

Piece by piece a 15-ton Goss Cox-o-type newspaper press has been assembled in the plant of the Dills Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd. Here erector Ben Duce, from Chicago, directs the early phases of assembly.

Major Expansion Program for Free Press Adds Metropolitan-Type Press to Plant

Copies of this newspaper will, with this issue and in the future, be printed from 1400 pound rolls containing nine miles of newsprint loaded on the front of the press. As the paper streams through the complicated mechanism it will be printed and folded with the machine delivering completed sections.

Mr. Dills reviewed that investigation of the installation had been underway for the past three years and necessitated a plant addition of 31 feet by 35 feet with a specially constructed pit, and new stereotyping room.

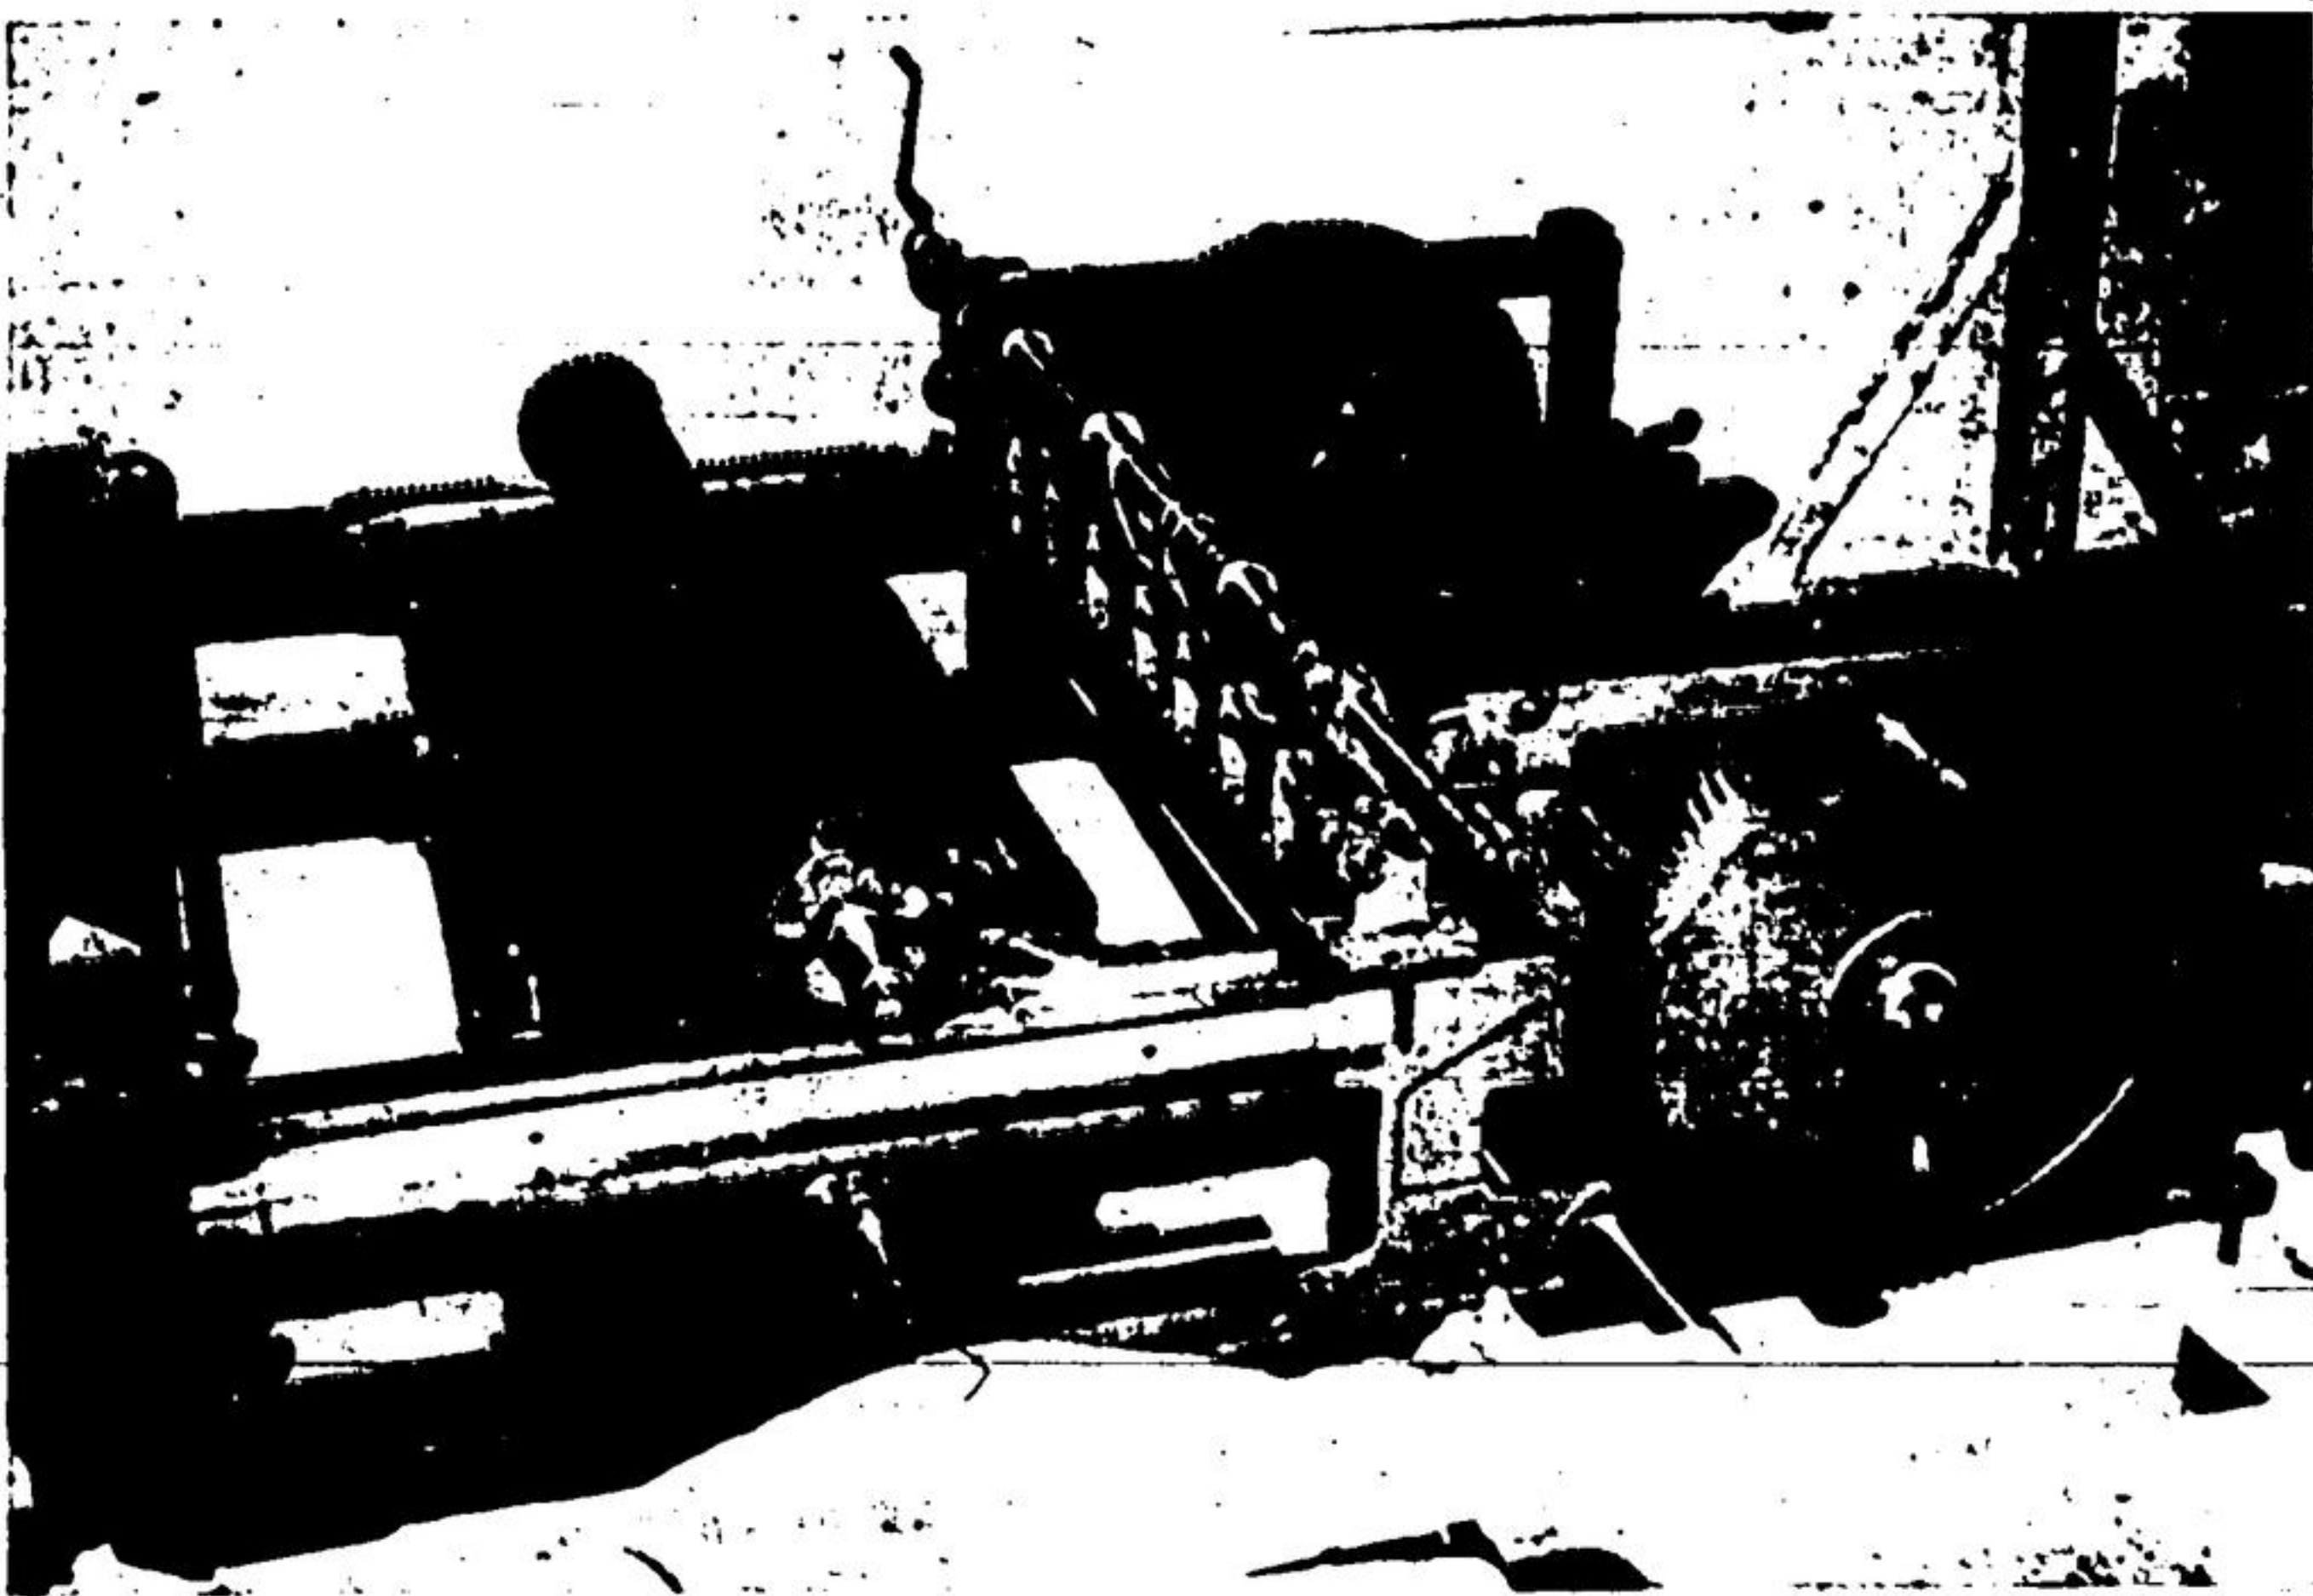

The 15 ton machine, transported from Chicago by transport in pieces, will produce papers at the rate of 3,500 an hour, eight pages at a time. Formerly the paper was printed four pages at a time with each sheet being fed by hand at the rate of 1,000 an hour. Folding followed on a separate machine.

