Best Reports From Ottawa

One of the most interesting aspects of the recent week was a trip to Ottawa by General Lauris Norstad, Commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Forces in Europe. This two day visit has been reported considerably in the press and well it might, for the discussion and facts which he told us, are of concern to all. He addressed a joint meeting of the Commons and Senate on Thursday morning, November 14.

One of the matters of most interest to us and particularly in Halton county, concerned his remarks on manned aircraft. He stated that he felt they would be necessary for some time to come. The controversy at present swirling around missiles versus more conventional military defence weapons depends greatly on technical knowledge and the opinion of General Norstad, with his known influence and ability, must carry considerable weight.

There is a variety of evidence to indicate that the Russians themselves, public announcements to the contrary, believe in this decision of balancing more conventional military methods with long range weapons of the future. Their immense submarine fleet, growing all the time, would seem to indicate some dependence on more restricted types of aggression and economic control, although they might also be used for the launching of various types of new missiles.

Some reconciliation of these various ideas must be inevitable. One of the great dangers in placing all emphasis, either by Canada or the West in general, upon modern missiles and other electronic devices, is the possibility that we might not be able to handle smaller acts of local aggression. This could lead, through lack of control, to an all-out global war. In some way we must be prepared both for local or small acts of aggression, be able to deal with them in a rapid and efficient manner, and as well, face the defence of this continent with the many new and extraordinary methods which are gaining tremendously each day. Much of the decision on just where this balance must lie, of course, financial, since the cost of all types of programs are very heavy. The hundreds of air bases of NATO scattered from the northern tip of Norway in a huge arc into Turkey and in a very considerable depth, together with our own system of defence here in North America, make it highly unlikely that any simultaneous surprise attack could completely undermine our defences or our retaliatory powers.

A number of Members made an interesting visit a few days ago to CMHC, the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. This body, criticized and admired at various times, fulfills an interesting function in the rehabilitation of older and rundown areas of cities and towns across Canada. Upon application by a municipality and through a provincial government, the Corporation considers methods to tear down in some cases, and then rebuild what might be termed "slum areas" of our cities.

Two major projects are either under way or near completion at the moment. The Regent Park development in Toronto and one of approximately equal size on St. Catherine St. in Montreal, focused one's attention to the greatest degree. Each are capable of housing approximately 750 families. They are designed, in contrast to the twisted area of old houses on the site previously, to give air and freedom, places for children to play, cars to park and a much more harmonious, orderly and clean home existence.

These projects vary considerably in size and in some cities and towns they have been undertaken for as small a group as 12 family units. Their method of financing varies as well, with the federal government paying 75 per cent of the cost generally and the remainder being divided between the municipality and the province in question. The housing itself usually features tall apartment buildings, as well as low, one or two story motel-like structures. The latter are generally for families with young children.

It seems the Russian Embassy in Ottawa is always busy. Each day perhaps twice a day at times, colored newsletters arrive on a member's desk with various and varied topics of Communist information and propaganda.

Titles of articles range from The Scientific Importance of Artificial Earth Satellites to A New Palace for Juvenile Nature Lovers on the Outskirts of Kiev. A recent publication, USSR Illustrated News, has numerous descriptive articles including The USSR Strives for Peace and Friendly Co-operation. Work is a joy by a foreman of a steel plant, Happy Collective Farm Life by a presumably happy collective farmer, and many others.

The profusion of information or verbiage that is turned out is quite amazing, the most recent being the Fortieth Anniversary of the Great October Revolution, by the Propaganda and Agitation Department of the Central Committee of the Communist party. Obviously this is all pretty ridiculous, but it goes to show that with all the masses of propaganda produced, there have been some facts and some ability, they can at least point to the Sputniks for that.

Urges Lorne Scots' Officers Closer Civil Defense Liaison

The closest possible co-operation and liaison with civilian civil defence authorities was urged by Brigadier Michael S. Dunn, Area Commander, Central Ontario Area, when he addressed the Annual Officers' Mess Dinner of the Lorne Scots (P.D. & Rgt) at Brampton Armoury last Friday evening.

Steeped in tradition, such as the piping in and addressing of the haggis, the enjoyable banquet seemed to bridge the historic past with the challenging future. The hearty applause given Brig. Dunn's address seemed to confirm the fact that "a new concept of war" would find the Lorne Scots ready, willing and able.

Brigadier Dunn, former Cornwall high school principal, who won the OBE for his heroic actions at Dieppe, stressed that civil defence was not a new role for the Lorne Scots and the Army generally, but rather an extension of their other responsibilities. The brigadier was introduced by Major Art Kemp of Burlington, 2 IC of the regiment, and thanked by Lt. Col. S. R. Charters the CO.

Another guest speaker, touching on the regiment's civil defence assignments was Col. James Westhead, chief Staff Officer of 16 Militia Group. Col. Westhead pointed out that guarding and protecting the hearth and home were not new roles for volunteer militia units and reminded his audience of the Indian fighting and road-building efforts of pioneer-day militiamen.

Dedicate New Organ For Arkell Church

A special service was held in Arkell United Church on Sunday evening when the dedication of a new Thompson Electronic Organ took place.

The Rev. Ernest E. Baskier, Supervising Pastor of the Ebenezer Charge of which Arkell Church is a part officiated at the dedication service assisted by the minister, Kenneth Griffiths.

Following the dedication, Miss Gerrie Smeenk played an organ solo, "Communion" giving the congregation their first opportunity to hear the lovely instrument. In his sermon, Mr. Baskier compared the congregation in Arkell to the people in the time of Nehemiah who had made great sacrifices to build a place of worship. "People do not mind sacrifice," he said, "if it is a labour of love."

Present in the congregation were several former organists that included, Mrs. S. Hume, Miss M. Cook and Miss Ella Tolton. The first organist was Mrs. H. Fletcher, now deceased. Miss I. Decker and Mrs. E. Snow also played here. Mrs. S. Hume remembered a melodrama given by George Norriah, many years ago.

Vocational Guidance Topic At Home and School Meeting

Len Peer, teacher at the Guelph Collegiate, spoke to the Home and School Association on Monday, November 18 at the Robert Little school auditorium. His topic was Vocational Guidance.

Stressing guidance, Mr. Peer told the audience that parents should help their children to learn to face problems independently. Parents have failed often enough to anticipate dangers and should stress these factors to their children. Although it will not stop the child entirely from making mistakes, it will correct many faults. The speaker pointed out the fact that parents try to keep young with their children and this tends to make them try to hang onto the child when the child should be on his own.

Mr. Peer stressed the danger in handing out privileges so freely that they tend to become rights. The child should assume a responsibility as soon as he receives his first allowance or wage and learn how to handle the allowance before receiving more. The need of security, belonging in groups, along with achievement

Eden Crest W.I. Plan Activities

The November meeting of the Eden Crest Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Perry, Eden Mills, with the Branch Directors as hostesses.

The roll call, how electricity helps me in my home, was answered by 19 members. The evening was spent in games and contests, and in discussions of Christmas activities. It was decided that the Institute should "adopt" a child in one of the underprivileged countries of Europe or Asia.

These sponsorships are arranged by the Canadian Save the Children's Organization, and the modest sum of $50 per year ensures a child of the necessities of existence. It was also decided to contribute $10 to the Guelph and District Association for Retarded Children. Plans were also made to provide Christmas gifts to needy children in the district. It was also gratifying to learn that the children of the local schools had been so successful collecting pennies for Unicef on Halloween. The meeting closed with a delicious lunch.
