

OBITUARY

Former Actonian Dies In Toronto

Many friends here learned with regret of the passing on Friday last of Miss Adah Clarke at her home, 530 Oakmount Road, Toronto. Miss Clarke had been in ill health for some time. She was born in Acton, attended Acton Schools and resided in this community until removal to Toronto about twenty-five years ago.

Halton County Free Of Poliomyelitis

Halton county is free of polio so far this year. Dr. Archie F. Bull, medical director of the Halton County health unit and M.O.H., reports that two suspects who were kept under observation were reported negative. Medical authorities have advised that symptoms of illness should be reported to the family physician. Children especially should be kept from possible contacts with poliomyelitis.

Tannery Whistle Summons Brigade

Low water pressure likely caused by a leak of air, resulted in a line of cars and small crowd of people dashing to Beardmore and Co. Monday about 6.30 p.m.—Blowing of the tannery whistle summoned the regular tannery fire brigade as well as many others to find the cause of the steadily ringing sprinkler alarm system.

Canada's southernmost part—Pelée Island—is slightly south of the northern portion of California.

Ecclesiastical or Ecumenical Birds Residents of Guelph Street have been watching with interest some moves toward union or disunion between two churches.

A family of starlings or black-birds have their home in the roof of St. John's Anglican Church and are operating a shuttle service between the roof and a cherry tree in the garden of the senior elder of Rockwood United Church.

The elder has a bell on the cherry tree, intended to ward off the visits of the birds, but the birds have too much or too little ear for music and apparently they confuse the tone of the bell with the welcome sound of St. John's church bell.
