

White Glads, Candelabra Setting Agar-Dolmage Wedding Vows

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kitchener, was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and lit by candles for the marriage of Helen Catherine Dolmage and Flying Officer John L. Agar, Saturday, September 5 at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Dr. F. O. Stewart officiated at the double ring ceremony and E. Johnstone played the wedding music.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dolmage of Kitchener. The groom, a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College and now in the Air Force, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Agar of Acton.

Nylon Chiffon Gown

The bride wore a white length gown of white nylon chiffon over net and tissue tulle, accented with a re-embroidered lace bodice fashioned with a scoop neckline and brief sleeves. The fitted dropped waistline extended into a bouffant skirt. Her pill box head-dress was trimmed with iridescent sequins and seed pearls and held her shoulder length scalloped veil of silk illusion.

She carried a bouquet of pink and white sweetheart roses, white feathered carnations and alexandria.

She was given in marriage by her father.

Weekly Newspaper's Importance Stressed at C.W.N.A. Convention

There is an encouraging evidence that business and industry are beginning to realize more than ever the important market that weeklies serve in Canada, Hugh E. McCormick, of the Montreal Monitor and Incoming President of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, told more than 400 delegates attending the 30th annual convention last week in Toronto.

But, he said, there never had been a time in the long and colorful history of the weekly newspaper industry in Canada, when there was a more urgent need to promote weeklies as a key to advertising media in the business life of the nation.

Five Million Readers

For 100 years the weekly press has had its problems but nothing like today when competition from other media, rising costs, employee demands and so on, threaten our very existence as a force in our national life," Mr. McCormick said.

He noted that the immediate past president, Cecil Day, in his opening address at the convention, had mentioned that in Colorado, an average of three weekly newspapers per year are being closed down for good.

One of the major reasons for this tragic death of such community spirit is that we haven't been keeping up with the fast pace of business competition," he said.

"We haven't been going after the revenue of national and local advertisers that there is for us and which helps keep us in business."

Standards High

Mr. McCormick felt that the Better Newspapers Competition of the C.W.N.A. was raising the excellence of weeklies. "An attractive looking paper is an added inducement to the advertiser," he pointed out.

Mr. McCormick said that the 725 odd weeklies in Canada were a big potential market whose impact on national life cannot be over-estimated. He noted that of the 265 constituencies in the House of Commons, 194 at last count were served by weekly newspapers.

For the work of the C.W.N.A. in promoting the cause of the weekly press, Mr. McCormick had nothing but praise.

"In the 22 years that I have been attending C.W.N.A. conventions, I have been impressed by the social value of the association," he said. "Its value as a fraternal group has always impressed me, but more recently I have come to see that the C.W.N.A. can be a powerful instrument in furthering the good of the industry."

Real Avenue

"In our efforts to get more of the advertising dollar in Canada, the C.W.N.A., through its committees, is the best avenue we have," he said. "Through the C.W.N.A. we can, I am sure, find ways and means to increase our advertising revenues."

To Adopt Demerit Point System To Control Chronic Violators

A further step to protect safe drivers from chronic violators of the Highway Traffic Act and the Criminal Code will be taken when the Ontario Department of Transport introduces a driver demerit point system later this week. A G. MacNab, registrar of motor vehicles, told delegates to the Road Safety Workshops 1958 in Toronto recently. The safety conference was sponsored by the Highway Safety Branch of the Ontario Department of Transport.

"To gain maximum benefit from experience of 21 other jurisdictions in operating demerit point systems, representatives of both the Ontario Department of Transport and the Department of the Attorney-General have, for the past few months, made close studies of these systems," Mr. MacNab said.

"From those studies we have a tentative point value proposal which is being studied further. Upon the accumulation of six points for convictions, a warning letter is to be sent. When a driver reaches nine demerit points, he will be called to the Department for a hearing, which can result in either probation or immediate suspension. Mandatory suspension occurs at 12 demerit points.

Convictions for criminal negligence involving the use of a motor vehicle, motor manslaughter, driving while intoxicated or while ability is impaired, obtaining a driver's license by fraud, and driving while under suspension, carry the maximum point total of 12 and mandatory suspension. Leaving the scene of an accident will carry nine demerits. Convictions for careless driving and exceeding the speed limit of 30 m.p.h. or more carry five demerit points.

of North Carolina on the subject of demerit point systems and while a preliminary report has been presented to the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the final report is scheduled for presentation at a conference in San Francisco later this month. Mr. MacNab pointed out that representatives of the province will be present to discuss the report in the light of Ontario's requirements.
