Sugar and Spice...

Last week I had to make a speech at a banquet. Now, for a politician or a preacher, a speech is a necessary part of their life. It is a chance to share their ideas and influence others.

But for hundreds of those who are not politicians or preachers, a speech is a daunting task. It is a chance to share their ideas and influence others.

When we stand up to give a speech, we are often nervous. It is a chance to share our ideas and influence others. We want to make a good impression.

Which is very unfair, for it is not the speaker's fault. It is a chance to share our ideas and influence others. We want to make a good impression.