Speaking of the heavy investment involved, the firm's president described the move as a vision toward a progressive future as evidenced by the tremendous growth in this part of Ontario and in Halton particularly. "This press could handle a small daily newspaper without taxing its capacity and provision has been made to double this press installation in the future, if necessary," Mr. Dills noted in outlining the extent of the installation.

Describing the addition of the color service, Mr. Dills pointed out "the advent of color printing as applied to flat bed newspaper presses is something that, while entirely new, has become quite a necessity in order to keep abreast of modern trends, especially advertising."

"This installation is the answer to the dream of editors of smaller dailies and weeklies to offer the advertiser some method of supplying color that could be adapted to newspaper pages printed on a flat bed press a method whereby the cost would not be prohibitive to both publisher and advertiser," the president noted.

A view from above during the construction of the modern newspaper press with color provisions, shows the press growing in readiness for the production of the firm's newspapers.

Final phases of assembly are being reached as the erector and pressman Albert Schupp make adjustments on the press that is expected to speed the newspaper printing process by six times.

Ask Ethnic Group Assist in Program

An appeal has gone out this week to representatives of New Canadian ethnic groups to participate in a local Community Night being planned for Acton Park under the direction of Mrs. E. Buckner and Bill Wilson.

The present plans for the evening include a night of Scottish dancing and singing with pipe bands and the Acton band. Sponsors of the plan are the Scottish Country Dance club and the local Duke of Devonshire Chapter I.O.D.E., with proceeds for the work of the I.O.D.E. and the schools for retarded children in Milton and Guilford.

Officials of the planning group have invited members of the New Canadian ethnic groups to present a national folk song and dance in traditional costume. Conveners of this part of the program will be Mrs. J. Whitham and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dunham.

The primary industries—agriculture, forestry, fisheries, trapping, mining and electric power—now employ only about 30 per cent. of all working Canadians. In recent years, investment in new plants and equipment in the Canadian manufacturing industry has averaged nearly three quarters of a billion dollars annually. The game of golf originated in Holland, was developed in Scotland and introduced in North America at the Royal Montreal golf club in 1873.
