

Hello Homemakers! When we toured part of Victoria county recently to address four Women's Institutes we thoroughly enjoyed the discussions that concluded each session. Had it not been for the business-like farm women the meeting would have gone on for hours.

A favorite query concerned broiling steaks and chops, so we have decided to tell our "side of the story" to all our readers. If you refer to "Chops as pork chops" we must admit that we prefer Braised Pork Chops. Only lamb chops are broiled in our kitchen. Concerning steaks, may we remind you that round steak should be broiled too. Only sirloin, T-bone or porterhouse steaks, or tenderloin should be broiled. If the meat is not the best grade you should sprinkle half-teaspoonful of Meat Tenderizer on the steak at least 30 minutes before cooking time. By the way, the tenderizer is not a chemical, it is chiefly the enzyme from the tropical papaya melon and a little of it goes a long way. It may be purchased with or without seasonings - a further memo, since the seasoning has a little garlic in it.

In answer to the problem of broiling frozen steaks we suggest thawing out steaks or chops to prevent spattering the oven and so that the fat can be used to give more flavor.

The main concern should be the necessary time needed for broiled juicy steaks. The total time to allow for a well-done steak is about 40 to 50 minutes if it is an inch and a half thick steak - and a thick steak is sure to be more juicy than a thin one. In fact, we prefer a 2 inch thick steak which we cut in serving portions on the platter. Of course, a rare steak requires about 10 minutes on each side or a total broiling time of 20 minutes.

Good Broiling

- Cut edge of fat (5 or 6 slashes) and let steak stand at room temperature about 20 minutes.
- Place upper oven shelf about six inches from top oven element.
- Turn oven control to Broil and leave oven door ajar at "stop" position while top oven element heats for about five minutes.
- Place broiler rack in pan and arrange steaks on it, two or three bits of fat may be dotted on top of lean steaks.
- Place pan on oven shelf leaving oven door ajar (unless range gives directions for closing door). For thin steaks to be cooked rare there should be distance of 3-inches between the top of meat and the element. For 2-inch thick steaks they should be 3 or 4 inches distant from broiling element.
- When you gently pull out the shelf to turn meat, sprinkle on salt and pepper, then turn using tongs for safety instead of fork.
- Be sure to serve on a hot platter as soon as broiled.

Note: On some ranges it is necessary to turn temperature control to 500 and the top oven switch to High or On.

Broiled Chicken

Split a cleaned broiling chicken and brush with melted fat. Shake in a bag with a 1/4 cup of flour and some salt and pepper in it. Place skin side down on a broiler rack. Brown chicken on one side (5 inches from top element). Turn in 15 minutes. Arrange pineapple sliced, sprinkled with brown sugar and sweet pickling juice. Continue broiling for another 15 minutes or until fork indicates doneness.

Fried Croquettes

Shape a mixture of 1 cup cooked fish, 1/4 cup mashed potatoes, 1 beaten egg, 1 tsp of parsley bits, salt and pepper into fish cakes. Pat with melted shortening or bacon drippings, then coat with dry bread crumbs. Arrange croquettes on broiling pan and place 4 inches from hot oven element for 10 minutes. Turn and add seasoned tomato halves around the edge of rack. Continue broiling until brown - about 8 or 10 minutes longer.

TALES ON TINTYPES

This week's tintype from the A. T. Brown collection of photographs goes back to May 14, 1898 and shows the ruin created by a fire at the new hair house in the Beardmore Co. tannery. In those days the tannery was not built of fire resisting material. Lumber was plentiful and quickly erected and the tannery buildings were nearly all frame constructed and sheeted with metal.

When a fire broke out in the tannery, the buildings were badly wrecked. There was not the equipment at hand to stop an early blaze and the fire spread rapidly. Many times through the years there were serious conflagrations at the tanneries in Action. The last big fire was 30 years ago. When rebuilding was done the structure was not so inflammable.

Fire fighting equipment at this fire in 1898 would be confined solely to the old steam pumper and the source of water was likely from the creek which runs down past the tannery property.

Champion Dancers Acton Club Guests

Uncle Penn's Square Dance Company, Hamilton, winners at the Canadian National Exhibition and Northern Ontario champions, dressed in gay red and white, gave a demonstration at the meeting of the Square Dance Club Wednesday evening of last week in St. Albans' parish hall.

Johnny Davidson, their caller, came with them and they danced to the music of the club's regular orchestra, the Rhythm Ramblers. Over 90 attended. Don Nelson of Guelph called off for the regular square dances.

Keep Door Sill Well Surfaced

All traffic into or out of a room must of necessity pass across the door sill. If the doorway is much used, the sill and adjacent floor area soon become worn and unsightly.

When grain of the wood is directly exposed, dirt finds lodgment in it and even the hardest scrubbing fails to clean the surface thoroughly. When the old coating wears thin, a touch-up of the same type of material used on the rest of the floor surface shellac varnish, paint or penetrating stain will save you much unnecessary work. A smoothly finished surface can be kept spotlessly clean with very little effort.

stems from the paper you read. The book is called "Link on My Fingers" by J. H. Cranston, who was associated with the Star for many years. His "inside stories," while not exactly scoop, prove very topical. He tells about the Atkinsons, Hindmarshes, Gregory Clarkes, the reporters and sports editors and all. The Star Weekly was also another of his concerns.

One needn't be interested in newspaper writing to be interested in "Link on My Fingers" all that's required is a fundamental interest in what goes on.

Mr. Cranston died in December, 1952, a veteran of 50 years in the newspaper business.

There are primarily textile mills in 269 Canadian communities and the industry is the country's largest employer of manufacturing labor.
