By the time firemen had arrived the fuse plug had blown and their services were not required.

SILVERWOOD

Early American Glass Described by Collector

The October meeting of Silverwood W.L. held at the home of Mrs. Fred Campbell, was highlighted by a talk given by Mrs. Kerth Barber of Georgetown on "Early American Glass". Mrs. Barber told that glass was known to have been made in 1400 B.C. and she gave some history of glassmaking in North America. She said her husband are avid collectors of old glass and she showed many of their treasures, explaining some of the points in molding and pressing glass and of the art of glass-blowing. She was thanked for her entertaining and instructive talk by Mrs. Douglas Peck, convener of the evening's program on Historical Research. Old Remedies. Hull call, which was answered by 10 members and two visitors, was "One of Grandmother's remedies." Mrs. Henderson said she was going to the Area Conference at Guelph as delegate. Five dollars is being sent to the Telegram's "Milk for Children" fund. A report on the District Directors meeting in Milton was given by Mrs. H. Marchington and the program concluded with an amusing reading by Mrs. R. Carbert Mrs. George Burt and Mrs. George Sivill.

OBITUARY

Missionary for Many Years Retired to Boyhood Village

The United Church in Rockwood was filled to capacity on Saturday afternoon, October 10, for the funeral of the Rev. Richard Orlando Jolliffe, D.D. A member of the congregation, the late Dr. Jolliffe served many years as a missionary. He lived in Rockwood as a boy, returning after retirement in 1945. Many beautiful flower arrangements filled the chancel, altar and the window ledges. The service was conducted by the Rev. G. A. B. Moore, minister of Rockwood United Church and the Rev. E. R. Stanway, B.A., M.A. and B.D., Upper Canada Bible Society who was a co-worker in the China mission field with Dr. Jolliffe. Mr. Moore read the 23rd Psalm and passages of Scripture from the Gospel of St. John and the Apostle Paul's letters. He spoke of the Jolliffe family who were great inspiration to him. "I shall miss Dr. Jolliffe," he said. Deep Devotion. In 1903 Dr. Jolliffe had seen the need in the missionary field. His was a long life of deep devotion. His ability to understand the Chinese language and to know it well as a great scholar had been amazing. Mr. Stanway remembered the first mission council they had attended together. Time and time again as things had bogged down it was at such times Dr. Jolliffe came along with his fine sense of humour. At once the situations brightened. Mr. Stanway remembered a favorite hymn often sung, "Oh, for a Thousand Tongues to Sing." Mr. Stanway related that Dr. Jolliffe had been a great scholar and that he had always given of his best when speaking to students he had warned against winning a popular post at the expense of losing friends. At councils they were reminded that their purpose was to plant the Kingdom of God, to guide and direct. Dr. Jolliffe had a deep humility, a humbleness that made him all the more admired. Mr. Stanway quoted a Chinese proverb in that language: "A superior man is humble but never proud. A small man is proud but never humble." Dr. Jolliffe is survived by his wife, the former Cecelia Dunfield, three daughters, Mrs. Douglas Findlay, Rockwood, Mrs. James Cowan, Miss Mary Jolliffe, Toronto and two sons, Charles of Pickering and William of Rockwood. A brother, the Rev. Charles Jolliffe of Rockwood, and eight grand-children also survive him. Nephews. Pallbearers. Pallbearers, all nephews, were Edward B. Jolliffe, Wilbert Guild Rockwood, Richard O. Jolliffe and Neil Bell, Toronto, Egbert Carson, London and Paul Jolliffe, Milton. Interment was in Rockwood Cemetery.

Approve Changes For Music Festival

Several changes in classes were made when the North Halton Urban Music Festival executive met last. Inspector Robert Bornhold presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. Wolfe. The names of several men were brought forward as suggestions for adjudicator and it was decided to approach Dr. Leslie Bell in case if he would act as adjudicator this year. It was agreed that division of schools according to size should be left to the music supervisors and it was decided the key would be altered to suit the group in the boys ensemble class. Two duet classes were replaced by triple bass and a boy's choir class was to be included. The size of choirs will remain the same but the actual number of singers may vary five either way. Music supervisors will choose material for the festival and the question of accompaniment will be adjudicated. The executive recommended that the festival be held the week of April 4.

Two Towns to Share Night Class Teachers
