Chronicles of Ginger Farm
Written Specially for the Acton Free Press by Gwendolene F. Clarke

Well, here we are, back home again at the old farm. Back home again after a wonderful six-day holiday, which I spent at a farm just outside Ottawa. But the farm where I was staying was very different from our own. It was a show place with 90 head of R.O.P. Guernsey cattle, housed in huge barns with all the usual accommodations that goes with such places, including fluorescent lighting over each stall.

For field work there was a full line of power machinery. There were also added features that attracted much public attention. In separate enclosures there were buck and doe deer, two raccoons, some ducks of a fancy breed, guinea fowl and six pens of different kinds of golden pheasants.

Strutting around the yard were also a number of peacocks, two of them dead-white and the others with the traditional blue-green markings. At night they roosted on top of the silo—and woke me up each morning. Unfortunately all these lovely peacocks were minus their fantails as this is the moulting season. The house stood in landscaped grounds close to the highway. Across the road lush green pasture sloped gently down to the Rideau River.

However, my hostess and I did not linger overly long at the farm. Instead we were out each day and really saw Ottawa. I had heard our capital city was a lovely place but I was not prepared for the outstanding scenic beauty of its canal and rivers; its beautiful shade trees and marvellous greenness that was everywhere.

For me water is always a major attraction in scenery and in fact one nearly always has it in sight from the Canal; the Rideau River or the Ottawa River. We went for drives and walks along the Parkways, and for a boat ride on the Canal. We saw Ottawa from the top of the Peace Tower and looked up it from the valleys below. We drove along the shaded, winding road by Rideau Hall; we visited Hog's Back, Long Island and Manotick, and we saw locks open and close to let through pleasure yachts and motor boats.

Here we picked up some surprising information. We naturally supposed there would be a toll for boat-owners using the locks. But no, even though it might be only a small motor launch, the locks would be operated free of charge, from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. As the man at the winch observed, it is the only tax-free accommodation enjoyed by the travelling public. But free service has this result; the revenue received from the locks last year was considerably less than the actual operating costs. Which means, I suppose, that everybody pays — through taxation — what those who actually use the locks do so at no additional cost.

Probably the outstanding feature of our sight-seeing pleasures was a trip by bus to Gananoque and then a cruise by motor launch through the Thousand Islands. It was on one of those days when everyone on land was limp with the heat but on the water it was ideal.

The Thousand Islands! Nothing I might write could adequately describe their beauty. For nearly three hours we cruised along the St. Lawrence River, weaving our way in and out and around the channels between the islands. On the biggest islands there were magnificent summer homes, on the smaller ones there might be only one house. And on some none at all.

One of the islands captures the imagination is Heart Island, where George Boldt, of Waldorf-Astoria fame, fulfilled a boyhood dream by building an immense castle, and changing the shape of the island to that of a heart. He already spent $100,000 on it when his wife died. Mr. Boldt was so grief-stricken that he immediately stopped all work on the castle. It was never resumed. The castle now stands a tragic, massive structure in partial ruins.

Having got thus far in my description I must descend to the mundane affairs of ordinary farm life. Partner came in hot and bothered. He had been hunting for over an hour for a new calf, the first offspring of a young heifer. The heifer came home without the calf. Partner searched the creek, the bushes and the pastures. No calf. And now it was milking time. I suggested that he go on with the milking and I would take up the hunt.

It was beginning to get dusk and I had had no better luck. I noticed the heifer was behaving a little suspiciously. I approached the spot where she stood and there was the calf completely hidden in a patch of tall grass and weeds as effectively as Moses in the bulrushes. In triumph I slowly propelled the cow and calf through the tangled pasture back to the barn.

FASHION HINT

Try faille for fall! This versatile fabric is newly elegant for autumn wearing. This one is a soft, wide skirted suit with a nipped-in waistline, a stand-up collar, and a velvet yoke. Velvet always looks cozy when the days get shorter and cooler. A velvet hat, and purse and suede shoes would complete this outfit perfectly.

The starched summer petticoat need never go in mothballs with bathing suits and beach towels! There will be plenty of styles with full skirts this fall and winter too, and chances are if you don't buy a dress or shirt with a pencil skirt, you'll buy one with a full-skinger.

There are 336 knit goods mills in Canada operating in 122 communities, and employing some 25,000 people.
