Tanning Research Program Explained by Ex-President

Montreal, Oct. 16th—Lucien Blouin, president of Edgar Clément Ltd., Quebec City, and outgoing president of the Taners Association of Canada, speaking of the extensive research program set up in the tanning field, said that while this is a long range venture, it has already made possible many practical achievements.

Mr. Blouin explained that with skin manufacturers and other leather users bringing inventories down to a normal level, a real blackening in taners' bookings had resulted. Consequently, deliveries could not reach the previous year's high level. Curtailed production to a reduced demand effected a brief weakness in prices.

The export of raw hides and finished leather has slowed down to the Sterling areas due to currency shortage. However, since mid-summer, several large shipments have moved abroad.

With taners' bookings and deliveries on a definite upward trend at present, it is evident excess inventories have been reduced. Judging by present conditions, better and steeper demand can be expected in the months ahead.

Educating an interested consumer public through proper channels, says Mr. Blouin, has motivated preference for and a growing appreciation of leather. The Canadian tanning industry has this year produced new textures, a variety of new colors and a new fashion creativity to match the inspiration of the country.

Kenneth Montgomery, of John A. Lang and Sons Ltd., Kitchener, Ont. is the new president of the Taners Association of Canada, vice-president, Harold P. Davis, of A. Davis and Son Ltd., Kingston, Ont., Director.
