

A SADIE HAWKINS DANCE was sponsored by the student council of Acton High School on Saturday, November 8, at the Y.M.C.A., and many varied costumes appeared on the students. Persons attending alone had to pay one cent for each inch measured around the waistline and couples standing back to back had to pay according to total waist measurement. Pictured above, front row, left to right, are Eira Koski, Peter Newton and Anne Dauntith. Back row, Nancy Skippen, Peter Newton and his sister Diane.

On Saturday, November 8, at some of the couples were married. Sadie Hawkins dance was held at the Y.M.C.A. There were some costumed dancers as well as many more. Pete Robinson and Mary Jane were the first to be married. There were about six couples who came to join in the fun and quite a few couples followed before the end of the dance. All the couples were measured around the waist with a cent for every inch. The couples were put back to back to back and measured. This netted some extra money for the student council.

Prizes were given for the best male and female costumes. The male costume prize was won by Peter Newton and the female costume prize was won by Anne Dauntith. While they were there, there will be a dance afterwards.

Plan Huge Santa Claus Parade Arrange for 21 Floats and Bands

A big Santa Claus parade will be held in Acton on December 5, with 21 floats, two bands and many other attractions. The Acton Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of individuals and organizations has almost completed arrangements for the big day.

Arrangements with the Georgetown Lions Club to use floats from their Santa Claus parade have been finalized and the committee are now arranging last minute details for the parade route, distribution of candy and other minor details.

Parade Committee Working on the parade committee are J. Dedet, R. Deveau, A. Bands and M. Symon.

The committee pointed out this week that any contributions toward financing this event would be greatly appreciated and could be made to any member of the committee.

Chamber officials also noted this week that additional Christmas lighting would be added to the front street and an attempt would be made to beautify other areas.

Retarded Children's Hospital Toured by District Delegates

Three delegates, Mrs. Jean McLean, Campbellville; Mrs. Irene Barker and Mrs. Ann McGrath of Acton, represented the Milton and District Association for Retarded Children at the fourth annual Invitational Conference held in the Hospital School at Orillia on October 24 and 25.

On Friday the visiting parents and delegates toured the dormitories and classrooms where special training is given to the retarded and handicapped boys and girls enabling many of them to find a place in the community. Through out the hospital there were many signs of overcrowding but the dormitories and classrooms were all decorated for Halloween and everywhere there was smiles and laughter. In the evening the children gave a concert including numbers by their famous choir and band.

Waiting List

The opening address on Saturday by C. J. Bowey of Carlton Place put forward the future situation. With the help of Diagnostic Mental Health Clinics established in the communities many retarded children could remain in the warmer environments of their own homes especially in early childhood.

Temporary Centre

D. C. A. Buck told a luncheon meeting that the Department of Health is conducting a research and screening center where between 50 and 100 children would be accommodated temporarily and their special needs diagnosed. Centres such as this should be within easy reach of suburban areas, benefiting parents, schools and children. Dr. Buck stated work had begun on the new school at Guelph, and a civilian contract given for the one at Cedar Springs.

After luncheon, discussions brought forward resolutions on uniform clothing for the institutions, planned visitations of all interested parties at the discretion of the hospital staff and the recommendations on admission procedures.

F. C. Hamilton, medical superintendent at Orillia, stated the case of patients on the waiting lists, when severely handicapped children are sometimes kept on these lists for several years whilst less handicapped children are admitted almost immediately under political pressure placed on the governing body.

On this very serious question, the conference made a resolution to be placed before the federal government that all admissions to the hospitals be submitted to a selection board and considered only on terms of physical and mental seriousness.

The Institutions Conference was attended by 240 parents and delegates from 48 Ontario Associations.

Further help or information locally may be obtained from the District Association for Retarded Children, Milton.

Directed by Jack out of entering contest of the year.

Mrs. Davidson had no errors in the original contest but many homely drapes were tied. A tie-breaker decided the winners and again many were tied. The cash prizes were evenly divided. Winners were announced last Saturday.

Asked what she would do with her winnings, Mrs. Davidson remarked, "Probably buy more dresses."

The Action winner pointed out that contests were her hobby and that she had won in contests several times before. In the same contest she had won $100 one year and on another occasion won $50. She also recalled that in the Farmers

Advocate contest five years ago she was one of the lucky winners in that was $100.

Each a big kick out of entering contest of the year.

Mrs. Davidson remarked, "But I am not one of the winners and I look forward to further success."

In the latest contest there were several other contestants from Acton and district. There were winners in Milton and Georgetown.
