Progress at the Parks

The Board of Parks Management is only a few months old, but already it has justified its formation with worthwhile projects to maintain and extend the natural and man-made facilities of the local park.

over from Council's parks committee which gave full reins to the Parks Board after its creationmembers have made a creditable start and are in sight of formidable accomplishments. Here are a | tion few projects done or undertaken.

Metal signs have been erected warning of fines or imprisonment for those convicted of damaging park property, misusing facilities or polluting the water; the park gates are now closed every night at 10 p.m., a most effective step in controlling vandalism; irresponsible speeding has been reduced on Fairy Lake and the swimming - area off-limited to boats; the decrepit old grandstand has been torn down and plans laid to erect a new, modern structure; plans are also in ferment to drag and clear Fairy Lake of hazardous stumps and logs, some lying treacherously below the water's surface by inches.

Acton can congratulate itself for this summer's overwhelming mandate to create a Parks Board. Concrete value is being recognized. But many assents at a special vote is no place to stop. The members of the Parks Board are energetic and capable, but they need the help of every Actonian.

Other town organizations-the Fair board, Y' Men's Club, local Legion and Rotary Club - have co-operated actively to assist the Parks Board. Some of these groups have given work, others donated equipment to improve the park.

We're not asking citizens to band together for organized bees at the park. But on behalf of those organizations, led by the Parks Board, that are working so hard to better one of this town's most valuable assets, the least individual citizens can do is appreciate the efforts and the most they could do is co-operate and help when expected to or asked.

What Giveaways Next?

Ten or 15 years ago, when listening to the radio was still a popular pastime, programs in Canada like Share the Wealth or Double or Nothing could create quite a bit of excitement. True, these "giveaways" were comparatively small in cash or merchandise, but the participants and listening audience managed to build up a healthy ! state of interest.

Now we have TV and the big giveaways pip- been deprived of his right to vote. ed in from U.S. networks. Multi-million dollar corporations as sponsors of such-programs as The $64,000 Question, The $64,000 Challenge, The $100,000 Surprise and so on, have no compunction about ladling out the cash to cute or clever contestants when millions of viewers are supposed to be looking on.

Even the fact that the government takes about $40,000 of every $64,000 won doesn't seem to dull the edge off the sponsors promotional philanthropy.

But with the pots getting bigger, the peaks of suspense or excitement becoming harder to reach, the weekly run approached the 20,000 mark, or we find producers and participants in these shows becoming harder to please. Where the dollarscentred entertainment bandwagon will roll next is hard to guess. One TV writer has a cynical idea. He suggests a program where the contestant faces a double-barrelled shotgun. Press one trigger and out shoots a $1,000,000 wad of bills: press the other trigger and out comes a fatal round of buckshor. He calls this last word in giveaways: A Million or Your Life.

No country ever can teach its people thrift and industry by a national (bond) lottery suchas adopted in Britain. The lesson the British government should be impressing on the people is that money saved and invested can be made to add to the wealth of the whole country and the prosperity of all people, something that gambling can never do.-Kings County (N.B.) Record.

World Progress

It doesn't seem that long ago but on Monday of this week, September 10, 17 years have passed since Canada officially declared war on Germany and one of the Great Wars was underway.

.It took from 1939 to 1945 to wind up that great session of sorrow, suffering and sacrifice on the part of thousands. Those who came out of it realized man was on the verge of completely annihilating himself unless he started settling his differences around the conference table rather than outside.

But that was all 17 years ago. Ever since 1945 we have been going through an "I-dare-you state" termed a cold war. There have been many smaller conflicts from which the world has managed to emerge and for this we should be thankful there is a stronger guiding hand than that of man.

Perhaps it's time, however, as we reach this anniversary, that we realize Man's progress can no longer be measured with the thermometer of technological progress. The weight of the world's future will rest on the spiritual and moral development of the individual. When its effect reaches the world's conference tables the wars will end and settlements will be more amicable.

The Uncommon Vote

Perhaps it's just something we haven't gotten Working with only the residue of a budget-left | over from childhood days but we always enjoy reading the "funnies" in the daily papers. It is possible to learn from almost everything, however, and the "funnies" are certainly no excep-

Al Capp, the creator of Li'l Abner, has long been famous for his satire and although we can't always agree with its intent, the one currently being carried in this American election year seems particularly apt.

General Bullmoose is seeking election as president on the deep-freeze ticket. Since he doesn't want to offend two other fellows who seem to have the same idea by defeating them, he has is certain to make the "News." 35 of these could be termed "living proposed that all those who don't want him for president write and tell him. Only a pitifully few letters are expected in and it is to be assumed those who don't write would be satisfied with him for president.

Of course, the satire Al Capp is drawing scores the apathy of the public in a democracy to rexercise its franchise and choose its leaders.

Undoubtedly the subject is not a new one. Thousands of words have been dunned at the general public urging that they vote. In one trade magazine originating in the United States we noticed advertisements were being prepared for language is another feature. The circulation during the election year urging voters to know their candidates and vote.

It seems the planners of the campaign have come to the realization that for voters to vote is not the only requisite; they should also know who and what they are voting for.

Undoubtedly the strength of democracy is that it assures the right of the individual to think for himself. Its weakness lies in the refusal of some individuals to exercise that right.

Canada's election year may be this year or it may be next year. Every town and township has elections yearly or every two years. From a list of cities across Canada, Quebec was the only one which polled over 60 per cent. of its electorate at - itte last municipal elections. Halifax, London and Vancouver each polled less than 40 per cent. Calgary polled 20 per cent. of its electorate and Edmonton 12.5 per cent.

While it might be as ridiculous as it sounds, perhaps some General Bullmoose on the deep freeze ticket could get elected if the apathy of the Canadian voting public penetrates any deeper into the mind of the individual who has never

More People in Home Market

-. Up to only a few years ago, points out The Financial Post, Canada had to have a big export of beef cattle in order to keep the domestic mar-Let healthy.

Now we are producing more beef than ever before but we are eating all of it ourselves. Catrie are coming on the Canadian markets at the rate of around 33,000 a week and Canadians are consuming them al!. Before the war whenever less than two-thirds of today, prices began to sag.

There are two reasons why we are eating more beef-more prosperity and more people.

With moderate prices people are eating beef freely and regularly not just, occasionally. But more important is, the fact that we have more people, almost 16 millions compared with less than 12 millions prewar and all that increase and more has been in urban population, in food consumers not food producers.

It is that growth in population, that growth in the domestic market that is solving many of our former farm marketing problems. And population growth will continue to solve these problems provided we are sensible and let prices and production follow their natural courses. Aside from wheat, in which Canada is major world producer, practically everything the farmer will be growing 25 years from now will be absorbed by the domestic market.

THIS SMILING LAD, his grin nearly as broad as the battered brim of the straw hat, certainly seems to have something under his hat besides his hair. No doubt he's getting a kick out of one or another of the countless curiosities that amuse a boy at the time of life when laughter comes easily.
