9-15.
In the evening of the same day they heard the voice of Jehovah walking in the garden. As soon as man sinned Jehovah always comes upon the scene. Always before this Jehovah's voice had filled Adam with joy; now it awakened fear. Like all sinners, they tried to hide from God, and also like all other sinners they failed. God is putting to every sinner today the same question that He put to Adam, "Where art thou?" He confessed his sin-born fear of God, stating as a ground of his fear his nakedness (cf. ch. 2:25). God showed Adam by another startling question that his own words had exposed his sin. Adam sought to throw the blame of his sin first upon the woman, and then upon God Himself, for so said, "The woman whom Thou gavest." All the sinner's excuses in the final analysis condemn God. (Read Rom. 1:19-32).

flat on one's face

"Know-how" is a popular phrase in these times—the western nations' industrial know-how is said to be their greatest hope. But it is not enough to know how to do a job. Doing it is what counts. Between knowing and doing there are usually a surprising number of opportunities for falling flat on one's face.

The textile industry in Canada, of which Dominion Textile is a part, has been practising for over a century to avoid falling flat on its face. While learning its job and doing it, the industry has become the largest employer of manufacturing labor in Canada and the payer of the largest manufacturing wage bill.
