

Eight Boxing Bouts Attract Crowd to Y

The second boxing show this year was held in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last Thursday evening, March 12, with the attendance between 80 and 90. Eight bouts were featured during the evening and a door prize of groceries was an added attraction.

Terrific improvement in actual boxing from the first show that was put on in January was the most noticeable thing in the entire show. This is attributed to the fine work of the Y boxing instructor, Don Clayton.

In the first bout, Bill (Tiger) Dawkins and Freddy (Wildcat) Dawkins tangled in a good fight which was looked forward to by the spectators, since in the first show the Tiger cut his lip and the fight was stopped in the first round. This time he clawed through to a finish.

In the featherweight bout, Brian (Checkers) McCristall and Kenny (the Duke) Redfern met for the second time and again put on an excellent show with the Duke showing decided improvement over the last show.

An evenly matched fight with plenty of action was the paperweight bout, Ted (Jump) Moyses opposing Wayne (Stoker) Mason. Jump showed much better than he did in the first bout. The Stoker was having his first go at it and did remarkably well.

The fourth bout, the flyweight, was (Gentleman) Jim Lindsay's first fight and he held up very well against the improved Wild Bill Churchill.

Without a doubt the fifth lead-weight bout showed the most action of the evening. Don (Wildcat) Lindsay and Andy (Pandy) Williams clinched frequently, a couple of times the audience expected them to start dancing.

Peter (Pan) Newton continually forced the issue in the lightweight bout and had Billy (the Kid) McCoy a little bit in trouble at times. McCoy settled down in the third round though and held his own until the end.

The surprising thing about the deadweight encounter was that it was Freddy (Freckles) Graham's first fight and he was in against a heavier and more experienced man, Richard (Sad Eyes) Massey. He was able to hold his own, though—both are very good boxers.

A fine finish to a very enjoyable evening was provided by Bill (the Basher) Greer and Howard (the Hawk) Jank. This strawweight bout, the eighth of the evening, was a very even fight even though the Basher had the extra weight.

CHILDREN'S DRESSES made at the Milton Night School by Mrs. Harold Fay are modelled here by Margaret Whewell, Jo-Anne Kelly and Linda Ann Williamson. About 600 attended the open night held in Milton High School on Tuesday of last week when the classes completed their season with a display. A fashion show of clothes made in the classes was part of the evening's program.

Amateur Inventors Get Half Patents

Now, as always, the woods are full of inventors. Every 15 minutes somebody thinks up something that eventually will be patented, says Elsie McCormick, writing of gadgets and gadgeteers in the Reader's Digest. Despite the fact that some 90,000 trained technicians in industrial laboratories are constantly looking for patentable ideas, half the patents go to garage and basement inventors.

How good are the independent inventor's chances of making money on his brain? At least 60 per cent find that something very similar to their idea has already been patented, and thus to file an application is a waste of time. Of all applications received, 50 per cent are rejected because they fail to meet patent office requirements. Among the inventions actually patented, only one in five make money.

Most of the successful gadgets are simple ones. A bottle-stopper for carbonated beverages and a magnetic pot holder had phenomenal sales.

If your idea is patented, don't expect a huge financial reward, the article counsels. Though a great harvest is occasionally reaped—the inventor of the kiddie car made a million dollars—the average income is between $1,000 and $2,000. If you get a good offer for a gadget, better accept it. The steady procession of new things may well make yours obsolete.

The most overworked field of invention is the can opener, the author says. One neglected area worth working in is that of labor-saving garden tools. Another is girls' toys, a field still dominated by dolls.

Advice to widows: don't throw away an invention your husband has been working on without first checking its worth. There are cases on record of excellent incomes developed to widows who have developed their late husbands' unpatented ideas.
