Six Guides Now at Camp

Off to camp for two weeks are six Girl Guides, Janet Adams, Janet Hogin-Libon, Kathryn Higgins, Jill Hurst, Sandra Hargrave and Vicki Nixon. The first four were driven to camp by Clarence Rognvaldsson, while the other two went separately.

They are at Camp Kwanza near Dunnville on Lake Erie. It's the girls' camp for the Hamilton area.

This is the first session of the summer and lasts for a fortnight.

The girls wore their blue camp uniforms for leaving on Sunday morning. While they're there they will pass guide tests as well as enjoy full camp program of nature hikes, sports, swimming and camping.

Some Acton girls went to the same camp last year, and improvements have been noted since then.

Familiar Faces At Church Camp

Rev. Gordon Adams is a counselor at Hunter Glen camp — and with him there are his wife — the camp business administrator — his son Kenny a camper and about a dozen more of his Acton United church parishioners! There are 14 lads from the church at the camp near Bolton this week.

The boys left Sunday in various cars with all their gear.

Next week the girls take over, when a dozen from the church will be at camp. Mrs. E. Laddie is going up next weekend as camp nurse.

Many of the church youth days at the camp this spring helped prepare for the season of activity.

Drink for Flowers

Drinking straws cut to size are excellent holders for small flowers in bowls. They keep them erect and allow the water to get to the stems.

MID-WEEK START

Here is a message from the Ontario Safety League to all who are planning to leave on vacation by car: "Do you have to start at the weekend? You would travel in greater comfort and safety if you could begin and end your vacation in mid-week."

36 Leaders Attend Training Course

There are 36 cub leaders taking the training course at the Blue Springs Scout Reserve this week. Along with the staff of five, Miss Wilfred Coleen is again the popular cook.

The course started Saturday and lasts a week.

Detail Marks For Pipe Band

Full results from competitions at the Galt Highland Games on Saturday, June 20, have been announced.

Pipe Band competitions are judged on a division of points, usually 65 per cent piping, 25 per cent drumming, 10 per cent marching and deployment.

Acton Junior Pipe Band, on the March, Strathspey and Reel, got 43 per cent piping, 10% per cent drumming, 10 per cent marching and deployment.

On the Slow March event, they received 40% per cent piping, 10 per cent drumming, 10 per cent marching and deployment.

In the first event, they obtained a total of 71% per cent, and in the second, a total of 77% per cent.

In the first event, which is limited to Class 'B' bands, the winning marks would ordinarily be up to the low 80 per cents.

In the Slow March event, which is open to all bands, including the 40th Highlanders, the winning mark was probably something like 80 per cent.

Corporal Andrew Knox did very well in attaining 70 out of 100 in the juvenile piping competition. He was in the top 10 out of approximately 40 contestants. The best player won with 83 points, while the poorest player got 57 points.

When Queen Elizabeth saw the band, she stopped to speak with the pipe band members.

They were at attention in front ranks when the car with the Queen and lady-in-waiting passed.

MANY ACTONIANS joined thousands in Guelph Thursday last week to cheer Queen Elizabeth on her 20 minute visit to the city. One of the starlet-coated Mounties is about to open the door of the sleek black car for Her Majesty. Acton Legion and St. John Ambulance representatives were on duty, and members of the pipe band played for the crowds.

Few Actonians

The Guelph St. John Ambulance brigade had asked neighboring groups from Fergus and Acton to help them when the influx of excited visitors passed through the city.

There were Guelph first aid and drummers with the C.V.D. organization at the park looking after the lost children. Others were here.

Mrs. Hargrave and Mr. Gordon

were stationed in Municipal Court and had three cars — one of them the chief of police. He suffered a minor cut just where she should have been a "blush cheek". The Queen is "well". But patient and she walked out of the park giving a general view of the Queen. She walked towards them from a distance of about 50 feet to a stand still to make the decorated dress

very clear.

Volunteers had been invited to bring their families for the special ceremony. Senator H. H. Tracy was a man in blue, while Mr. Gordon caught his 4-year-old grandchild,

Jeanne, and Linda.

See Selves on TV

Proof of the popularity of

TV was shown when Jack Carpenter, film showman, was shown on channel 13. They spotted him back stage by the uniform.

That certainly proved the first time Mrs. Hargrave had seen the Queen, but she thinks it was the first and last.

She was at the station when the Queen stopped to speak with the Burlington Police after a speech at the Royal Canadian Legion.

At the Legion, when Mr. Gordon and Princess Elizabeth and Prince

Philip were seen, he was outside the building in uniform.

Elizabeth was in a shiny uniform

in that occasion.

After the Queen had said good morning to all, she went with

Her Majesty, waving to the rear platform of her car and continuing and shouting good-bye as she drove away.
