POET'S CORNER

THE THINGS WE BUY

Money cannot buy happiness—
Of said, but 'tis not true,
I bought some potted posies
Yellow and white and blue,
I placed them on my window sill
And in care-filled heart,
A youthful happiness 'awoke
Which banished sorrow's smart.

The golden bloom said that the sun
Behind the dark clouds shone;
The white one promised purity
Would yet for shame atone.
The sky-blue blossoms said that truth
Would still make up for wrong.
So my money bought a happiness
That filled my heart with song.

They say that money can't buy love;
Once more I disagree—
For I bought a darling puppy dog,
In whose brown eyes I see
A love that fills my inmost soul
With deep humility.

'Tis not the love of money
Which is always evil's root;
But the love of things we buy with it
Bears good or evil fruit:
Many things that bring disaster
Might be changed for those that bleed.

If instead of buying baubles
We buy love and happiness,
—Mary L. Armstrong.

How's your sunburn? How are those fingernails after digging in the garden? Have your freckles come out to greet the sun? Men: You can't do anything about it.

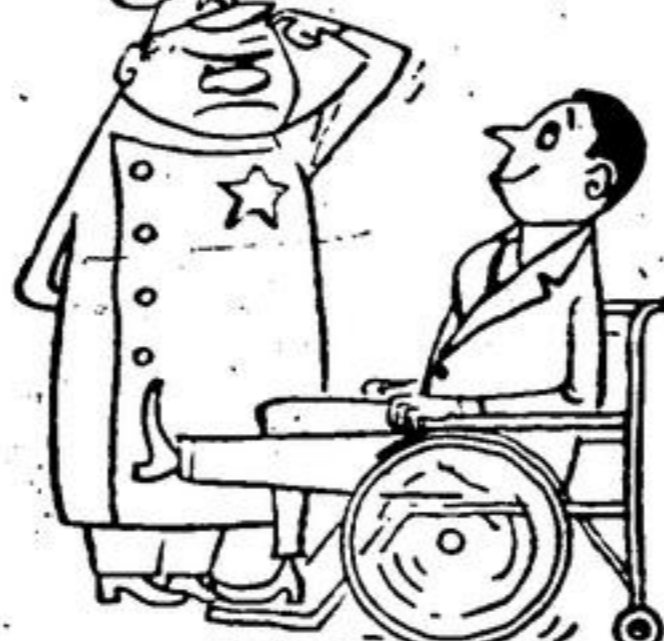

Ladies: You can! And your help can, surprisingly, come from a library book as well as from a compact of pancake make-up.

The Westmore Beauty Book will tell you the story of how to make yourself more beautiful. It has a very happy ending.

The authors are five experts—the five famous Westmores from Hollywood. Your features, type, skin care, personality and even "fascination" are diagrammed and discussed.

CAPTIVE DUCK
GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP)—When J. J. Oulette investigated unusual noises in the basement he found a wild duck, apparently seeking sanctuary from gale winds. It had evidently entered through a chimney. The birds was turned loose two days later.

IRON CURTAIN CRASHER

We confess a sneaking respect for one resourceful gentleman who fooled the Commies—albeit by morally dubious means. Seems he would load his hollow aluminum artificial leg with candy, coffee and nylons in West Berlin, then whisk over the border into East Berlin in his motorized wheel chair. He made a neat profit—until the border gendarmes ultimately caught up with him.

More and more businesses—from artificial limbs to shipbuilding—similarly find aluminum a valuable aid to sales and profit. Further major expansion of Alcan's smelters in both Quebec and B.C. is aimed to satisfy the continued increasing demand for the light metal.
