

British Contractor Launches Subdivision In Streetsville

Announcement was made that one of the biggest United Kingdom contractors, Richard Costain Ltd., has launched its first housing subdivision in Canada at Streetsville, through its subsidiary, Dolphin Development Co. Ltd., Toronto, on the former J. M. Adamson subdivision. The whole subdivision is architecturally designed by Deasch and Arnett and Michael Bach. Gordon Urwin is the consulting engineer. Lot frontages range from 60 to 100 feet and modern three and four bedroom houses will be offered for as low as $13,500 to $15,000. The four bedroom houses are tri-levels, some with carports. Construction has now commenced on the first group of an eventual 118 house development. The site is picturesque woodland and the whole project is planned to fit in with the natural contours of the land. Sewer and water services will be provided by the subdivider. Streetsville is rapidly developing in consequence of the steady expansion westwards from Toronto and the beautiful Credit Valley offers the choicest of residential areas, located within several minutes to the Queen Elizabeth highway and 30 minutes from downtown Toronto. With the extension of the new 401 super highway to the area, the fact that these are being offered at under $15,000. The four bedroom houses offer a most attractive and unusual tri-level home to supply the needs for the growing family; more important is the fact that these are being offered at under $15,000. The first electric railway in Canada was built in Toronto in 1883.

Arch of Flowers Decorates Church
On Saturday, August 13, Shirley Anne Thompson and Emerson Douglas (Bud) Anderson were united in marriage at Church Hill United church at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. Miss J. Donaldson of Alma officiated.
The church was decorated for the occasion by a friend, Fred Miller of Belwood. The altar was an arch of mixed gladioli with candles at the top, resembling a church window.
The bride wore an ankle-length white brocaded gown with scalloped neckline and short scalloped sleeves, with an Empire waistline and flared skirt. Her veil of tulle illusion trimmed with nylon lace fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried a nosegay of sweetie roses.
The bride's sister, Mrs. Ruth Shortill of Ballinfad, was her only attendant. She was dressed in a gown of orchid brocaded taffeta identical to the bride's, and wore a small pleated hat of brocaded taffeta. She carried a nosegay of yellow mums with white streamers.
The groom was attended by his brother, Arnold, Weaver of Hamilton. The ushers were Bill Thompson and Fred Spear of Acton.
Miss Donna Johnston, wearing a yellow nylon street-length dress with a corsage of white carnations, sang three beautiful selections, As Dawns the Day, O Perfect Love and while the register was being signed, The Day of Golden Promise. She was accompanied by Donald Cox of Dundas, who also played the wedding music.
The bride's mother received the guests in a navy blue and white dotted crepe dress, with white lace and sequin trim at the neckline. Her hat was of navy blue velvet. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.
Mrs. Earl Anderson also received the guests, wearing a navy blue nylon dress and a corsage of red roses.
After the reception in the basement of the church the couple left for a trip to Algonquin Park and Ottawa. The bride chose a blue dress, pink hat and patent leather shoes and purse. She also wore a blue fitted coat.
Guests attended the wedding from Detroit, London, Hamilton, Kingston, Toronto, Alton, Georgetown, Milton, Orangeville and Acton. The couple are now living at their home in Acton.
