

GREETINGS OF THE SEASON

TO OUR ACTON AND DISTRICT
FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS

We extend to one and all our very best wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy and Prosperous New Year

FRANK'S GROCERY

FRANK ORESKOVICH

Acton

When Milt "Speaks"
you'll enjoy listening

When Milt Dunnell writes about sports, he writes with authority earned as a player and team manager. And when he writes about sports celebrities, he writes about people he knows.

Milt is a product of western Ontario where every sport fan is a well-informed critic. Milt has been in the big league for a long time now as sports Editor of The Toronto Daily Star.

Milt is a quiet, modest fellow for whom sportsmen loosen up when they talk, so he hears a lot of inside information which makes interesting reading.

You'll enjoy Milt's column, "Speaking on Sport", which appears every day in The Daily Star. It's packed with news about sports events and sports characters and it sparkles with the kind of humor that makes life lighter and brighter.

Have The Toronto Daily Star delivered to your home. It has all the news and the best news features.

Mailed to Any Address Delivered by Carrier, 30c a Week
1 month $ 1.25
3 months 3.50
6 months 6.50
1 year 12.00

Address Circulation Dept., Daily Star, 80 King St. W., Toronto

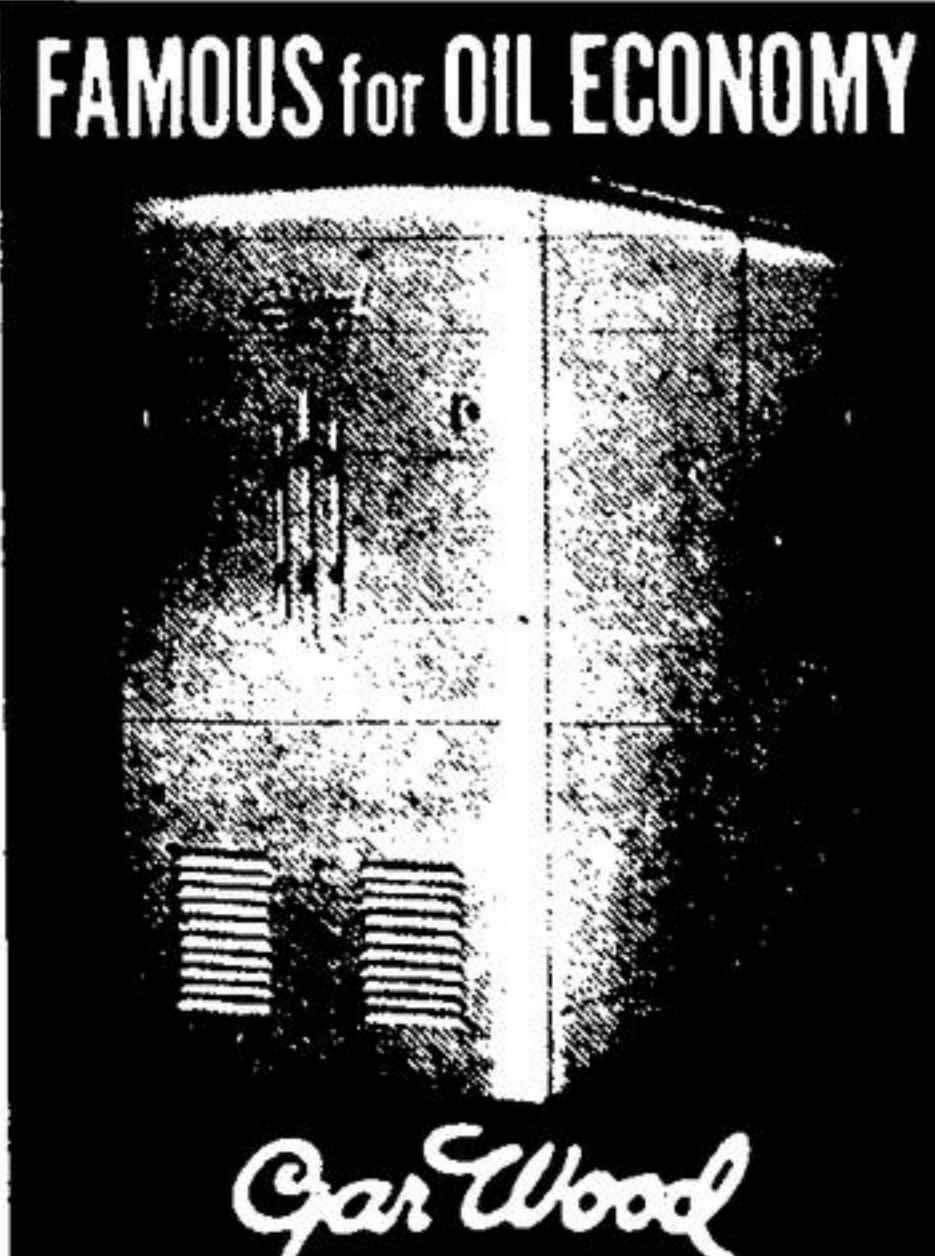

CHOOSE Gar Wood TEMPERED-AIRE
for AMAZING OIL Savings -

AMAZING?

Yes! Not an empty boast but A FACT based on proven records

• "Heating costs cut as much as 40 per cent"—report after report—from actual owners—justify the word "AMAZING." The co-ordinated engineering of GAR WOOD TEMPERED-AIRE guarantees a minimum waste of heat and a maximum savings in dollars.

TEMPERED-AIRE
AUTOMATIC HEATING AT ITS BEST

Write, phone or visit us for a demonstration or informative literature

BILTON & PERRY LIMITED

ACTON, ONT.

PHONE 464

STORM CURTAILS FORUM DISCUSSION
ON "TELLING THE FARMER'S STORY"

Due to the sudden arrival of a man winter on Monday December 14, Halton farm forum gatherings were few and far between. To date, instead of 14 reports, the county reporter has four. Lime-stone forum, not wishing to be outdone as Santa Claus was scheduled to visit them met on Tuesday night with an attendance of 29 members.

The topic entitled "Telling the Farmer's Story," was one that created a splendid discussion and some interesting ideas were exchanged.

The first question read thus: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?" Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g. purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum, what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and educational groups was advised. Farmers could be asked to attend citizens' forums. "We should have intelligent and instructed farm representatives on labor boards," reports said.

Answer to the question: "What are some of the facts of farming that you think town and city people are not well enough informed on?"

Answers included the middle man's profits, the spread between the farmer's selling price and the consumer's buying price, cost of production, e.g.

purchasing of land, seeds, loans of labor, implements, etc. Also the city man was aware of the importance to the economy of the country that agriculture be prosperous. They are not aware of the losses to the farmer in times of drought, diseases, pests and weather conditions as hail, wind and electrical storms.

The second question was: "How can you in your forum help to improve an understanding on the problems you have listed in reply to question one?" A great deal could be accomplished through personal contacts, it was decided. A speakers bureau was suggested by Port Stanley Forum to be operated by the provincial farm forum. Have a film made of the process a farmer has to go through to produce a quart of milk or one pound of butter. It was a suggestion. Better advertising of farmers' marketing problems and places to bring them to the attention of the city people was recommended. Resolutions could be drawn up at forum meetings with these matters discussed at rallies, then forwarded to the provincial farm association and passed on to the national.

The third question was: "If you were on the executive of a forum,

what would you recommend by way of public relations for the organization?" All publicists, headed by specialists, something after the British system, forums thought. Group discussion with consumer groups at the federation meetings, rallies and