

A Preferred Class

Action like every other town is a free enterprise community and establishment of a business here is normally accepted as the right of an individual. Permission to operate stores in the town is not necessarily given or asked of council.

Businesses are not normally established on any special invitation from council. While the occupation may be a useful and profitable one, council rarely asks individuals to establish special services or retail outlets.

It would appear however, that there is a preferred class. Council has taken upon itself the extension of an invitation for the establishment of a liquor store here. Obviously those who sell liquor have not yet decided that Action requires such a service, or they might have been more anxious to establish themselves here without receipt of any invitation.

We may well question the requirement of such an outlet in Action. As we read news papers daily we find it hard to believe the tax income in comparison with some of the highway fatalities and domestic difficulties that often arise as a result of too much liquor. To say that drinking will not increase with the establishment of another outlet is indeed a fallacy. Business down through the ages has proven the value of opening new outlets if it is to expand.

Why do we need a liquor store? We spend money on campaigns to keep liquor off the highways to avoid the hazard that results from drinking drivers but we do not do anything to control the number of outlets or the ease with which supplies are obtained.

Action needs a place where the unemployed could register to avoid weekly trips to Guelph that they might obtain the same facilities available to them.

We are firm in feeling that Action was not being served well when council decided that one of the retail outlets to which they should extend a special invitation is a liquor store. Action can an unemployment office would be much more advantageous.

Any Site Here?

Does this community have historic sites worthy of the recognition afforded when a special silver and gold marker is erected by the Archaeological and Historical Sites Board?

We look to wondering at one of the other days as we ready another site being marked by the active group formed in 1957.

Since the summer of that year the Ontario group has been marking more than 120 sites with gold and blue plaques including all the authentic historic data.

Just last week a historical marker commemorating the Haggart Brothers Agricultural Works was dedicated at Brampton. The marker in this case was erected by the

Our Hardy Eskimos

Eskimos, our northern neighbors, are generally considered a hardy lot and it came as a surprise to learn from a recent report that 23 per cent of Eskimos born are dead within a year.

The death rate within the first year of life accounts for about half of all Eskimo deaths and about half the infant deaths occur in the first month.

That we might intelligently compare the situation we turned to the recent report of the Halton County Health Unit where Dr. Bill points out Halton County with its population of 85,000 had an infant mortality rate of 16, just half what it was 10 years ago.

Speaking at the Lambeth Conference in London, England, Rt. Rev. Donald Marshall, Anglican Bishop of the Arctic stated that

The Hungry Fighters

The effect of receiving things on silver platters can have disastrous effects not only in business but also in the field of education.

Murray G. Ross, vice president of the University of Toronto, has called for "more hungry fighters" for the class rooms. Canada's universities need the kind of person that is highly motivated by a burning desire to succeed or to excel.

Dr. Ross saw the hungry fighters of Russia and China during his recent travels. In those countries he was struck by an awareness of backwoodsman, a desire to catch up, a vision of future greatness, a determination to do one's share in a great collective effort. Back in Canada he sensed a feeling that progress is inevitable, that great person-

Her Way

An investment consultant reports finding a lady with an ingenious home-made system for buying and selling securities.

The lady eschewed the services of a broker and told her bank what and when to buy. But she bought only securities of companies that were advertised regularly in her favorite magazine. She figured that if the company was sound enough to buy advertisements regularly it was sound for her savings.

This reasoning might be discussed as a

"One of the major problems is that everything is now handed out to the Eskimo in the form of relief, family allowance and so on." He concluded that "this saps the independence of the Eskimo."

Steadily rising infant mortality among the Eskimos is a serious situation and one that can be indicative of the problems ahead in development of the north. These Eskimos, we once thought extremely hardy, are apparently being softened as the effects of so-called civilization reaches toward it.

The effects of civilization should be to strengthen rather than deteriorate the conditions and the ability of people to survive.

We'll need hardy souls if Canada's north is to be developed.

to Riches

A effort is not essential in life, that striving for excellence in antiquated.

The vice-president pointed out that Russian learning is superior through teaching is inferior to our own. The Soviet student has been trained since grade one to listen carefully, to work at home or in the library on his own, to accept the fact that much learning depends on his own work. The Canadian student wants the teacher to inform him, interest him and humor him without asking him to exert himself.

Our way of life is not especially conducive to the breeding of "hungry fighters" but unless we hurdle the vague illusion that progress is inevitable we may indeed be smothered in education as in other fields of advancement.

kind of unfathomable, female logic.

The consultant, however—Michael William McCarthy, managing partner of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith—points out, "It is possible more than a mere coincidence that so many companies that are consistent advertisers also have consistent earnings and dividend records."

In any case as an investment program, it has certain obvious advantages over ouija boards and sticking pins in newspapers. The Financial Post.

"Melancholy Days"

GOT AROUND the other day to clearing out a file labelled "editorial". For some time it had been collecting items I thought might be useful in the weekly preparation of editorial comment. It's really amazing how some of these things pile up and the file had gotten so thick that something really had to be done about it. This led to an unusual housecleaning and disposal of many topical and controversial articles that might have been discussed in editorial columns if the necessary research had been followed through. Space is often quite a limitation.

I PICKED up this poem the other day that seems to have a cheering thought. I've got a heap of troubles And I've got to work them out, But I look around and see There's troubles all about. And when I see my troubles I just take up and grin And count all the troubles That I am in.

CAR manufacturers must be noticing some of the economy-interest small cars are attracting. The Financial Post noted recently that while last year 33 of the models of 1958 automobiles needed premium gasoline, this year only 27 require premium gasoline.

HUNTING PARTIES seem to be the popular groups these days as they return from northern hunts with innumerable deer slung over their cars or trucks. Hunters I have talked with have reported a good supply of deer in the northern bush. I'm afraid I'd never make a hunter though I'd never make for the deer.

IT MAY BE worth checking your attic for old stamps. A Canadian collection sold for $45,000 in a recent auction in London, England. It included a 12 penny black worth $7,500. Dealers in the United Kingdom report the market has never been better.

APPARENTLY I'm one of the few in the district who hasn't been over the new Burlington Bay Skyway. One driver told me recently he had driven a considerable distance and cut the time in half compared with the time the same trip took on Thanksgiving Day through the old Burlington Beach road.

DARKNESS seems to creep in earlier since the return to standard time and one of the particular problems that accompanies it is that the number of bicyclists without lights. On two different occasions I come dangerously close to not seeing them in time. I can only hope that other motorists are as lucky and that the number of after-dark cyclists without lights decreases.
