LEGION NEWS

It was a bit of a disappointment to see only a small number of members out to the stag on Friday, September 25, when such excellent entertainment was provided.

Miss Edna Strong of Bolton with her vocal solos kept the members' attention as they requested her return time and time again. Jack Bakeland, puzzling magician, amazed the crowd with his magic act. The lunch was excellent and the entertainment good.

A welcome was extended to the five latest members who received their initiation the same night and two who joined the week previous. They are George Ware, John Hufnagel, Herbert Kirby, Edward Miller, James McGregor, Charles McCarron and John McCarron.

Keep "Old Sweats" night in mind next month when the veterans of the First World War are to be honored. Jimmy Milman of London will return again this year to entertain the boys.

Keep the Blood Clinic, Thursday, October 22, in mind and let's all get out and donate that others may survive.

Guess what? All you local yokels who think you have some talent to offer on the stage had better practice up. At the general meeting on Monday night, it was decided that slugs could be held more often if local talent supplied the entertainment. Don't hide your light under a bushel. Tune the keys of that old harmonica and offer your services to the entertainment committee.

Incidentally, George Hamilton missed collecting the swag on Monday night when his name was called and he failed to appear. Remember the arrangement. You must be present if your name is called to collect the money.

The sports officer along with the newly organized dart executive have called a meeting for Tuesday evening, October 20 and request a full turnout of prospective players to complete plans for the coming dart season.

THE 164TH BATTALION from World War I held their annual reunion in Acton on Saturday and some of the veterans in attendance are pictured above. Five original members still living in Acton were present but the sixth, Gus Clifford, was unable to attend on account of his health. The veterans enjoyed a banquet in the Legion Auditorium and a get-together after. Plans have been made for the reunion next year and it is believed it will be held in Oakville.

164th Battalion "Old Sweats" Gather in Acton During Reunion

Nearly 100 old "sweats" — all veterans of World War I and members of the 164th Halton-Dufferin Battalion — recalled memories of their war service during the annual battalion reunion in the Legion auditorium last Saturday.

Dwanding in numbers each year the surviving veterans able to attend enjoyed a banquet served by the Legion Ladies Auxiliary, after which Acton Citizens Band played a concert for the group.

Due to a steady rain it was necessary to cancel a parade from the Legion to the cenotaph where a wreath laying ceremony had been planned.

The late afternoon evening was much enjoyed as old acquaintances were renewed. Many an old story was heard for the hundredth time but still enjoyed.

Five Remaining
Playing host to the out-of-town veterans were five remaining battalion members still living in Acton. Noted by his absence due to ill health was Gus Clifford. Regret was expressed by the many present regarding the Acton veterans' absence.

Mayor W. H. Cook and Legion president Ham Peal welcomed the "old vets" to Acton and joined with them in their repast and entertainment.

In attendance from Acton were E. E. Barr, Dr. A. J. Buchanan, J. Leavitt, E. Goss and J. Locker.

Borden. They were one of the first battalions to train at the newly opened training quarters.

Following the dinner and entertainment, the executive group of the remaining veterans held a meeting to formulate plans for next year's reunion. Although the place is not finalized it is thought the next reunion will be held in Oakville.
