Money Managing Vital to Farming

Farming is a continuing business. Before you've harvested one crop, you're getting ready for the next. The far-sighted farmer plans his finances just as he plans his crops, making sure that he has ready money at the times of the year when he most needs it.

Gordon Oder, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, reports that many successful farmers keep special savings accounts at the B of M for this purpose. They know that having too much cash around leads in unplanned spending, and so they put away a portion of all their produce cheques. Then they have the cash they need for financing bigger and better crops, for buying livestock or equipment that will boost farm revenue.

To give your farm the strong financial foundations it requires, open an account at the B of M with your next produce cheque. And, for the easier planning of your farm finances, ask for a copy of the B of M's special Farm-Account-Book. You'll find it a real help in managing your farm revenue.

Written Specially for the Acton Free Press by Gwendolyn F. Clarke

Well, maybe I had better let the rest of the week take care of itself and devote my attention to this Friday. That was the day we went to the C.N.E. But first let me tell you how we went. Our first thought was to leave the car at home and go by bus—the traffic is far too heavy for me these days. Then I remembered our young neighbors—no car but the man a careful and experienced transport driver. So wasn't that a perfect set-up—our car, good driver, room for four other passengers and a free pass to the grounds on my Press Day invitation?

The day was hot and humid but quite bearable—no sun and a cooling breeze off the lake. When the car was parked we all parted company, going our separate ways to take in whatever interested us most. Many folk have long since realized it is the only way to make the best use of their time at the Big Fair.

Early morning is a comfortable time for seeing exhibits, especially in the Women's Division. A lot of handiwork does not receive the attention it deserves as each one of us has only one pair of eyes—and feet—and both give out all too soon. But remember those exhibits that made those exhibits possible. Pottery, quilts, sewing, shellcraft, weaving—impossible to list them all. Even a straight exhibit, like the reproduction of a portion of Princess Elizabeth's furniture and table appointments means a lot of work—just to give us a glimpse of gracious and royal living.

There was one exhibit which both delighted and disappointed me—the Crown Jewels. In replica, of course. Years ago I saw the original Crown Jewels in the Tower of London but visitors there get little chance to examine them closely—so little room and so many people to view this historic and fascinating collection. Now, at the Exhibition, I shall have my opportunity, I thought. What matter if the jewels are only copies—they at least give people a chance to know what the real ones look like.

I expected to find the Jewels in a prominent place and given all kinds of publicity. But where were they? In an out-of-the-way corner of the Women's Building! How many men go through the women's section—except out of courtesy to their wives? Partner wanted to see the Jewels but he would probably have missed them had I not told him where they were. And they are certainly worth seeing.

But I wonder how many know of the history, intrigue, romance and adventure connected with the Crown Jewels? I would have liked to see this exhibit in the British section, with an official in charge handing out printed leaflets, giving a brief history of the Crown Jewels. It would have been highly educational and given the Canadian public a better understanding of the importance of each Crown and sceptre. For instance, the abortive attempt of Colonel Blood to steal the Crown Jewels during the reign of Charles II is more thrilling than any modern detective novel.

But on with the show. For me another highlight of the day was the Press luncheon where one can always be sure of meeting old friends and acquaintances and of being introduced to others whom one had known only by repute through the medium of radio and reading. Many of them are also known to those who read this column—Edna Jacques, Ethel Chapman, "Cherry", Jane Weston, Mrs. G. A. Dills, Lillian Foster, Lillian C. Gray, Margaret Aitken, Mona Gould, Mrs. Catharine Marsden, Joy Tranter and, of course, the incomparable Kate Aitken, and the irreplaceable Horace Lapp. There is always plenty of fun and laughter at this luncheon, and the setting is ideal for a hot day—on a balcony overlooking the lake. During the afternoon many of us returned for a leisurely cup of tea, with still greater opportunity for meeting and chatting with friends, both old and new.

About 5 p.m. our little party met at the appointed place and started for home. Somewhere near Port Credit, on the Queen Elizabeth, we ran into a traffic jam. The cause was nine east-bound cars in a string, radiators and rear ends jammed together. Tow-trucks and traffic officers were having a sweet time. The police certainly have their problems on our super four-lane highways—highways that were built primarily for speed and safety.

Well, I thought my Exhibition invitation was good enough. Since then another invitation has come my way—so unexpected and such an honor for an ordinary farm woman like myself that I am completely bowled over. But more about that next week... yes, indeed, you'll be hearing from me.

Special Notice to Employers AND Those Enlisting in Armed Forces

By The Veterans Benefit Act, 1951, passed at the last session of Parliament, the Government of Canada has extended and made applicable the provisions of the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, 1946, to all persons enlisting in the Regular Forces of Canada after July 5, 1950, (nineteen fifty) and who serve therein for a term not exceeding three years.

This provision extends also to members of the Special Force who re-engage for service with the Regular Forces, the three-year coverage period beginning with the date of re-engagement.

This provision extends also to members of the Reserve Forces who after July 5, 1950, are called out for service with the Regular Forces and serve with the Regular Forces for a period not exceeding three years.

By an Order in Council passed in 1950 under the Canada Forces Act the provisions of the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, 1946, were extended to members of the Special Force and members of the Reserve Forces who serve on the strength of the Special Force. The reinstatement provisions of this Order in Council have now been incorporated in the provisions of the Veterans Benefit Act, 1951.

Under the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act a discharged person may claim reinstatement either verbally or in writing, usually within three months of discharge in Canada or four months if discharged overseas. There is provision for extension of this time when through a condition of health the employee cannot return to his employment this soon, but the employer must be notified in three or four months, as the case may be, and a Reinstatement Officer should be consulted.

REINSTATEMENT OFFICERS ARE LOCATED IN LOCAL OFFICES OF THE NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
