Ready Municipally for 1956

The municipal elections are over for another year and now it behooves us as good citizens of a community to work together in making 1956 a better year for Acton. It is gratifying to note that much better than ours. the ratepayers turned out in such numbers to tors in this awakened interest which may have we couldn't pay for at the moment. been contributory but now that you have voted election.

Perhaps the general plan and location and a partial procedure will be the first requisite Defeat does not indicate lack of entire need but it does indicate caution.

Our congratulations to not only the successful candidates but also to the interest in citizenship of those who offered to serve. Now the decisions have been made let's get on with 1956 and a progressive and constructive program that will make Acton a better place in which to live and work.

Protecting the Public

Establishment of standard labelling practices for textiles sold in Canada has been announced by the Department of Trade and Commerce.

After January 1st, according to the new re gulations, any label attached to any textile material or article of clothing must give a full and accurate description of the fibre content, and must not describe as "hand" knitted or woven any material that is even partly knitted or woven by machine.

Be Careful

The Ontario Highways Department which was rocked last year by the laxity in highway con struction will now set out to get additional revenue from owners of motor vehicles this year with increased fees that are estimated to bring into the revenues 10 million dollars.

Under the new scale of registration fees for passenger cars, the present $2.00 license will cost $3.00; the $5.00 license will go up to $7.00; the enness at the Christmastide is difficult to under-$10.00 will be $14.00; the $15.00 license fee stand in a country which professes to be Christwill cost $21.00. #### Forced To Join

We regretted that last week we were forced to announce an increase in subscription rates for the Free Press. The amount involved is small but that announcement marked a personal defeat for us in maintaining costs that have been going on for several years as a sort of challenge.

One of the increases in the cost of paper a few years ago was countered by buying in bigger shipments. It curtailed our space and took more capital but it held our price. The government helped in the next increase by taking off the sales tax on newsprint but the paper makers got the 10 per cent, saved by the government. We bought cur news ink in quantities four times as large to get the price maintained. By doing the mechanical operation and buying of supplies for two papers instead of one we were able to effect other economies that held the price.

Then came the recent announcement of another rise in cost of paper. There were some options. We could erect another building and buy paper in carload lots and save the increase. But the building would cost several thousands. We could put in another press and buy our newsprint in rolls at a lower price. We could invest in stocks in the newsprint companies and share in the return of greater profits, which are incidentally,

There was only one catch to all these alternaregister their choice. It was one of the biggest tives. The capital was not available for any of municipal votes recorded for some years and is a them and unlike municipalities we couldn't float good omen for the town. #### Big Majority Concur

After attending and reading about the nomination meeting last week we were more heartily Stewart-Theaker in accord with the findings of 97 per cent. of the forums in Ontario "That local government is effective". We shall even go along with the forum that commented "local government is democracy Stewart are making their home in at work in the community where the local citizen can most easily participate and make his wishes The bride is Jean Elizabeth Theakknown. #### Any Time or Place

As the Christmas season approaches organizations which have the welfare of Canadians at heart and are civic minded urge moderation in drinking of intoxicants, especally by those in control of motor vehicles. The Federated Women's Institute of Canada has issued a release giving five rules which if observed will help to keep :Canadians sober during the weeks before and at the time we celebrate the birth of Christ.
