McHugh Final Spurt Has Crowd Roaring

On Saturday afternoon, six members of the Acton Whippet Club ran in events of the International Indoor track meet in Hamilton armories. Bill Skilling ran second in his 60 yard heat, only to be nosed out of place in the semi-final. Pete Hurst and Bob Heatley ran a good heat but failed to place.

In the first heat of the 300 yard dash, Wayne Arbic ran a fine race but failed to place. In the third heat of the same race, Bill McHugh almost upset the applecart. To me, they must have certain characteristics, the one I require for my own reading being that the novel be written in decent English, like Buchan's Greenmantle or Mary Roberts Rhinehart's The Circular Staircase. It is NOT necessary to have vulgar slang and bad grammar.

The incidents and people must the only team, to have won its two seem probable, or at least possible. There should be continuity and form to the novel.

The characterization should be reasonably interesting and full. The reader must see the characters as fellow humans.

I look for a philosophical point of view-an integrated view of life-in the background. This is apparent more in Buchan's novels than in Erle Stanley Gardner's or Mary Roberts Rhinehart's, Gardner's point of view seems to be that careful, logical reasoning will bring
