

4-H Club Members Compete at Fair Hold Achievement Day Program

At Millon Fair on September 27th and 28th, six 4-H Clubs held their Achievement Day Program. In 4-H Club Work the member attends a series of meetings during the year to learn good husbandry practices of the agricultural project in which he is enrolled. "Learn to do by doing" is the principle of 4-H Club Work, and each member looks after his or her own project, keeps cost of production figures on the project, and finally, exhibits at the Achievement Day.

List Winners In Potato Club

Each of the fourteen Potato Club members completed their club project by exhibiting at the Achievement Day. This gives the Club one hundred percent completion, an honour each 4-H Club strives to achieve. David Hume stood first in the Club, with 917 points out of a total of 1000. George Greenless was runner-up with 914. Other Club standings were:

Planners Want Industry May Rezone Bronte Land

TRAFALGAR—The Trafalgar Planning Board has recommended that the triangle of land lying west of the Twelve Mile Creek bordered by the Queen Elizabeth Highway and the Nelson-Trafalgar boundary be rezoned for industrial use. The exception to the recommendation for industrial rezoning is the ravine bordering the Twelve Mile Creek, and a wooded area on the Burkholder property.

Planning director E. R. Cumming presented a report on the proposed rezoning of the property at a meeting of the Planning Board in Palermo. He recommended that the land be rezoned for industrial use but suggested that some consideration be given to the wooded ravine and the Burkholder bush.

Explaining the industrial pattern between Burlington and Clarkson, Mr. Cumming recommended that the board examine the over-all development picture. "It is apparent that the land in question forms part of a large industrial complex," he said.

"It is desirable to consider the effects of spoiling the wooded areas by industries," he added. "There would appear to be justification for extending the conservation zone to include the wooded areas adjacent to the valley."

Mr. Cumming went on to say that in no case should the zone boundary be established nearer the top of the bank than 300 feet. The conservation zone would permit the residential uses of two acre lots which was an extremely low density and any such residents would be responsible for their own services.

Mr. Cumming asked the board to give careful consideration to the Burkholder bush and suggested the inclusion of this bush in the conservation area to be discarded with the Conservation Authority and the provincial department.

The Planning Board has already recommended that the conservation zone be established to include the wooded areas adjacent to the ravine of the Twelve Mile Creek, and that it should in no case be less than 250 feet wide.

In 1967 only the four provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario united to form the Dominion of Canada.

Tipson Touring

Women's Travel Authority

Let's look ahead a few weeks. You've got an important date first thing in the morning. As you go to get your car you see the thermometer. It's the first cold day of the season.

Does the motor spin over and start fast? Or does it groan once they're frozen as tight as the cubes in your ice box?

If you have beaten Jack Frost to the punch everything will be fine. Now's the time to be sure you will.

Here's what our Shell engineers told me to do:

Get the local dealer to check your battery. The colder the engine the harder to start. The battery is the first victim of the extra load.

Have the cooling system drained, cleaned and supplied with antifreeze.

Ask him to check the oil and the filter. Most cars used for around-town driving in winter never warm up to the best operating temperature. This is hard on the oil, and it should be changed more often—to protect the metal surface in the engine.

Be sure your tires are in good shape. Worn treads increase driving hazards on ice. In regions with heavy snowfalls, snow tires make driving easier—and prolong the life of your regular tires for clear-road driving.

The BIBLE TODAY

"Love of the Bible is part of British character throughout the world."

Respect for the Bible is inherent in all British tradition throughout the world.

"Insight into the Bible is part of the British way of life" so stated Dr. W. J. Platt addressing a recent meeting of the Bible Society.

We know, however, that those things are shared with other nations and the necessary machinery exists, and is used, in a wide co-operative effort through the organization of the United Bible Societies to share the Scriptures throughout the world.

It is easy to recognize that the demand for the Bible is increasing in most fields throughout the world. Indeed, in most countries the per cent increase in Scripture circulation exceeds the percentage increase of the Christian communities. The Bible is therefore both within and beyond the churches.

It is the faith of the Bible Society that by its world-wide distribution of the Scriptures placed judiciously, strategically and imaginatively in all places for all men that it is doing a supremely important work whereby under the Spirit of God men of all nations can begin to be new men of God.
