County to Pay $4 Fox Bounty Duke of Argyll Visits Regiment

The three recommendations if approved by County Council at the November meeting Tuesday afternoon would become effective on Nov. 1. It is believed that the disease is being spread this way by wandering foxes and the following precautions were given:

• To date the disease has been confined mostly to foxes and tracks of foxes to farm animals and wildlife which may have been attacked and bitten by rabid foxes.

• The symptoms of rabies are first shagginess of the hair, then unusual or hysterical behaviour of the animal. Diseased animals will eventually die without any outward trace of the disease.

Wear Against Touch

• The rabies germ may spread to a cut on the hand if a human touches the flesh of a rabid animal so all residents are warned against touching even dead animals until several hours after death.

• If you see an animal behaved crudely shoot it and bury it or call a veterinarian or the Health of Animals Branch Department of Agriculture, Brantford.

Another suggestion at last night's meeting was to open the district south of Highway 5 in Thafalgar for a fox hunt. Mr. Reed pointed out the area between the Upper Middle Road and Highway 5 is heavily infested with fox, deer and other wildlife but a year-old law prohibits the discharge of firearms.

He said trapping is allowed but no local men employ this means of killing animals. Opening the district for a short hunt, he said, would help clear out the foxes before rates hit the area. The clerk is to make the suggestion to Thafalgar council.

To date in Halton, only one sure case of rabies in foxes has been reported and that was a case near Georgetown last week. Three other cases may prove to be rabies, and all are in the northern end of the county above Georgetown and Acton. Meanwhile, frightened residents have been plaguing the Game Warden's home with reports of rabid foxes, dogs and even groundhogs.

Wednesday morning on the Burlington Beach strip, a charging fox was found dead without wounds after some children were playing with it, and a police officer handled the carcass before the Game Warden was notified. The carcass was picked up later in the day by Department officials for testing. The same day, a fox bit cattle in Nassagawawa township then attacked horses in a field.

All township clerks and others handling the fox carcasses when presented for bounties, have been

Major Cook noted that the municipalities should be concerned because a serious layoff would leave the town to find the relief dollars that might be necessary.

Councillor J. Hurst, Acton, suggested that at a cost of $40,000 per Arrow, one would cost each taxpayer $1 a year and $5 would cost 50 cents a week. "I feel that when the true cost of the program is determined the Arrow will be in production."

Deputy Reeve Mary Pettit, Milton noted that all the publicity on the problem had had a distressing effect on the workers. "I don't feel the municipality can ignore this feeling of doubt".

Varied Discussions

Discussion at the balance of the meeting revolved around the need for employees to have an interest in the election of their labor representatives—the invitation of a Bell Telephone representative to the first meeting in the new year to review existing telephone boundaries; procedural by-laws; payments to members of municipal group; the importance of full municipal elections; and the use of a mail system.
